Forward and Instructions

In this second book about the Bechtel family, I have compiled over ten years of research. The sections are divided by generations and then further divided into family group (in yellow below), double bordered boxes. Each family group box lists the basic information for that immediate family. Links to future and past generations is noted if there exists a family group number in front of the children's' name. For example:

Family Group 74. Frank Walter Bechtel, Sr.

Children of FRANK BECHTEL and MARY HOLLIDAY are:

- 85. i. THELDA LOUISE<sup>11</sup> BECHTEL.
- ii. HAROLD BECHTEL, b. 1920; d. 1920.
- 86. iii. GRACE ELNORA BECHTEL, b. 1920; d. April 1987.
- 87. iv. ELMER STANLEY BECHTEL SR., b. August 21, 1921; d. September 12, 1976.
- 88. v. FRANK WALTER BECHTEL, JR., b. August 14, 1931, Emlenton, PA; d. December 23, 2009, UPMC NW Medical Center, Seneca, PA.
- vi. STILLBORN BECHTEL, b. August 14, 1933; d. August 14, 1933.
- 89. vii. MARION LAVERN BECHTEL, b. February 19, 1938.

Frank Walter Bechtel, Sr. is family group 74. His children that have their own groups are Thelda 85, Grace 86, Elmer 87, Frank Jr. 88 and Marion 89. Stories and additional information can be found under their family group if any exists. Children Harold and Stillborn have no further family groups and any information about these persons will be noted under the family group 74 box of Frank Walter Bechtel, Sr. if it exists.

The majority of the book is proven by references from official documentation, such as census data, deeds etc. In addition, much of the data has been considered proven when the information from two or more different researchers has crossed and all data is consistent and reasonable between the two lines. The reader can concede that, based on these methods, the data is highly accurate.

The over 200 family groups are followed by additional family trees. These are significant family trees that intersect the Bechtel Family through marriages over the years. Finally, there are cemetery listings of gravesites in in the last two sections of the book.

The intent of this book is to compile all the information I could find, and should in no way be considered totally my own research work. It is the work of literally hundreds of people through many years. This second book comes from a promise to my father in his final months of life. I told him I will never let the world forget who he is. This challenge did not only include his life, but the life of as many family members as I could possibly find. I hope, that in 100 years from now, a descendent who's curiosity about his family, will find this book a path toward getting to know the family as well as understanding the readers own personality; for what we are is a compilation of generations, their idiosyncrasies and environmental experiences.

The Bechtel Connection to Early Anabaptists

The Arrest of an Anabaptist<sup>1</sup>

The Mennonite faith evolved mainly in Switzerland and Germany around 1520. They maintained the belief in baptizing only members who were old enough to be cognizant of their faith. This excluded infants. Many martyrs of the early church were put to death for their faith in and around Zurich. Both the Americas and Catherine the Great's Russia became a haven from persecution for members of the Mennonite faith. Due to increased intolerance, the Russian Mennonites were forced out of Russia in the last half of the 19th Century and the early 20th Century. This group would establish a large following in the western states of America. The older generation of this group continue to speak a German dialect called "Plautdietsch". The Swiss German Mennonites migrated mainly to Pennsylvania at the end of the 18th and beginning of the 19th centuries. They would eventually branch out to the other states bringing their traditions, food and language.

The Mennonite movement that so impacted the Bechtel family history began in city of Schaffhausen, spreading to the earliest known Bechtel residence, Schleithem, in the Swiss canton of Schaffhausen. In 1522 Sebastian Hofmeister preached the Reformation in Schaffhausen, and it was from here that it spread to the neighboring Schleithem. On 24 February 1527, the first Anabaptist synod was held at Schleithem and, led by Michael Sattler, its members created the seven articles known as the Bruderlich Vereinigung (Schleithem Confession). This confession of faith became the standard of Mennonite belief, still followed today.

Persecution Similar to that Suffered by Christian Bachtold<sup>2</sup>

On 18 September 1527, the first known member of the Swiss Brethren was put in a Schaffhausen prison for his faith. He was later released upon payment of a fine, and a confession that he was incorrect on the question of baptism. He was then exiled out of the town. The authorities continually made futile efforts to convert the Anabaptists back to the Reformed Church. As a result of this failure, more drastic measures ensued. There were threats of drowning, meetings were prohibited and fines levied. But the “obstinent Anabaptists” began to meet in the “Kehle am Randen,” by the “Täuferwegli” (An Anabaptist path, is still in existence by that name between Schleithem and Merishausen); a forested area outside of town. In 1577 further repressive measures were set in place, this included prohibition of the use of communal property in 1580. This would escalate over the coming century to include drownings, burning at the stake, various forms of torture, confiscation of possessions and removal of children from their family. With this, Anabaptists began to migrate from Switzerland. Some families include: “Hans Bley called Rouchly with his wife and children. Zentz the son of the Stammwirt with his wife and children. Marx Wäber called Gebhart with his youngest son. Bucheler’s son with his children. Michael Thigen’s boy. Jacob Bletscher the servant with his wife and children.” Some local citizens and officials sympathized with the Swiss Brethren and refugees were honored as martyrs.

Removal of Children from their Anabaptist parents

In 1594 J. J. Rüger, the Schaffhausen clergyman and chronicler, with two councillors, travelled to Schleithem, “to remind each Anabaptist kindly of his error.” Concerning this visit he writes:

At the time of the Reformation or change in religion the enemy did not neglect to build chapels beside the Christian churches, with the tares of the seditious, obstinate, and constant Anabaptists, who have increased since the Reformation to such an extent that the honorable Christian government has not been able to get rid of it, much less to uproot it. These intractable Anabaptists have had their confession of faith publicly printed. . . . Indeed, they are fine "children of God," while they are more infamously and obstinately rejecting their God's ordinances and are disobedient to his commands! And because they may not hold their meetings in the village they have used wildernesses and solitary places (chiefly the Küetal) in their neighborhood, but these have been shut off and forbidden by the honorable government.

The military began occupation of the village in 1595, in an attempt to force the Swiss Brethren to attend church and to baptize their children. This action had little effect and resulted in a marked increase of the movement that year. More drastic measures were put in place to control the movement. The Anabaptists were forbidden to pasture their cattle with the common herds. Exile from the village was pressed on the faithful followers. By 1612 all the Anabaptists but five old men (Christian, Georg and Vinzenz Russenberger, Hans and Melchior Meyer) were expelled. Eventually, all cattle were taken from the Anabaptists.

In spite of all these oppressions the congregation still increased. In 1641 the military arrested male Mennonites and imprisoned them in Schaffhausen. Escapees who were re-caught were put in irons that had bells attached to ensure their whereabouts. Christian Bächtold was whipped with the lash. The wives and children of these men were suffering in sheer poverty. The children were forcibly raised Reformed. The men would eventually be released, but fines were constantly levied to include that for citizens just talking to an Anabaptist.

In 1648 the council of Schaffhausen ordered the Mennonites to sell their goods and move out because they continued refusing to baptize their children.. When no buyers could be found for the farms, the land became property of the government and was maintained as a government farm. Mennonites began to immigrate in great numbers to the Palatinate. If unable to leave, many would send their children so that they could be raised as Mennonites. The Mennonite Pletscher and Bechtel families in the Palatinate and later North America come from Schleithem.<sup>3</sup>

A Catholic Viewpoint on Anabaptists

Like Luther, Zwingli, the originator of the Reformation in Switzerland soon found more radical competitors. In 1525 some of his associates separated from him and preached rebaptism and communism. The party found two capable leaders in John Denk and Balthasar Hubmaier. Its following, recruited especially from the working classes, became considerable, not only in Switzerland, but also in southern Germany and Austria. Augsburg, Nuremberg, and, at a later date, Strasburg became the chief centres of the movement. Resistance to its spread came from two sources. The Anabaptists' teaching added substantially to the causes of the Peasants' War which broke out (1524) in the very territory where the Anabaptists had carried on their propaganda. As a consequence, the defeat of the peasants (1525) meant, to a great extent, the dispersion of the Anabaptists. On the other hand, some town councils as that of Zürich (1526) decreed the severest penalties against their adherents. Still in spite of defeat and constant repression, the sect continued to live.<sup>5</sup>

Facts About Christian Bächtold

Born about 1595, Christian Bächtold was listed as an Anabaptist at Schleithem, Schaffhausen, Switzerland in June 1640 with Vincenz Meyer and Samual Peyer (Beyer). He was listed again as an Anabaptist in 1641 with Vincent Meyer, Gratze Pletscher and Samual Peyer. He was imprisoned for the second time as an Anabaptist on September 30, 1642. He had previously escaped from his prison sentence. Records show that he was whipped and ordered out of the country for his faith in 1648. He was married to Anna Meyer.<sup>6</sup> She was born 1600, and died 1660.<sup>7</sup>

Hans Jacob Bechtel Tree – One Waterloo, Canada Connection<sup>8</sup>

The progenitor of this numerous family, whose descendants can now be found in all parts of the United States and Canada, emigrated to America at a very early date. He was a native of Switzerland. Like most of the early settlers coming to Pennsylvania, this old pioneer was of the common class of people, comparatively poor in worldly possessions, and upon arriving at his new and adopted home had, like others, quite enough to do to provide for himself and family the necessaries for subsistence.

We find that at the beginning of the present century four "Bechtels" came to Canada and settled in the county of Waterloo, namely, George, commonly called old "Yarrick," Abraham, his bother, Joseph, the minister, and George E., who settled to the north of Waterloo. All these parties were related. We find that the father of Rev. Joseph Bechtel and the grandfather of George B. Bechtel were first-cousins, and according to the statements received from various parties, we find that old "Yarrick" and Abraham were second-cousins to old George B.

Bechtel's father, consequently (if such statements be correct) the three Bechtels of the different families were second-cousins to each other.

Hans George Bechtel was a Mennonite living at Nussloch, Baden, Germany in 1724 and a Mennonite living at Rohrhof, Baden in 1731. Ernst Müller in 1895 in his book Geschichte der Bernischen Täufer listed the male Mennonites who were living on the east side of the Rhine River in the Oberpfalz, Germany in November 1731. The villages in the list are found in Baden. A second list in Müller's book is a list of the congregations on the west side of the Rhine River in Germany, listing the leaders of the congregation, but instead of naming each male Mennonite in the congregation, the number of families was given. The date for that list is January 1732.<sup>10</sup>

Rohrhof Congregation, including Bruchhausen, Rohrbach, Handschhsheim and Eppelheim. These villages are all located right outside the city of Heidelberg. The ministers were Jost Eschbacher of Eppelheim, Jacob Fellman of Bruchhausen and Melchior Fellman of Bruchhausen and the deacon was Christian Neukommet of Rohrhof.

Rohrhof, an estate in the district of Schwetzingen, Baden-Württemberg, Germany, about 8 miles east of Mannheim, was formerly the seat of a Mennonite congregation, usually called Rohrhof-Bruchhausen. A list of 1731 reports that the congregation consisting of 16 families and had Jost Eschbacher of Eppelheim (?) and Jakob Falman of Bruchhausen as preachers, and Christian Neukomm of Rohrhof as deacon. Jakob Fellmann and his son(?) Jakob Fellmann, the latter from 1765, were its elders in the 18th century. In 1822 the congregation numbered 57 members, 22 of whom lived at Rohrhof. After the emigration of most of the Rohrbach Mennonites to America by the 1830s, meetings were held only at Bruchhausen and by 1840 the congregation of Rohrhof had disappeared.

He was a Mennonite deacon in 1731 in the Zimmerhof congregation. He moved to Zuzenhausen in 1741 and Lived there with his wife, four sons and three daughters in 1743. The famous Declaration of Independence was available to the public in a printed German translation before it was released in English. It was a one-page broadside print published by Steiner and Cist of Philadelphia.

In the 1770s a third of the population of Philadelphia was German. A study by Albert Faust came to the conclusion that in 1775 10% of the population of all American colonies was German, though they were distributed unevenly amongst the 13 colonies. Dr Benjamin Rush (1745-1813), a Philadelphia doctor, signer of the Declaration of Independence, surgeon general of the Continental Army during the early part of the American Revolution (1776-1783) and member of Congress, was curious about the prosperity of Pennsylvania and decided that the German farmers there had much to do with it. He wrote a study listing what he thought were the reasons why the German farmers were better farmers than the non-German farmers in Pennsylvania. When the War of Independence began, Pennsylvania farms were producing enough food to feed the American Army and the allied French Army for the duration of the war. Pennsylvania-German farmers provided most of the grain. Dr Rush wrote that the Pennsylvania farms produced millions of dollars, which after 1780 made possible the founding of the Bank of North America (chartered in 1781).

On Aug. 24, A. D. 1728, eighty Palatinates with their families, in all 205 persons, after a seventy days' voyage, had arrived with the ship "Mortonhouse," from Deal via Rotterdam (the ship received clearance from the Officers of the Customs in Deal on 15 Jun 1728<sup>12</sup>), Captain John Coultas, Commander, in the harbor of Philadelphia, appeared in the halls of justice in Philadelphia to render the oath of allegiance to the Crown of England, declaring it to be their intention to settle themselves in Pennsylvania. The company consisted of eighty men, and sixty-nine women over sixteen years of age, and fifty-six children. Among the names of the adults belonging to this company of immigrants

Hook (1936) says of him, “George (Joh. Georg) Bechtel, Mennonite minister, immigrated 1727 or 1728 probably from Mannheim, from which place ... originated, in 1727, a large emigration of Mennonites. According to records of his brother-in-law, Paulus Engert, they were together at Mannheim since 1710. He settled at Hereford near Bally, Berks County, Pa., and remained there until he died. ## Memmonite Church in Eastern Pennsylvania

Hereford Mennonite Church from 1755 to 1899

Bally is the present day name of the town where the Hereford Mennonite church was located. The general area was called Butter Valley. The settlement was first called Gossenhoppen and later Churchville and then Bally. It was given the name Churchville after several churches located there: (Mennonite, Reformed, Lutheran and Schwenkfelder). When the residents applied for a post office in 1860, the town was renamed for the presiding priest of the Catholic Church, Augustin Bally (1837-1882). Bally is on Hwy 100 about half way between Pottstown and Allentown.

Note: Butter Valley got it's name from the dairy product produced when transportation of milk to Philadelphia markets was such that it would spoil before arriving. The milk would be churned into butter to prevent spoilage and thus the name.

Gossenhoppen was in Colebrookdale Township until 1720. The township was named Hereford from 1720-1836. It became Washington Twp in 1869. It was Philadelphia County until June 30 1752 and became Berks on July 1 1752. Part of Berks County is now in Reading County.

The earliest data available of Mennonites holding worship services in a church is in the History of Pennsburg. It is in the extreme northeastern section of the "Manatant" region, about three miles from Bally. In 1716 John Henry Sproegel, a Mennonite near present day Pottstown, donated 50 acres for a church to be built for use by a combination of the congregations in the district (Mennonite, Calvinists, Lutheran).

The Bally Mennonite Church has had a continuous presence in eastern Berks County, Pennsylvania, for almost 300 years. Originally a part of Hereford Township, the church was formerly known as the Hereford congregation. The first Mennonite settlers arrived in the area around 1720, with a meetinghouse being erected in 1732.

The first recorded pastors were Hans Jacob Bechtel and Daniel Longenecker. Subsequent pastors, together for 30 years were Hans George Bechtel and Peter Moll. Ironically they died on the same day, 29 March 1759.

A larger meetinghouse was erected in 1755 and enlarged in 1790. This log structure was used continuously until 1899, when it was replaced by a plastered stone structure, which still stands (2010) and is currently used as a church-sponsored community recreational center in Bally. A new meetinghouse was constructed in 1971 and is located along Route 100 at the southern edge of Bally. A large fellowship hall was added in 2001. Sunday morning attendance has varied from 100-150 over the past several decades.

The Hereford Mennonite Church 2004

Twentieth-century pastors who led the Bally congregation for an extended period of time included Andrew Mack, Elias Kulp, Paul Longacre, James Longacre, Roy Yoder and James Ralph. The first female lead pastor, Klaudia Smucker, from Goshen, Indiana, began her pastorate at Bally in August of 2010.

The Bally congregation is a member of Mennonite Church USA and Franconia Mennonite Conference. There are two Mennonite churches in the small town of Bally as a result of the Oberholtzer schism of 1847. The other congregation, which retains the designation “Hereford Mennonite,” has close ties to the Bally Mennonite Church.

The peaceful town of Bally began as a settlement of mostly Mennonites and Roman Catholics. There are local accounts of cooperation between neighbors and churches from these two branches of faith. This goodwill continues as persons of other faith traditions move into the expanding community.

The weather board church used until 1899

The Bally congregation has sought engagement with the local community. Active programs have included the Bally Community Center, which has operated since the early 1970s, a pre-school program which has met daily in the church basement, a community garden next to the meetinghouse, and periodic pancake breakfasts which have drawn many participants from the surrounding community.<sup>16</sup>

The Hereford Mennonite Church congregation is one of the three oldest permanent Mennonite settlements. The new church and cemetery was built on the 121 acres of land owned by Ulrich Beidler that he bought from Casper Wistar on March 11 1729. The log church was built in 1732 with George Bechtel as minister. The Stauffer and Beidler families were the largest landholders.<sup>17</sup>

The Church Cemetary and Prior Church

Hans Jacob and the co-minister Daniel Longenecker preached at the homes in the area until the early 1730's. The new meetinghouse was erected and George Bechtel and Peter Moll were the first ministers in the new church. The Hereford Mennonite Church took the name of the township and maintained it through the reorganization and renaming of the area to Washington Township. It was a log structure that set behind the present Community Center in Bally. The original building operated from 1734 to until 1755 and sat on land owned by Ulrich Beidler.

There was no deed to the land. As a member in good standing, Beidler and the church had no written agreement. Upon falling from the church's good graces, for reasons unknown, Mr. Beidler sold the property, in 1755, to the local Jesuit congregation. This was the "thorn bush" to remember him by. Under George Bechtel the land was purchased from the Catholics and given forever to the Mennonite Church. In his will George Bechtel wrote<sup>19</sup>: "While, I the aforesaid George Bechtel, have bought the land included in this indenture alone in the name of the whole congregation and which was paid for with money contributed by the congregation, also it shall always and forever be used as a meetinghouse and burial ground, thus I nor any of my heirs or assigns shall pretend to lay claim to it forever. It is your common property." This first meetinghouse, built in 1732, was a log building. It was replaced in 1755 by a larger weather boarded log structure. This second structure, used for about 140 years, remains standing and has been used as the Bally Community Center since 1971. The present brick building on the opposite side of the cemetery was built in 1899 and is the building in use today.

The formation of Washington Township

This district of territory<sup>20</sup> (Hereford Township) was first settled about twenty years before the erection of the county, in 1752. The early settlers were principally Schwenkfelders, and included Rev. Christopher Schultz, George Schultz,

Melchior Schultz, Melchoir Wiegner, David Mester, Gregorius Mester and Baltzer Yeagle. In 1753 a petition was presented to court, asking for the erection of a new township which was to be bounded and described as follows: “Beginning at a heap of stones on land of Adam Trump— being the chief corner of Philadelphia County in the line of Northampton County; thence north west 1320 ps. to a post; thence by lands of Peter Federolf, Adam Mon, Richard Gregory, Thomas Mayberry and others, S.W. 1770 ps. to a corner of land of John Hess; thence S.E. 615 ps. to a chestnut-tree, the corner of Colebrookdale township; thence along the line of said township by the same course 945 ps. to a post in the line of McCall’s manor, being the upper line of Philadelphia County; thence by the line of said manor N. 38 E., 1800 Ps. to the place of beginning, containing 15,930 acres”

The petition was signed by seventeen inhabitants of this section; their names were, Michael Zell, Melchior Schultz, Jacob Zell, Christophe Schultz, George Steinman, Benedict Strohm, Jacob Fisher, Jacob Stauffer, Gregory Meschter, George Bechtel, David Meschter, Michael Bauer, Peter Moll, Abram Bechtel, Abram Bauer, Melchior Wiegner and Samuel Bauer

David Shultz surveyed the tract above described on January 5, 1753, and the lines not interfering with any other township, it was, on February 1st following erected into a township and named Hereford. Not until 1839 would a large part of the township in the southern section, comprising about four thousand two hundred acres, be laid off and appropriated toward the erection of a new township called Washington. Again in 1841 a large tract in the western section, containing about eleven hundred acres, was asked to be set apart and added to District township. The court appointed James Donagan, Benjamin Tyson and M.S. Richards as commissioners to view the premises, who made a favorable report, and the prayer of the petitioners was granted. In 1849 the estimated area of the township was twelve thousand acres.

Bechtel Family Bible

The large German family Bible of George Bechtel is yet in existence<sup>21</sup>. The Bible came into the hands of Gerhard Bechtel and is now in the possession of one of his descendants.

On the fly-leaf of the Bible is written this note in German: “Diese Biebel ist gedruckt in Deutschland im Jahr 1720. Im Jahr 1730 ist George Bechtel von seinem Vater von Deutschland nach Amerika geschickt worden. Zwischen den Jahren 1750 und 1760 bekam Gerhard Bechtel.”

Translation: This Bible is printed in Germany in the year 1720. In the year 1730, George Bechtel was sent by his father from Germany to America. Between the years 1750 and 1760 Gerhard Bechtel got.

The Bechtel Plantation

Copy of the original deed

The present location is now called Washington Township. Once known as Hereford Township, it is located in the Southeast part of Berks County, formerly Philadelphia County. The original name of the town was Goschenhoppen from the language of the Lenape Indian tribe meaning “meeting place”. It was renamed Churchville to reflect the many churches in the area. In 1883 the name was again changed to Bally for Father Augustin J. Bally. He was a Catholic priest of the town’s Catholic Church held in high regard by the community<sup>22</sup>.

The plantation of the original Bechtel family is less than a mile from the Hereford Mennonite Church. The Bally roads of Niantic Road and Pine Street now intersect at approximately the center of the acreage.<sup>23</sup> On June 10, 1734, Thomas and Richard Penn, Governors in Chief of the Province of Pennsylvania, granted Henry Stauffer a tract of land on the West Branch of the Perkiomen Creek.

That same year he sold the land jointly to Peter Moll and George Bechtel. But Henry Stauffer was not a citizen, as he did not take the Oath of Allegiance to the King. At that time, aliens could not own or sell land. So, on March 24, 1750, George and Peter filed for a new patent for the land. George owned 98 acres, 33 perches and Peter Moll owned 60 acres and 127 perches separated by the Perkiomen Creek. To the east, William Passmore owned the adjoining lot.

To the North, Jacob Stauffer owned the property. On the west, Ulrich Beidler owned the land. This is the same Ulrich Beidler that sold the land of the church after being ousted by the Mennonite congregation.

The following is the text from the 1782 deed which included the map above:

This draught of a tract of land, ituate in Hereford Township in the County of Berks; formerly Philadelphia and Province of Pennsylvania. Being part of a tract of 150 acres and the allowance that formerly belonged to Georg Stouffer, who by his death Anno 1734 sold and conveyed the above paphilt thereof unto Peter Moll and the other part unto George Bechtel who jointly together have gone out and obtained a new patent of confirmation dated the 24th day of March Anno. 1750 from the honorable Provincial of the Province for the same. Then he the said Peter Moll died in anno. 1759 having by will ordered the premises to be sold and thereby impo??? Casper Boorman to sign and execute a deed for the same. Whereupon the same was sold and conveyed unto George Beyer. Said by the deed to contain sixty acres and three quarters of an acre and seven perks of land. But by a new calculation appears to contain sixty two acres.

Jacob (Bechtel) LANDIS/LANDES was born on 4 Feb 1748 in Douglas, Montgomery, PA. He died on 20 Aug 1805 at the age of 57 in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, USA. (father) Jacob Landis, born 4 February 1748 in Richland or Milford township, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania. Married an Elizabeth Shelly. For 20 years after he married his second wife, Jacob lived near his birthplace in Montgomery County. Early in 1805, Jacob apparently made up his mind to leave his old home, and seek a new field for his labors. A quaint story comes down to us of his going far up into central Pennsylvania into what was then Lycoming County, now Clinton, to the "Pine Creek Country" and taking with him "three or four shot bags full of gold and silver," of his fears of losing his treasure and giving it into the hands of a man called White, who guarded it night and day until the purchase of a new home was completed. Jacob did not long enjoy his new home and very soon was stricken with a "fever" (probably malaria) and died on 20 August 1805, a comparatively young man. This immigration of Jacob Landis into Lycoming County has caused the compilers of the Strassburger genealogy to fall into error, owing to confusion in identifying the right Jacob. The Strassburger book supposes Jacob the son of John, the emigrant, to have died in Lycoming County, whereas this Jacob who was one of the executors of his father's will, lived and died in Bucks County, where he was born. Descendents of Jacob (of Lycoming) and his second wife still reside in Clinton and Tioga Counties.

The Bechtel Family, which came to this country from Weinheim, Germany in 1728, chose to settle in what would later become Bechtelsville. History shows that the house which Isaac Bechtel lived in, the son in the immigrant family, was built prior to the American Revolution in the 1770s. The village that would grow and become incorporated as Bechtelsville in September 1890 began with only a few homes and quite a few mills: a grist mill, saw mill, oil mill and a lead mill. The Bechtelsville Post Office was established in 1852; 31 years before Bally's. The Colebrookdale Railroad was extended three miles north of Boyertown to the tiny hamlet of Barto in 1869.

This other means of transportation to and from what would become Bechtelsville prompted new businesses and families to locate in the village during that time. A large iron furnace, which reportedly employed "many workers", was built in the village in 1875. Smaller businesses were numerous in the late 1800s and early 1900s: harness shop, bakery, butcher, blacksmith, tinsmith, printer, hotel, general store, a creamery and other businesses. There were also enough children living in the Borough in the late 1880s to justify building a two-room school house in 1890<sup>28</sup>

Abraham C. Bechtel<sup>32</sup> Decendants

There were 3151 titles, books and almanacs printed in the German language in America between 1728 and 1830, most issued in Pennsylvania. As a pretext for exploring devotional attitudes, some were continually reprinted, popular depending on the community, and handed down on the basis of family association and esteem. Further identified by the signatures of their owners they passed through the generations.

The most important of these in the acquisitions of John B. Bechtel is Johann Arndt's, Wahren Christenthem from the estate sale of his father's library. John B. wrote on the first free end paper in English and German, "Bought at the Sale of my dec'd Father Abm. C. Bechtel Nov the 15th 1861 / John B. Bechtel / paid $1.00 / one of the administrators."

On the paste down his father had written, "Subscriber / Abraham C. Bechtel / January the 26th 1833."

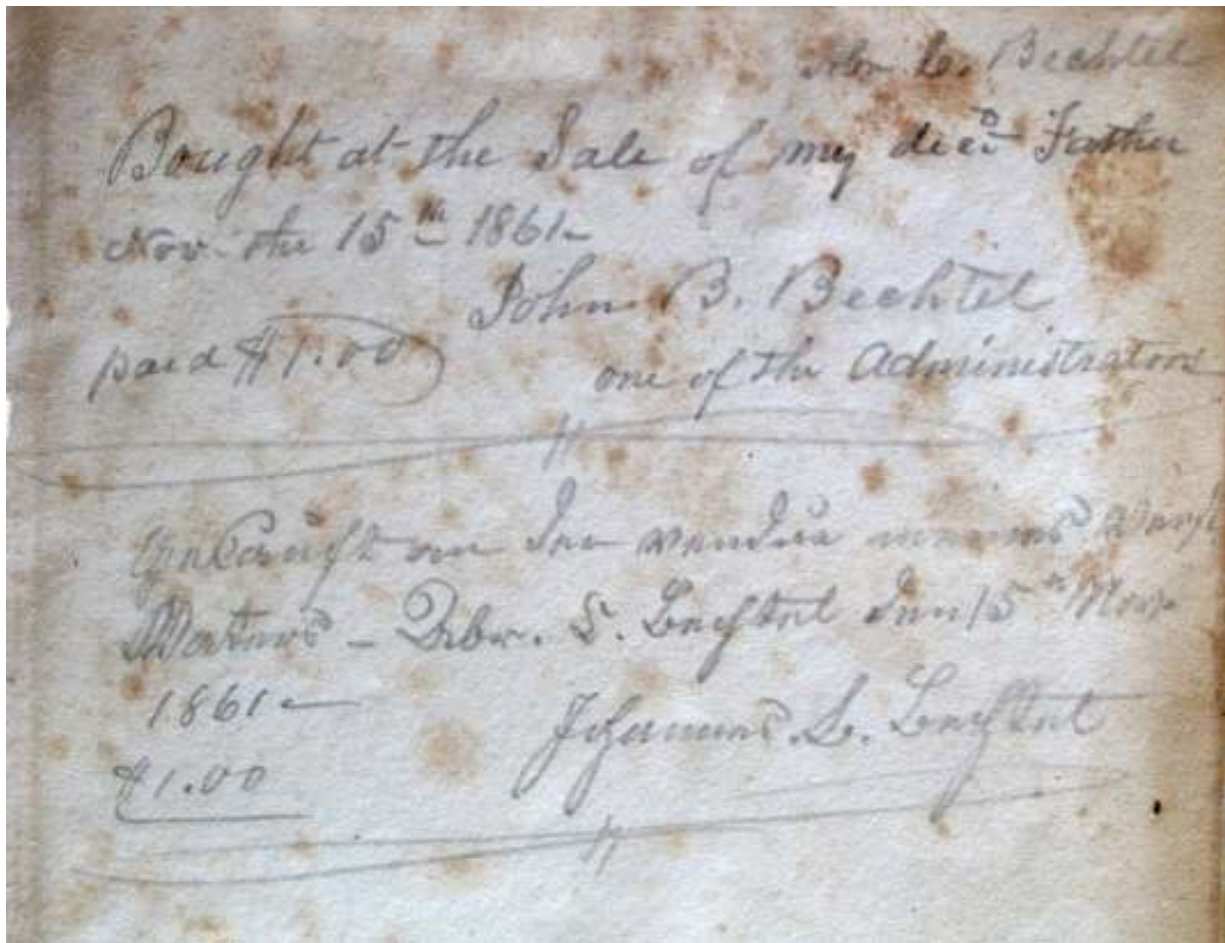

The inscription shows the extensive Mennonite relations in the family. Abraham C. Bechtel (1776 - 1861) is not to be confused with his father, minister Abraham Bechtel (1749-1815), trustee in 1780 for an acre of land given by Henry Stauffer (grandfather of Henry Stauffer Mack?) for the Colebrookdale meetinghouse (Wenger, 251, 121). But Abraham C.'s brother, Bishop John C. (Clemens) Bechtel (1779-1843), was also a "preacher at Hereford in 1816 and bishop in 1830," (Wenger, 251) whose son, John B. Bechtel (1807-1889), was ordained at Hereford in 1848. To fully account four generations of Bechtel Mennonite pastors, John B. Bechtel's grandson, Henry G. Bechtel (b. 1878) was ordained a minister at Vincent in 1914.

The Wahren Christenthem that Abraham C. subscribed had two parts bound in one, 941 and 232 pages respectively, 2 copper-engraved title pages and 63 full-page woodcut emblems. It is the most frequently used devotional book for more than two centuries among Mennonites. Three German editions appeared in Philadelphia and Germantown prior to this, Ben Franklin's (1751), Christopher Saur's (1765) and Johann Georg Ritter's, 1830. In 1749 Lutheran pastor Muhlenberg said of Arndt's book, "take hold of the Holy Bible and True Christianity [Wahren Christenthem] every day" (Journals, I, 219).

Mills at Bechtelsville

The Red Mill, just outside of Bechtelsville, was the second in Berks county that for ten years was solely in the charge of a woman. She came from another well known Pennsylvania German family and was Miss Lydia Landis. On the farm she learned to become a first class farmer's wife and an expert baker and when she assumed the name of Mrs. Mahlon Reitnauer she became a full fledged miller and while her husband was tilling a farm she operated a flour mill. She could dress mill stones and handle a three bushel sack of wheat as well as the young farmers who brought it to her mill. When the day's work was done she could take her flour and knead it into bread, which she baked on an old fashioned hearth.

Bechtelsville Mill today

Milling was one of the chief industries and among one of the earlier mills along the creek was the Hiester Mill, also known as Bechtel's Mill and last as the Pleasant Valley Mill. When the first plant was erected at this spot is unknown, but the old mill first erected was remodeled in 1839, during the booming days of the Union canal, when in one month as many as 125 canal boats passed in one direction. At various times this mill was owned by F. C. Bechtel, Jonathan B. Miller, J. D. and Sarah Hiester and E. B. Frey. It is one of the booming roller flour mills along the Tulpehocken today, as the old burr stones were removed a score of years ago<sup>37</sup>.

Isaac Bechtel's position at the Battle of Brandywine

In April 1777, General Armstrong accepted an appointment from the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania as brigadier general of the state's militia and two months later, on 5 June 1777, he accepted appointment from the council as major general. It can be estimated that Isaac enlisted around this time.

On 25 August 1777, Washington ordered Armstrong to march his militia immediately to Wilmington, Delaware. Armstrong divided his men into two brigades, sending nearly 1,800 men of the First Brigade, commanded by James Potter, to the front. The remaining 1,200 men of the Second Brigade, under James Irvine, remained behind the lines<sup>38</sup>. This group, many of which were unarmed, included Isaac Bechtel. By September 10th, the army had fallen back to Brandywine Creek, about 25 miles below Philadelphia.

Chad's ford was the main crossing of the creek and a direct route to Philadelphia. The banks are steep and the thick with brush. It was Washington's estimate that this would be the main attack area for the British and placed the main portion of the revolutionary forces there to defend it. It consisted of Major General Greene, and comprising the brigades of Generals Wayne (Isaac's Brother-in-law, Christian Stauffer's outfit), Weedon, Muhlenberg, and Maxwell's Light Infantry.

The Pennsylvania militia, under Gen. John Armstrong, was assigned as the left-wing and extended through the rough ground, known as Rocky Field, to Pyle's Ford. At this point, two miles below Chad's Ford, companies of the artillery militia of Philadelphia placed cannons to prevent the British from crossing the stream on a flank. Armstrong had under his protection, the entire supply contingent of the American Army.

At daybreak on September 11th, Cornwallis with Howe accompanying, moved his troops northward under cover of a thick fog. The entire force moved quickly and quietly. At 9 A.M., four hours after Cornwallis began heading upstream; the remaining British forces began movement towards Chad's Ford. As the day moved on, Cornwallis turned the American's right flank and eventually forced Washington to retreat. General Armstrong's Pennsylvania militia, having no active part in the battle, joined the rest of the retreating American force accompanied them in their movement toward Concord.

As a result, the British moved into Philadelphia unimpeded on September 26th. It appeared to Armstrong that a battle was imminent. It did not take place until October 4th upon which Washington attacked the British at Germantown. With Armstrong on the far right flank, he was ordered to advance and engage the enemy at Wissahickon Creek. Armstrong was unable to cross the creek in order to fall on the enemy's left flank and rear and so returned to join Washington's main army, leaving a few troops behind at the creek to hold off the British. Armstrong and the remainder of his troops marched toward the sound cannon fire. Upon arrival, he found that his men were in front of the entire British army. After about 45 minutes he yielded to the enemy's artillery fire. To his surprise, he found that Washington had retreated two hours earlier. In a letter he stated, "I thought we had Victory."

Valley Forge, PA

After the defeat in Germantown, Washington decided not to attack the British again and set out for Valley Forge. In December, Armstrong was ordered to patrol the area east of the Schuylkill River toward Bucks County. Originally assigned a force of about 1,000 men, he was to prevent enemy foraging and block communications. By the end of the month, he had 1600 men under his command.<sup>39</sup>

Among the early Mennonites who settled in Pennsylvania and particularly in Berks county, was a family by the name of Bahr. Tradition says the emigrant ancestor of this family was Leonard Bar, who is buried in the cemetery at Hill Church. He was born in 1734, and he died March 9, 1813, and his wife, Maria (also called Magdalena) was buried at his side. She was born August 28, 1738, daughter of Nicholas Ihst (Ehst), a native of Switzerland and a pioneer of Colebrookdale township, Berks county. She died July 2, 1820, aged eighty-two years, two months, four days. On her tombstone the name is spelled Bahr: and on that of her husband Bar, the latter also stating that there were two sons and two daughters.

Jacob Bahr was born Dec. 25, 1759, and his death occurred Dec. 11, 1825, when he was aged sixty-five years, eleven months, sixteen days. His wife, Esther Stauffer, born June 23, 1749, died Feb. 10, 1836, aged seventy-six years, seven months, seventeen days. They were Mennonites in religious faith, and were buried in the Mennonites cemetery at Boyertown.

Johannes Bahr, son of Jacob and Esther, was born Dec. 26, 1780. He owned the farm of over seventy acres now owned by William Keim, and also the tract belonging to William C. Edinger, and the farm of his grandson John B. Bahr. He died Jan. 20, 1864, aged eighty-three years, twenty-four days. On July 5, 1807, he married Catherine Bechtel, born Oct. 15, 1784, daughter of Isaac Bechtel. She died Oct, 10, 1850, aged sixty-six years, one day. Both she and here husband are buried in the Mennonite cemetery at Boyertown. Their children were: Elizabeth, born Aug. 18, 1808, died Jan. 15, 1815; Jacob B., born July 18, 1814; Ester, born Dec. 19, 1816; Catherine, born Feb. 5, 1818, married John Maurer, and lived on the homestead; Susanna, born Sept. 3, 1820, died unmarried; Isaac, born June 21, 1826.

Jacob B. Bahr, son of Johannes, was born in Colebrookdale township, July 18, 1814, and he died July 19, 1882, and is buried in Fairview cemetery. He was a life long farmer and prospered in his undertaking. He owned a farm of 125 acres near Boyertown, the farm now the property of his son, John B., and he built all the buildings there, the barn in 1864, and the house in 1869. In politics he was a Democrat, and served as school director of the township. His wife, Catharine Bliem, was born April 27, 1823, and died March 16, 1890, daughter of John Bliem, of Pottsgrove township, Montgomery county. They were the parents of children as follows: Elam, who died young; Sarah, who married Samuel Noll of Reading; Lucy, wife of Chester Kepner, of Pottstown; Lizzie, who married M. Y. Johnson, of New Berlinville; Matilda, who became the wife of William Davidheiser, of Pottstown; Mary, who died unmarried; Kate, wife of Samuel Bechtel, of Congo; John B.; and Annie, who married John Y. Shultz, of Trexlertown.

John B. Bahr, son of Jacob B., is a prosperous farmer living at Gabelsville, in Colebrookdale township, Berks county. He was born Jan. 26, 1861, and was educated in the common schools of his district for a short time. He worked for his parents until he was twenty-five years old, and then began farming for himself on the homestead, which he continues to operate. This is a tract of one hundred acres, Mr. Bahr having added twenty acres to it. He has a fine dairy, keeping twelve to fifteen cows, and ships his milk to Boyertown. His land is kept in fine condition, and the home is comfortable and attractive with its well kept lawn. There is an excellent spring on the place. Mr. Bahr has some of the finest horses in Lower Berks county. In politics Mr. Bahr is a Democrat. He and his family attend St. John's Church at Boyertown, in which he served four years as deacon. He has the old family Bible, once the property of his grandfather, bearing the date 1765. Mr. Bahr was married in October, 1888, to Annie Hartman, of Spangsville. They had children: Luella, Arthur, Nora, William, Edna, and Warren, the last named dying in infancy.

Mill owned by Jacob, son of Jacob B. Bahr built in 1897 to house Jacob Bahr's (pronounced Bear) woodworking and grist mill business. It is part of a farm complex in the village of Gabelsville, Berks County, Pennsylvania, 1 mile north and west of the center of Boyertown. The site was home to a linseed oil mill from before 1828 until the 1890's, and woodworking machinery was installed in the early 1870's. The machinery, which includes a duplicating lathe, a polishing machine (belt sander) and a spoke-tenoning machine, has 1870 and 1871 patent dates. There are also two standard lathes, both over 10 feet long.

The mill was water-powered by the overshot wheel until severe flooding in 1938, when the dam washed out. Also, in 1945, the Bahr Family won a contract from the Boyertown Burial Casket Company for the sawmill (across the street), requiring more hours of operation than the millponds could provide. At that time, the woodworking business was largely ignored until Lawrence Bahr closed the sawmill in 1967.

Jacob B. Bahr, son of Jacob B., and now a leading merchant, miller and sawmill proprietor, was born in Colebrookdale township, near where he now lives, April 11, 1863. He attended the schools of his district and was reared to farming pursuits, working for his parents until twenty-five years old. He then married and located in Gabelsville, in 1888, at once engaging in the lumber and sawmill business, and in a small way operated a gristmill. In 1900 he engaged in the mercantile business, where he has two persons employed. He runs a huckster team, and does a profitable business. There are fifty-seven acres of land in his farm, three houses (two of which he rents) a mill and a sawmill, barn and necessary out buildings. He is the leading spirit in the town, and altogether employs three men besides his three sons. The place on which he lives is the old Gabel homestead. His wife was Mary Gabel, daughter of John L. and Leah (Hoch) Gabel. She is buried in Fairview cemetery. To this union were born four children: William who died in infancy; Elmer, assisting his father; and Raymond and Lawrence also working on the home place. Mr. Bahr married (second) in November 1905, Mrs. Alice Nester, nee Scheetz, widow of William Nester; Mr. Bahr and his family belong to St. John's Church at Boyertown, where he was deacon for two terms of two years each.<sup>45</sup>

Isaac S. Bechtel with Elizabeth [?], Isaac's 3rd wife

Isaac Bechtel spent his childhood in a house on a hill overlooking the Red Mill in Berks, County, Pa. before traveling to Venango County.

Isaac S. Bechtel has a GAR marker at his grave. The Grand Army of the Republic means he's a Civil War vet. He supposedly served with the 184th PA and mustered in on May 12, 1864 at the spry young age of 74. It seems, from the records, that Isaac S. Bechtel was KIA on June 22, 1864 at the battle of Jerusalem Plank Road, Weldon Railroad, June 22-23, 1864 in Petersburg, VA. The GAR marker is incorrect.

My immigrant Sassaman ancestor was Hermanus Sassamanhausen. He was born in Germany and immigrated to America in 1738 aboard the ship St. Andrew. His first wife was Anna Maria Beyer, daughter of John Philip Beyer and Maria Elizabeth Beck. They had at least one daughter, Magdalena, before Anna Maria died in 1746. In 1748, Hermanus married Maria Amalina Spiess. The marriage was recorded at the German Reformed Church in Philadelphia. Later records (including the will and some of baptism records) show his wife's name as Maria Magdalena. At this point I am not sure if Maria Amalina and Maria Magdalena are the same person. In 1771, Hermanus and his wife (Magdalena) had twins sons Henry and Andrew. Hermanus died in 1780, when the twins were about 9 years old.<sup>53</sup>

The second family Bible

When Uncle John S. Bechtel had died in 1868, my father (Gerhart S. Bechtel) wrote to his brother Isaac S. Bechtel in Venango County, Penna. Informing them of the death of their brother John S. and also asked Uncle Isaac S. to send him the dates of the birth of all their brothers and sisters. Uncle in his letter to father did, and all dates given were correct. I still have the original which I got after fathers death. This made me believe that Uncle Isaac S. had his father's (my grandfather's) family Bible. On April 8, 1926, I wrote to Frank D(anial) Bechtel, Emlenton, PA a grandson of Uncle Isaac S. asking him whether they still had the Bible in the family. He wrote me that they had and the following letter proves that I was correct. The letter was as follows:

Emlenton, PA

April 28, 1926

Mr. Jesse F. Bechtel

Dear cousin:

In answer to your letter received some time ago I will now answer it. I have been sick or I would of answered sooner.

In regard to the old German Bible after my father's death, the Bible went to John Isaac Bechtel he died last April 15th, 1925, then the Bible went to Amos Isaac Bechtel, he will not sell it he lives about 40 miles from here. As soon as I get a Minister or someone to try and get the name and dates and I will send them to you.

I have not been well for about a year on May 6th, 1925, I came in contact with a high tension electric wire and got badly burnt have not been able to do a days work since. Just as soon as I can get some one to attend to it I will send it to you.

Hoping everyone is well.

You cousin,

Frank D. Bechtel<sup>55</sup>

SCRUBGRASS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH - THE STONE CHURCH<sup>56</sup>

Scrubgrass Presbyterian Church - The Stone Church - is the oldest existing church in Venango County. It is believed to have been started in the 1790s but the exact date is not available because of a fire which burned all records. It is located about four miles from Emlenton and it is ministered to the religious needs of the settlers for a radius of twenty miles. Daughter churches are located at Rockland, Richland, Nickleville, Emlenton, Clintonville, New Salem and Allegheny.

Services were at first conducted in a tent in the grove; by 1803, in a log church; by 1815, in a frame building which was rather modern in that it contained six real glass windows, new pulpit and pews, but no stove at first; and in 1845, the present stone structure was built to accommodate the congregation especially on Communion Sabbaths when the table was used - a custom not seen in the regular Presbyterian Churches.

In 1800, the first sermon was preached by the Reverend M. William Morehead in the home of Mrs. Abigail Coulter, located about forty rods from the present building. The first public services were held under a large oak tree, still standing, on the top of the hill near Crawford's Corners, just across the line in Butler County.

Twenty young men of the church entered the ministry and seven women served in home and foreign mission fields.

On the church property is a Chapel, formerly an academy established in 1875 through the efforts of The Reverend Dr. J. R. Coulter. Here the Vacation Bible School is held.

The building is 110 years old (in 1955) and it is the only building in the county used by the same congregation for that length of time. But she still stands - the Old Stone Church as God's sentinel to the members in all denominations. May the good she has done be increased more and more.

(iv) Levi E. Bechtel, son of Gerhard S. and Maria (Erdman) Bechtel, was born at Eshbach, Berks county, Dec. 24, 1823, and died Dec. 26, 1905, aged eighty- two years, two days. He is buried at Boyertown, Pa. He was a prosperous man, engaging in several lines of business besides farming, in which he was also successful. He bought an excellent 109 acre farm in Washington township, one mile east of Eshbach, from the William Stauffer estate, and there lived and farmed until 1898, when he retired to a tract which he had improved, along the Schultzville road. He built a stone house on this place in 1887 and occupied it until his death. Mr. Bechtel also owned a forty-one acre place adjoining his large farm. He conducted undertaking establishments at Eshbach and Gabelsville, and was also in the wood and lumber business, cutting down trees; he gave employment to about eight men in this line.

In 1850 Mr. Bechtel married Catharine Cleaver, daughter of Daniel and Susanna (Koch) Cleaver, and granddaughter of Isaac Cleaver. Mrs. Bechtel is now living near her son Hiram, on the Schultzville road, in Washington township. Eleven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel: Hiram C.; Amos, who died young; Lovina (married Edward Stauffer, of Bechtelsville); Amanda (married John Fry, of Washington township); Sarah (married John Zuber, of Reading Mary; Lizzie (married William Moyer, of Reading Catharine, who died young; Olivia (married to Horace Hems, of Eshbach); Frank, of Philadelphia, where he is engaged as a mechanic (married Emma Renninger); and Edwin C., also a mechanic of Philadelphia, who married Mary Bechtel (not a near relative). Mr. Bechtel and his family were members of the Lutheran Church at Boyertown, of which he served as trustee for some years, being prominent in the church as he was in everything else which interested him.

Hiram C. Bechtel began his education in the Oberholtzer public school, where he attended for two winters. His parents then moved to the Gerhard Bechtel farm at Gablesville, where the family lived for seven years, during which time Hiram C. Bechtel attended school in that neighborhood and went two terms to Isaac B Hankey's Kallynean Academy, Boyertown. The Bechtels then moved to the adjoining farm owned by Jacob Bechtel. And after a six years' residence at that place moved to the 109- acre farm in Washington township which Levi F. Bechtel purchased from the William Stauffer estate. When he was eighteen years old, Hiram C. Bechtel commenced to learn the millwright's trade, serving his apprenticeship under Frederick Glaes. He was employed at such work for eight years, when he began farming on his father's forty-one acre tract, cultivating that place for three years at the end of which time he bought the Jacob Latshaw homestead, which is located on the Schultzville road, near Eshbach. The place consists of six acres of valuable land and a comfortable dwelling, which Mr. Bechtel remodeled in 1893. He has a very attractive home, nicely located.

Mr. Bechtel has, worked at his trade for many years, having followed it for seventeen years in the employ of the Wolf Company, of Chambersburg, Pa., his work taking him into New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Indiana. Since 1903 he has been building mills on his own account, commanding the greater share of the patronage in Macungie and the adjacent portions of Lehigh county.

On Jan. 24, 1874. Mr. Bechtel was married to Catharine Funk, daughter of Samuel and Judith (Conrath) Funk, of New Jerusalem, Berks county, and they are the parents of five children Agnes F., wife of Harry B. Becker, of Fagleysville, Montgomery Co, Pa.; Amos F., unmarried, who follows millwrighting, traveling all over the United States; Annie F.; Alice F., married to Samuel H. Moser, son of Henry Z. Moser; and Ammon F., at home. This family are members of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church at Boyertown. Mr. Bechtel is a Republican in politics, and in fraternal connection a member of Columbus Lodge, No. 75, I. O. O. F.. of Chambersburg.

(v) Jesse F. Bechtel, son of Gerhard S. and Mary H. (Fronheiser), born Sept. 116 1852, at Eschbachs, in Washington township, married, Sept. 23, 1876, Mary A. W. Pennepacker, born June 19, 1856, daughter of Eli and Sarah (Wieand) Pennepacker, a distant relative of ex-Gov. Samuel Pennypacker. Four children have blessed this union: (1) Marie Cordelia P., born July 8, 1877, is at home. (2) Jesse Luther P., born Dec. 30, 1878, graduated from the Philadelphia Business College and College of Commerce, and is now employed by the Boyertown Casket Company, in their store at Philadelphia. He married Anna C. Gansz. (3) Grace Agnes P., born Dec. 17, 1880, married Harry B. Renninger, and has one child, Mae B. Renninger. (4) Abram Grant P., born March 2, 1887, is a graduate of the Pottstown Business College, and is now at home.

Jesse F. Bechtel has resided at Gabelsville, in Colebrookdale township, since 1880, in which year he built his present home. At about the age of seven years he came to Colebrookdale township to live with his uncle Jesse B. Pennepacker, with whom he made his home for ten or twelve years, working on the farm in summer and attending the public schools in winter. During the fall of 1870 he attended the Kallynean Academy at Boyertown, Prof. I. B. Hankey, principal. The same year he was licensed to teach, receiving his first certificate from the late D B. Brunner, the Superintendent of Public Schools of Berks county. He taught his first term 1870-71 in Pike township near Hill Church. During the summer of 1871 he again attended the Academy. He has taught in all thirty-six terms, all with the exception of the first term, in Colebrookdale township, having been engaged at the Cleaver's, Gabelsville and Weisstown schools, and in several families he has taught three generations. He has taught under the following county superintendents: Brunner, Baer, Keck, Zechman and Rapp. Since 1887 he has held a Permanent Certificate, and since 1893 he has been a member of the Berks county Teachers' Reading Union. For three years, 1872-75, he was a clerk in a general store—one year at Pikeville and two years at Gabelsville.

Mr. Bechtel is a member of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, at Boyertown, where for more than ten years he has served as elder, and since 1897 as secretary of the Church council. He has represented his church as lay delegate to the meetings of the Ministerium of Pennsylvania and adjacent States at Lancaster in 1897, Easton. 1902, Philadelphia, 1903, and Allentown, 1908. For nineteen years he has been superintendent of the Sunday-school (Union) at Gabelsville. In politics he is a Republican, and he has been a delegate to a number of County conventions, twice a State delegate, and for twenty-four years committeeman for Colebrookdale township. From 1894 to 1899 he served as justice of the peace, and in 1880, 1890 and 1900 he was census enumerator. Mr. Bechtel has a fine collection of Indian relics, numbering some 1,600 specimens, and most of these were found in the immediate vicinity of his home in what is known as the Popodickon Valley (named for the Indian chief who once lived there). He also possesses a unique Washington button, made many years ago. It bears the motto "Long live the President"; along the outside are the initials of the thirteen colonies. In the inner circle are the initials G. W. He finds great pleasure in his well chosen library, and takes a great interest in local history.

The first, Bechtel Reunion was held Sept. 23, 1897, in the old Hereford Mennonite Meeting-house (since then replaced by a new structure). The original meeting house there was built in 1755, and its quaint appearance indicated its great age. It was a low wooden building a little larger than an ordinary school house. The joists upon which the roof rested extended far over the sides of the building. This venerable building was occupied by the Old Mennonites, who held services there over 140 years. Many of the descendants of the first Bechtels worshipped there. Among the ministers who served this congregation are a number named Bechtel; in fact, the family has supplied a minister from almost every generation.<sup>58</sup>

He was born 23 SEP 1820 in Schwenkville, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, and died 23 APR 1885 in Colebrookdale, Berks County, Pennsylvania. He was buried in Fairview Cemetery, Colebrookdale, Berks County, Pennsylvania. He married Mary A. Erdman Bechtel 16 OCT 1842 in Pennsylvania, daughter of Gerhard Stauffer Bechtel and Maria Erdman. She was born 23 OCT 1821, and died 19 FEB 1878. He married Esther Krause. She was born 1819, and died 1905

Child of Jesse Berkey Pennebecker and Mary A. Erdman Bechtel is:

Amos Bechtel Pannepacker was born 26 OCT 1843 in Washington Township, Berks County, Pennsylvania.<sup>59</sup>

Few families have contributed to the State of Pennsylvania as many men of sound judgment, wisdom and unselfish patriotism as that founded in America by Hendrick Pannebecker, who was born on or about March 21, 1674. He came to America from Flomborn, a village on the River Rhine, near Worms. There is a reference to him in an account book of Pastorious, on the 3d of 1st month, 1702. About 1699 he married Eve Umstat, daughter of Hans Peter Umstat, of Germantown. They had eight children: Martha, 1706-1761; Adolph, 1708-1789; Peter, 1710-1770; John, 1713-1784 (was prominent in the early days of the Revolution); Jacob, 1715-1752; Henry, 1717-1792; Barbara; and one other daughter who married a Keyser.

Peter Pannebecker, son of the emigrant Hendrick, married Elizabeth Keyser, and they became the parents of a son William Pennebecker, born Aug. 26, 1740. He married Mary Hause. They had a son Jesse.

Jesse Pennebecker, son of William and Mary, was born Feb. 1, 1783. He was a farmer near Keely's Church, Schwenkville, and is buried in the cemetery there. He married (first) Salome Berkey, and among their children were: Jesse B., born in 1820; Amos; and two daughters. His second wife was a Livengood and to this marriage were born: Moses and Elias.

Fairview Cemetery

Jesse B. Pannepacker, son of Jesse, was born at Schwenkville, Montgomery Co., Pa., Sept. 23, 1820; he died at his home in Colebrookdale township, Berks county, April 23, 1885, and his remains rest at Fairview cemetery, Boyertown. He was a blacksmith by trade, and for ten years worked in his shop at Eshbach. He then spent eight years in farming at the same place, after which he located in Colebrookdale township, where he had a farm of thirty-eight acres, and this he cultivated from that time on until his retirement. He added twenty-eight acres to his original tract. His industry and good management brought him success, and about eleven years before he died he was able to retire and to pass his last years in the enjoyment of the competency he had earned. As a public-spirited citizen, he was of the front rank. His political principles were those of the Republican party, and he ably filled the offices of school director and tax collector. Like all his family he belonged to St. John's Lutheran Church at Boyertown, and he at various times held all the offices in the gift of the Church. He is buried in the family lot in Fairview cemetery. He married (first) Mary Bechtel, born Oct. 23, 1821, daughter of Gehart (or Gerhart) Bechtel and wife (whose maiden name was Erdman). Both Gehart Bechtel and wife are buried in the Mennonite graveyard at Bally. Mrs. Mary (Bechtel) Pannepacker died Feb. 11, 1878. The only child born to Jesse B. and Mary (Bechtel) Pannepacker was Amos B. Jesse B. Pannepacker married (second) Esther Krause (1819-1905).

Amos B. Pannepacker, son of Jesse B., was born at Eshbach Corner, in Washington township, Berks county, Oct. 26, 1843. He attended the old pay school held in a spring house at Eshbach, on the John Reidenauer farm. The teachers were a Mr. Siegenfuse and Mr. John Trollinger. Later he attended a public school. He gave his services to his parents on the home farm until he attained his majority, and continued working for his father after that time until he was twenty-eight. After his marriage he began farming for himself in Colebrookdale township, two miles from Boyertown, on one of his father's farms. This continued to be his home until 1882, when he rented the farm of seventy-five acres. The farm on which he now lives he purchased in 1894. It consists of 110 acres of fertile land, and is improved with substantial buildings, part of which Mr. Pannepacker himself erected. He is one of the heavy taxpayers of the township. Besides his farm he is interested in the Clayton Creamery, and is president of the Clayton Creamery Association. This Creamery averages about five thousand pounds of milk daily the year round. He is also interested in the Boyertown Candy Company, and in a number of different enterprises.

Mr. Pannepacker has been active in local matters as a strong Republican, and for two years he served the township as supervisor. He was township committeeman for a number of years and was delegate to a number of county conventions. He is a member of Christ Lutheran Church, at Niantic, which he has served as deacon and elder, and at the present time is serving as trustee. His wife belongs to the New Mennonite Church at Bally.

On Dec. 24, 1870, Mr. Pannepacker married Annie Clemmer, daughter of John and Susan (Bauer) Clemmer, of Washington township. To this union was born a daughter, Annie, who is now the wife of Ulysses C. Moyer, the farmer on Mr. Pannepacker's farm. They have had two children: Amos H., who died aged two and one-half years; and Rosa.

The Pennypacker Legend

On Oct. 4, 1877, the anniversary of the battle of Germantown, was held a re-union of the descendants of Hendrick Pannebecker. The site selected was the camp ground occupied by Washington and the Revolutionary army at "Pennypacker's Mills," on the Perkiomen creek. The program on that occasion included an oration by Samuel W. Pennypacker, since Governor of the Commonwealth; a hymn, written by Isaac R. Pennypacker, and adapted to Mennonite music, commemorative of Leonard Keyser, a Mennonite martyr, who was one of the forefathers of the family, to be sung to illustrate the first epoch; the ballad of Washington at Pennypacker's Mills, written by Theodore Winthrop in his novel "Edwin Brothertoft" to be read or sung as an illustration of the Revolutionary epoch; and "Gen. Pennypacker's March," by Pierre Latour, to be played for the present epoch.

The story of Leonard Keyser as given by Van Bragt is as follows: "In the year 1527 was the learned and good Leonard Keyser taken and condemned to be burned. As he neared the fire, bound in a cart, he broke off a flower that grew in the field and said to the judges, for they rode along with him, 'If ye can burn this little flower and me, then have ye judged aright; if not, take heed and repent.' Thrice the great fagots were heaped around him at the stake and kindled. Nevertheless when they had burned away, his body was found unmarked save that his hair was singed and his nails were a little brown. Likewise the little flower yet lay in his hand unchanged. Thereupon, the sheriffs cut his body into pieces and cast them into the Inn. But a judge was so moved thereat that he yielded up his office, and one of the sheriffs became a Mennonite brother and ever thereafter lived a pious life."

HYMN

When Leonard Keyser heard the cries Of grief for martyred dead, And saw the place of sacrifice Whereto his pathway led, He pleaded not, with useless prayer To scorning bigots near, But plucked a flower that bloomed so fair It made the waste more drear.

One flower that had escaped the breath That swept the withered land; God's symbol of a life from death He held it in his hand. "If ye have power," he spake, "this hour With all the fires ye light To burn my body, or this flower, then have ye done aright."

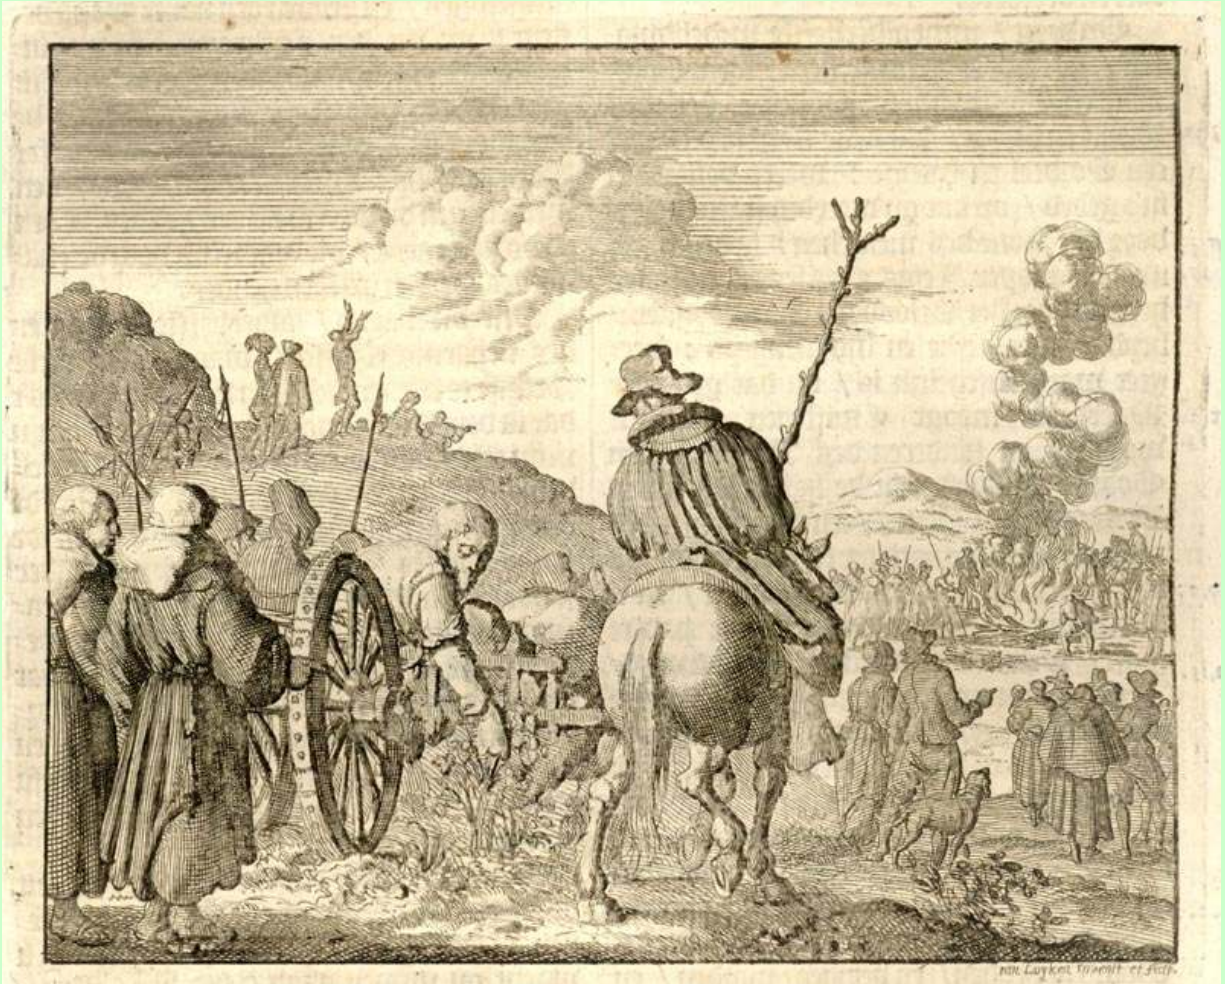

His eyes upraised saw not the glare Of torch on hooting crowd But far above the fagots' flare A rift within the cloud - A promise sent from God on high That hate should surely fail; No wealth could then His power defy Nor in the end prevail.

We seek not, Lord, to know the spell That wrought Thy will divine, We know Thou doest all things well; The miracle was Thine To cause the bonds to fall, to take From death all trace of pain And mark of fire, and then to make The flower to bloom again.

The fagots' blaze like noontide hours Gave vigor to truth's germ, And tears but seemed the summer showers To make its root more firm. Upon the Inn's dark ebbing tide The martyr's corse was thrown, A witness of his creed he died, A faith his children own.

Upon those waves the good ships bore Truth's fruitage to the sea Whose surges broke upon this shore Of peace and liberty. And Thou, O, God! whose hallowed hand Upheld the troubled sea Whereon our sires sailed to this land, We life our prayers to Thee.

To ask that for these kinsfolk here Thou wilt extend Thy care As when Thou mad'st the rift appear Above the fagots' flare; We thank Thee for Thy blessings given To all this gathered throng, And sing Thy Praises unto Heaven In one triumphant song.

John Young and Susannah Bechtel are my great grandparents. My Grandmother was Catherine Leah who married Bernard Byron Daily. I have pulled up the Census for 1870 and found John listed at the age of 51, Susannah at 53, Allen at 26, Samuel at 21, Amanda at 18, Henry 1/12 and my grandmother at age 14. John was born in 1814 and died Feb. 22, 1891 and Susannah was born in Washington township in berks Co. They were married in 1840. Susannah died March 4, 1896. I have been looking for this family for a long time and so it was truly a thrill to pull them up in the 1870 Census. Which child are you descended from? I might have more information for you. MAYBE!!!! And obviously we are related so it would be nice to know more about YOU.

Good luck,

His obituary appeared in the Venango Citizens Press, 22 Sep 1904, p. 1: "Isaac Bechtel. Mr. Isaac Bechtel died of heart disease at his home in Emlenton to-day. He was born in Berks county, Oct. 1, 1834, therefore being in his 70th year. He was married on Aug. 30, 1860, to Anna Maria Sterner, which union was blessed with eight children, four boys and four girls. One died in infancy at Bully Hill, where they resided for over 21 years and where the deceased was well known. Mr. Bechtel later moved to Emlenton, where he has resided ever since until death claimed him. He is mourned by his aged widow and the following children: John J., Frank D., George E., (Reuben, dying in infancy), Mrs. J. B. Hovis, of Barkeyville; Mrs. O. W. King, of Emlenton; Mrs. A. S. Beals, of Hoodville, and Lydia C. Bechtel, at home. He had 17 grandchildren and A. B. Young, of the Third Ward, is a nephew. Mr. Bechtel was a devoted husband and father and will be missed by all who knew him. He was a constant member of the Lutheran church of that place. The flowers were beautiful. The pall-bearers were his sons and sons-in-law."

In a letter from the Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church in Franklin, PA , Inez Martyna, the church secretary, found the following in their records:

Bechtel, Isaac was received into membership on 9/11/1881 by a transfer from another congregation and moved from the area (date unknown)

Bechtel Mariah (typo) was received into membership on 9/11/1881 by letter of transfer also and it noted that she moved (no date given).

Bechtel, John was confirmed on March 26, 1882

Bechtel, Mary Caroline was confirmed on March 26, 1882 and she moved (no date given)

Bechtel, Frank was confirmed on Easter Sunday, April 25, 1886

Bechtel, Lydia was confirmed on Easter Sunday, April 25, 1886

A photo copy of page 224 from an old Venango County History Book discusses the Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church with these select quotes:

“...the organization of a congregation, which was formally effected on Oct. 25, 1851, under the title of Grace Evangelical Lutheran Church. A lot for church purposes was secured at once. The erection of the church was begun in the following year, 1852, and the church was formally dedicated on Dec. 8, 1861. ...It embraced twenty members, namely: ...Isaac and Elizabeth Bechtel,...John and Susanna Young.

Thanks for the info. I have the following on Isaac and Ann (Sterner) Bechtel's family in the 1880 census:

John Isaac Bechtel

John Isaac Bechtel passed away at his home at Queen City, near Emlenton, PA, Wednesday evening, April 15, 1925 following an illness of about two weeks of pneumonia.[NL]Mr. Bechtel was born May 31, 1861, in Richland township, Clarion county, PA., and was a son of the late Isaac S. and Maria (Sterner) Bechtel, both deceased. He was united in marriage with Mary M. (Fry) Champion and their union was blessed with three children, who with their mother survive as follows: Frank W. and George Arthur Bechtel, of near Emlenton, and Miss Augusta Bechtel, at home. Two step-children, James Champion and Mrs. Earl Dunklke, also survived, together with 13 grandchildren and the following brothers and sisters: F. D. Bechtel and George E. Bethchl, of Emlenton, PA; Mrs. Elizabeth Hovis, of Bessemer, PA; Mrs. Mary King of Queen City; Mrs. Esther Beals and Miss Kate Bechtel of Hoodville.[NL]Mr. Bechtel spent his entire life in this community and followed farming in a small way. He was an ardent Democate and had the interests of that political party at heart. He was widely known both in his own and neighboring townships. He was a member of the Lutheran church at St. Petersburg.[NL]Funeral services will be held at the family home on Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock conducted by Rev. J. J. Gilbert, of St. Johns Reformed church , assisted by Rev. J. G. Ginader of the Methodist Episcopal church. Interment will be made in the St. Petersburg cemetery.

(II) David Shoup, son of the founder of the family in Pennsylvania, was born in Armstrong county, Pennsylvania, about the year 1800, died in 1889 at the age of eighty-nine years. He was a carpenter and cabinetmaker by trade, settling in Richland township where by his industry and thrift he acquired a considerable amount of property. He invested largely in real estate, owning at the time of his death some nine or ten farms. Oil was found on his land in great quantities so that he became very wealthy and grew to be a man of much influence in his community. He was a member of the Democratic party, and belonged to the Reformed church. He was twice married; his first wife was Rose Stokeley, by whom he had eight children, as follows: 1. Jonathan, who became a carpenter and died a young man. 2. William, who became a farmer in Clarion county, and lived to be very old. 3. Michael, who was killed in an oil well. 4. David, now deceased, who was a farmer and blacksmith, living in Clarion county. 5. Elizabeth, married Harrison Jones; now deceased. 6. Katherine, married David Holmes; died in Petersburg. 7. Susan, married Jack Myers; living at Fisher, Clarion county. 8. Sarah, married Jeremiah Textor; she died in 1911 at Monroeville. David Shoup's second wife was Levina Goughler, whom he met and married in Clarion county. She was born in Berks county, in the year 1818, daughter of Henry and Katherine (Cope) Goughler, both natives of that county. Mr. and Mrs. Goughler with their family removed to Clarion county about the year 1834, and settled on a farm in Beaver township, where they cleared and improved the land. They did not remain there long, however, removing to Richland township, where they purchased seventy-five acres of land and established the new home in which they passed the remainder of their lives. Mr. Goughler died in the fall of 1852, and his wife died some twenty-four years afterward, in 1876. He was a Democrat, and belonged to the Lutheran church, as did also his wife and children. There were fifteen children in the family, as follows: Tobias; Henry; Amos; Levina, who became Mrs. Shoup; Joshua; Samuel, still living at the age of ninety years; Charles; Tena, married Samuel Fry; Jacob; William, died in infancy; Katherine and Hannah, twins, the former married Henry Hoover, living in Brookville, Pennsylvania, and the latter married Solomon Foust; William M.; Rebecca, died in infancy; John, died in Montgomery county. Of these only William, Samuel, and Katherine are now living. Mrs. Shoup survived her husband more than ten years, dying about 1900. By his second marriage Mr. Shoup became the father of thirteen children, making twenty-one in all; these last were as follows: 9. John, a retired soldier and farmer; living in Clarion. 10. Franklin, deceased, a farmer and carpenter of Venango county, 11. Alfred, died in California of tuberculosis; was a farmer. 12. Solomon, an oil man, living in Robinson, Illinois. 13. Barney Ersinus, of whom further. 14. Richard, a ranchman, living in Los Angeles, California. 15. James, died aged five years. 16. Alice, died aged two years. 17. Polly, married James Shirey, now deceased; she is living in North Baltimore, Ohio. 18. Hannah, married Samuel Bostoph; living near St. Petersburg, Pennsylvania. 19. Rebecca, married Samuel Best; living in Clarion county. 20. Nancy, married John French; living in Clarion county. 21. Ellen, widow of George Richey; she resides at Rich Grove, California.

(III) Barney Ersinus, son of David and Levina (Goughler) Shoup, was born February 18, 1859, on a nearby farm in Richland township. He was reared on the farm and received his education in the Antwerp public schools. At the conclusion of his studies he engaged in oil pumping, operating on his father's farms until the latter's death, when he inherited fiftytwo acres. He bought an additional ten acres of oil land, and continued his operations on these two places until his death, November 7, 1909. He was also interested at one time in the Alamo Gas Company; was a man of influence in the community, public-spirited and progressive. In politics he was a Democrat, belonged to the Reformed church, and was a member of the Order of Maccabees.

On April 29, 1882, he married Edith, born in Clarion county, Pennsylvania, February 15, 1865, daughter of Carlisle and Elizabeth (Hoffman) Campbell; she is a member of the Reformed church. Her parents were both natives of Venango county, where they were probably married, and passed their lives there; they were both members of the Methodist Episcopal church. Her father, who was an oil driller, died about the year 1907; her mother is still living. Mrs. Shoup's paternal grandparents were William and Elizabeth Campbell, deceased, who were old residents of Venango county. He was a farmer, and had in all sixteen children. Mr. and Mrs. Shoup have had five children, as follows: 1. Bert G., born December 14, 1882; telegraph operator, living in Kittanning; married Monica Wold; has one child, Alice. 2. David C., born April 5, 1884; he manages the farm and is living at home, unmarried. 3. Etta E., born December 6, 1886; wife of Forest Ashbaugh and lives in Richland township, having two children, Helen and Roy. 4. Roy, born November 12, 1888; unmarried; lives at home. 5. Arminta, born March 26, 1890, died in infancy.

Lötscher Family Name<sup>105</sup>

(Latschar, Lachat, Lörsch, Lörtscher, Latschaw, Lotshaw, Leutscher, Lötscher)

A Mennonite family name, derives from Lötscher from Latterbach near Erlenbach in the Simmental, canton of Bern, Switzerland. The first member of this family known to have been an Anabaptist was Hans Lötscher, who was born in Latterbach in 1601. He wrote a hymn of 41 stanzas entitled "Ein schön new geistlich Lied." In 1633 he married Anna Kammerer from Latterbach. The three oldest of their five children, Hans, Melchior, and Anna, were brought before the Täuferkommission in Bern because of their Anabaptist beliefs. They remained true to their faith and were imprisoned. The brothers Hans and Melchior escaped in 1667 but were soon returned to prison. After four years in prison at Bern they were sentenced to galley service with four other Anabaptists in 1671-73. They returned to claim their inheritance from their father, who had died while they were away, but were refused it. In 1667, while imprisoned at Bern, Hans Lötscher wrote a letter which is preserved in the Martyrs' Mirror (E 1129-30), in which he lists some 40 persons who met death in Bern because of their Anabaptist faith. Abraham Lötscher, youngest brother of Hans and Melchior, immigrated to Holland in 1711, where the name soon became Leutscher. A number of his descendants have been Mennonite leaders in that country.

The family name takes the form Latscha and Latschar in the Palatinate and in North America. About 1714 Hans Heinrich Lötscher emigrated from the Simmental to Alsace, and later to the Palatinate, Germany, where he settled on Kühbörncheshof near Katzweiler. His children settled in various Palatinate Mennonite communities. One son, Johannes Franz, immigrated to Pennsylvania. The chief homes of the family in North America have been Berks Co., Pa. and Waterloo Co., Ont.

Martyr's Mirror text:

At the close of the German edition of the Martyrs' Mirror an extract was received and inserted which Hans Lcersch had copied out of the Tower Book at Berne, and which has been preserved by Christian Kropff; the same reads as follows:

According to Frank Bechtel Jr., Harold Bechtel drowned in a bucket of water. Mary Grace Holliday Bechtel was called out to help her husband, Frank W. Bechtel Sr. unload a wagon or truck. During this time the baby, a toddler, may have been playing in the water and fell in headfirst. All of her life, Mary Grace Holliday Bechtel believed that a neighbor with which they were feuding, came in the back of the house during this time and put the baby in the bucket of water. She said she thought she saw her coming from the back of the house. Harold is buried next to his mother in Zion Union (Old Zion) Cemetery, Richland Twp., Venango Cty., Pennsylvania.

Bechtel, Frank Sr., 87, of Emlenton, died on Tuesday. He was born in St. Petersburg, a son of the late John and Mary Fry Bechtel. Murder victim, family described as 'loners'

By ERIN SCHATTAUER

Neighbors in Knox say the couple kept to themselves. Tucked between other similar avenues and alleyways, Best Avenue is part of a small residential community just a few blocks from downtown Knox. Just before the lightly traveled lane turns from residential to commercial, there sits a two-story brick home that, in the hazy afternoon heat, stands out no more than any of the other modest homes on the block. But a few days ago it did.

Late last week the residence at 332 Best Ave. buzzed with police, emergency personnel and those curious about the commotion. It was there that police say Michael Savard, 37, a chef by trade, repeatedly plunged a large kitchen knife into his live-in girlfriend's chest, killing the woman. The alleged crime occurred at about 10 p.m. Wednesday, July 4 - Independence Day. It wasn't until nearly 17 1/2 hours later, around 3:30 p.m. Thursday, July 5, that police found O'Neil's body on the home's kitchen floor.

When police arrived at the home, they found a conscious but blood-splattered Savard, clutching a bloody knife in the upstairs bathroom. It's unclear what transpired in the hours between O'Neil's death and the time police found Savard barricaded in the bathroom. Police are continuing to investigate and "aren't 100 percent" sure of what took place during that span of time. "Anything I would say would be speculation and nothing more than that," Knox Borough Police Chief Stephen Bilunka said Tuesday. "The investigation is still going on, and we have to be careful what we say here," he added.

After police found Savard, he was taken by ambulance to the Clarion Hospital. It was at the hospital that Savard told police he killed O'Neil.

Not much is known about the couple who neighbors say kept to themselves. O'Neil was born in Clarion, according to her obituary. She was a graduate of Allegheny-Clarion Valley High School. Her degree was in counseling and she worked with disabled individuals. The 31-year-old mother of four has been described as a quiet woman. It's unclear how she met Savard, a former Brooklyn, N.Y., resident. Bilunka said the couple had been together since about 2003 or 2004, but refused to give more details of their relationship. Before moving to Knox in January, Savard lived a variety of places locally - Seneca, Oil City, Marble, Bilunka said. In that time, he probably had 20 or 30 jobs, Bilunka said. "He'd hold down a job for two weeks and get fired or quit for some reason," he said. His last job was at an Allegheny County restaurant. All the jobs were related to his profession, Bilunka said.

The house where the couple once lived with their son and O'Neil's three other children and the yard where neighbors once saw the children play is now still. A man who lives next door to the house described its former occupants as "loners." Having lived on Best Avenue for nearly 38 years, the man is able to point to various houses that dot the street and rattle off the names of their occupants. Those who occupy the homes now, as well as those who did years ago. Some residents, newer ones, he isn't too familiar with, though. That's how he described Savard and O'Neil, who had rented the home since January. Sometime in early spring, the neighbor said he made an effort to speak to Savard when he was outside. The man said he offered for the children to play in his yard.

Savard didn't say anything in return, just nodded, the man said. "It wasn't a friendly gesture at all," the man said.

O'Neil was also quiet, the man said. He would occasionally see her on her way to and from work, he assumed.

"I saw her going and coming," the neighbor said. "She always had her head down." Her demeanor is something that troubled the man. "We will never know for sure, but I believe she was a woman living in captivity," he said.

Having lived in the area since October 1969, the man was shaken by the news of the stabbing. "This is a nice town. This is a beautiful little town," he said. "The neighborhood's quiet and friendly." And, this week, the neighborhood was quiet once again.

The house where a young mother met her tragic end stood silent. A few blocks away, the downtown community of Knox hummed with the sounds of people going about their daily routines. When asked, residents can't remember the last time a murder took place in the sleepy borough. Even Bilunka can't easily recall it. Twenty, 30, maybe 40 years have passed, he said.

Coroner: Woman dead 17 1/2 hours

Knox murder victim Jennifer O'Neil died around 10 p.m. July 4, according to the report.

KNOX<sup>117</sup> - A Knox woman was dead for about 17 1/2 hours before her body was found in the kitchen of her rented two-story brick home the following afternoon, a coroner's report revealed.

Jennifer O'Neil, a 31-year-old mother of four, died of multiple stab wounds to the trunk area and died around 10 p.m. Wednesday, July 4, in her home at 332 Best Ave., Clarion County Coroner Terry Shaffer said Sunday. O'Neil's body was discovered by police at about 3:30 p.m. the following day. Her live-in boyfriend, Michael Savard, 37, described as a chef and sculptor, was charged with criminal homicide, aggravated assault and simple assault in O'Neil's death. O'Neil's body was found by police who were summoned to the home Thursday after they received a concerned call from the victim's family. Upstairs, police found a blood-splattered but conscious Savard barricaded in a bathroom, a bloody knife in his right hand. Savard was transported to Clarion Hospital where police say he admitted to killing O'Neil and attempting to kill himself.

Officials also said Savard told them he believed O'Neil was cheating on him and that he had received messages from an unknown person. O'Neil, Savard and four children had been renting the Knox home since late January. The children were not home at the time of the incident, according to Clarion County District Attorney Mark Aaron. A preliminary hearing for Savard is scheduled for Aug. 8 at the office of District Judge Amy Long in Knox.

Police: Murder suspect describes assault

By HEATHER LESKANIC

Members of the state police crime lab of Erie and criminal investigation unit of Clarion finish processing and gathering evidence at the Best Avenue residence in Knox where Jennifer O'Neil was found dead Thursday. Michael Savard, who lived at the home with O'Neil, faces homicide charges.

KNOX — Authorities continued their investigation Friday into a violent homicide in Knox Borough that tragically left one woman dead and four children without their mother.

Michael Savard, 37, a former Brooklyn, N.Y., resident, is in the Clarion County jail with no bail set on charges of criminal homicide, aggravated assault and simple assault in the stabbing death of Jennifer O'Neil, 31. Knox Borough police Chief Stephen Bilunka filed a police affidavit with District Judge Amy Long in Knoxville that included a stated confession by the defendant. O'Neil's body was found by police about 3:30 p.m. Thursday after they received a concerned call from the victim's family. She had been stabbed numerous times in the face, neck and chest area during the assault with a large chef's knife at 332 Best Ave., according to the affidavit.

A preliminary hearing is tentatively set for Aug. 8 at Long's office. No attorney has been named to the case.

Tragedy touches community

"It's such a tragedy," Knoxville resident Dawn Geiser said Friday as she handled a yard sale at her Main Street residence. "I feel terribly for the family that lost her." During the conversation, Geiser related she had been verbally abused by her former husband and made the move to leave after he tried to strangle her one night while he was in a drunken stupor. "I got away from him as quick as I could," said Geiser. "I packed up the next day and left with my daughter." She urges anyone who is in an abusive relationship to leave and seek the assistance of a shelter such as SAFE in Clarion "so you are safe and nothing like this happens to you." "I've had a lot of counseling in my life," said Geiser, who is now happily married to local firefighter Kenneth Geiser. "You can make a recovery." She also said those who suspect domestic violence is taking place should report it to police.

This is "a real problem in this country," said Geiser. Too often, she said, abusive situations only escalate after episodes get swept under the rug. She married her husband last October. But she still deals with the aftermath of the attack — her voice is weak due to vocal injuries she suffered.

Investigation continues

Clarion County District Attorney Mark Aaron said an autopsy that was scheduled to be conducted Friday in Erie would reveal a more specific time for O'Neil's death. Reports from sources indicated O'Neil was killed sometime Wednesday evening. Savard and O'Neil and four children had been renting the two-story brick home since late January from Frank Battista. Bilunka said officials from the Erie crime lab were finishing up the review of evidence inside the home on Friday. The home would then be released to Battista, Bilunka said. None of the children were home at the time of the incident, Aaron said. They are reportedly staying with family members.

Battista said he rented the house to the couple mainly after meeting the children. He said Savard worked as a chef at the convention center in Allegheny County and was also a sculptor. He described O'Neil as very quiet.

Aaron said her body was found in the kitchen while Savard was barricaded in the upstairs bathroom. No law enforcement officials were injured in the incident, he said. "Savard was lying on the bathroom floor" with a bloody knife in his right hand and blood on his person, court papers said. "He was conscious on the floor," said Aaron. State police Cpl. Mark Bettwy gave Savard his Miranda warning on the way to Clarion Hospital in an ambulance.

Suspect gives statements

Police said he gave his statements at the hospital in response to questions by medical personnel and troopers.

The criminal affidavit quoted Savard as saying, in part, "I killed Jennifer O'Neil . . . I killed her last night . . . I tried to kill myself . . . I pushed her — she grabbed a knife. She tried to hit me with it. I blocked it and got the knife. She tried to leave. I grabbed her ankle. I stabbed her in the back — I lost it." He also told officials he believed she was cheating on him and that he had received messages from an unknown person. Aaron said a search warrant was obtained for Savard's blood sample, but he was not aware of any tests being completed.

Others in the community were quick to express shock at the extreme nature of the crime in their own backyard.

"Think of the poor children now with no mother," said resident Edy Kagle. Geiser said parents should teach their children manners, common courtesy and respect for others. She said she moved back to the area from Pittsburgh following the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. "I feel safer here," said Geiser. "It's a pretty safe community."

Knox man found guilty of first-degree murder<sup>118</sup>

A Clarion County jury found Michael Anthony Savard guilty of murder Thursday. Clarion County District Attorney Mark T. Aaron said Savard was found guilty of first-degree murder, which carries a mandatory sentence of life in prison without parole. The jury began deliberations at about 10 a.m. and was back in court with their decision after about five hours. Savard also was found guilty of aggravated assault and simple assault. Aaron said he was pleased with the jury's verdict.

"Obviously myself, the Knox Borough Police Department and the family are very pleased with the verdict," Aaron said. "This brings closure to a long nightmare of the family of Jennifer O'Neil. We're very happy that in the end, justice was done with the first-degree murder conviction. It won't bring the family's daughter and children's mother back, but justice was done in the matter." Sentencing will be scheduled at a later date.

Savard, who didn't testify during the two-day trial, was sentenced in December 2008 to 25 to 50 years in prison for third-degree murder under a plea bargain agreement in Clarion County Court. Later, Savard contended his original attorney court-appointed public defender Scott White provided ineffective assistance and shouldn't have advised Savard to accept a plea bargain. He was granted a new trial. That trial got under way Tuesday afternoon after a day and a half was spent selecting jurors. Aaron opened the trial recounting the events that led to O'Neil's death and Savard's actions after O'Neil, the mother of four children including a son she had with Savard — was stabbed to death. Savard's attorney, Joseph Ryan, opened his remarks saying his client didn't deny he killed O'Neil. However, Ryan argued his client didn't act with the premeditated malice required to convict him of first-degree murder. Aaron also recounted the confessions Savard made following his arrest to an emergency room doctor and state police during which he said he killed O'Neil and then attempted to kill himself. Ryan said there was no doubt Savard killed O'Neil, but added Savard was distraught after confronting O'Neil about her alleged affairs with other men and planned on killing himself.

Frank's story in his own words

I was born August 14, 1931 in a two story home on White Hall Road near Emlenton, Pennsylvania.

My parents were Frank W Bechtel Sr. and Mary Grace Holliday Bechtel.

My mother told me about my father in their younger lives. My father quit school in the third grade to work in the oil fields. He was the water boy, carrying water to the adult workers. At that time there were many drilling rigs in the oil fields near his home, so transportation to and from the fields was no problem. There was plenty of work for everyone.

This way, he was able to help out at home to support his younger sisters and brothers. He stayed in the oil fields until his father died. In the mean time, he met my mother at the White Hall campgrounds. They fell in love and were married. During this time he developed a taste for beer. He became an alcoholic. There were many days that some one picked him up out of a ditch and carried him home and put him to bed to sleep the drunkenness off. He would not remember who picked him up or where he was when he woke up.

Frank Bechtel Jr. (right) and His Brother Marion Laverne

My mother was born Mary Grace Holiday. My first remembrance of life was my father inheriting my Grandfather's business as removing garbage from the residents of Emlenton and dumping it on the Allegheny River beaches with a team of horses hitched to a large wagon. However, the residents down (river) complained about the pollution that was flowing on the surface of the river. The largest complaint came from Pittsburgh because their drinking water came from the Allegheny River. As the federal marshals tracked the source of the pollution, my father was told that he could no longer dump the garbage on the river bank. Dad and mother had to find some other place to dump the garbage. Their home was built on a small lot that was not capable of handling the garbage. They found a place of 3 acres across the woods from their present home that was for sale. The home that was on this place caught on fire and burnt completely down and left part of the foundation that was a basement. There was a one room shed down in the middle of the acreage.

My parents had a very good friend in a man named, Ed and his second wife Bessie. Now Ed had a very fine and strong team of horses. Ed had made an old school house into a home. This home has a stairway to the first floor approximately twenty feet above ground. The stairway was surrounded with a floor and roof to make a porch.

Ed's first wife supposedly died giving birth to a baby girl named Marie. The reason I say supposedly is because at some time before the little girl was born, Ed was out in the field with his team of horses, plowing a field for planting when he saw a storm approaching. He hurried and unhitched his team, crawled upon one of the horses and hurried home. Nearing his home, he saw the sheriff's horse and buggy setting off the road. Fearing the worst, he hurriedly put his team into the barn and ran to the house only to find the sheriff in bed with his wife. He grabbed his shotgun leaning against the wall and being always loaded, snapped the safe off. The sheriff, hearing this, jumped out of bed and grabbing his pants, tried to jump the rail of the porch. He did not make it. While he was in the air, Ed fired and the sheriff hit the ground and rolled right into the buggy. The noise of the gun firing and the dead body rolling over the hill spooked the team and they took off in a dead run. Like horses do when they are frightened, they headed to the stable in town with the buggy that held the dead body of the sheriff. To this day, no one ever found out how and where the sheriff was killed. But I know.

Back to the 3 acres. Ed brought his team over to my parents 3 acres, hitched them up to the large one room shed that would be our home. My father and my brother, Elmer<sup>119</sup>, each had steel bars to help the team pull the shed up to the basement wall. They were behind the building prying forward and the team was on the other end pulling. With a lot of straining and hard work between the men and the team, the building began to move. After a hard days work, the building was placed next to the old foundation.

My uncle's father was a carpenter by trade. He and my father build two rooms on the old foundation. Now the one room shed became our kitchen and the two newly built rooms became our living room and my parent's bedroom.

My mother cooked on a wood coal stove and we heated the balance of the house with a pot bellied stove in the living room. There was a natural gas line installed into the house. The only thing it was used for (were) the lights on the living room and kitchen. The electric lines were not constructed from the electric company's generators through this part of the country. Only Emlenton had electricity.

My father built pig pens. Most of these pens were made from slabs that the saw mills could not use and my father hauled away for free. After the pens were built, the (remaining) slabs became our fuel to heat the house. One was for our 3 brood sows and one for the boars. The feeding of the pigs was no problem. The people of Emlenton would throw their food scraps directly into one garbage can and all other garbage into a second can. Each home used 2 garbage cans. There were three, fifty five gallon drums on the front of the bed of the truck. The slop was dumped into one and all of the other was in the bed of the truck. When the truck was loaded, then my father or my brother, (mostly my brother) backed the truck up to the garbage pile and emptied into the pig pen for the pigs to eat. A chicken (coop) was built from wood picked up after the carpenters were through building or repairing the homes of the Emlenton people. Everything that could be used was used. Baby chicks were bought and sent to us in the mail until we had enough hens to be able to start our own.

In the spring my mother planted a half acre garden. What vegetables we did not eat, she canned for the winter. Some of the vegetables were sold between times when there wasn't any newborn pigs or eggs to sell. The chickens were kept for the eggs. The eggs that wasn't sold was eaten or baked in bread, pies and cakes. Some of the eggs were used for hatching chicks by putting them under a hen that wanted to be a mother. However, the oldest chickens were eaten on Sunday when relatives and friends showed up for supper.

My family are hunters. This was the only way we ever ate meat. In summertime we ate ground hog. In the fall was rabbit, squirrel, pheasant, raccoon and possum. In the wintertime we ate venison. Always what was not eaten was canned for the leaner times when none of the wild meat was available.

The pigs were kept to breed and after the newborn pigs were born they were sold to buy cloth to be made into clothes and pay utility bills.

We did not have electricity. All of the lights were natural gas pipes with contraptions on the ends that held the mantels. When the mantels got hot, they would give off a bright glow that lit up the room. The radio was powered by wet cell batteries. These batteries were recharged by a wind charger. This was a contraption that had a generator that was attached to a prop similar to an airplane's propeller. The wind would turn the propeller and a shaft would turn the generator.

My father would make bee hives out of used lumber from the wooden slabs. The honey was used as remedies for cold sufferers, also to sweeten lemon aid, added to pie crusts and any other delicacy that required sugar. The bees and the wind charger never got along. When the wind would blow and the prop turned, the bees thought it was a big bee eating bird and they would attack it. However the prop would win and cut the attacking bee in two. The parts would fall onto the ground. After a short time, there were many bees lying on the ground.

In summer I never wore shoes because the money was scarce. I only had one pair and they were reserved for dress shoes. I suffered many bee stings on the bottoms of my feet every time I would walk out into the back yard. But the toilet was near the building where the charger was placed so I had no other choice but to walk into the back yard.

My sister Grace fell in love with Harvey Murry and they were married. Now, we never had a front porch in the house. In those days, when a couple would marry, the neighborhood that consisted of many miles in the area, would come to the bride and groom's place of abode and serenade them. This consisted of band saws from saw mills and garbage cans being beaten on with hammers. There was a tremendous amount of noise that could be heard for miles in all directions that brought many more people to the occasion. After all of the noise stopped, candy was distributed to all of the participants. They would boost him (the groom) up and bump his head on the porch ceiling to designate a happy marriage with many ups and downs that had to be solved by using your head. But since we had no porch they boosted Harvey up and bumped his head against the house. The couple stayed overnight and then went to their rented home that was a few miles away. Harvey's nickname was Ike.

My father and his friend was into manufacturing corn whiskey. Ed had an old vacated coal mine several hundred feet behind his house in the wooded area. Ed would have many corn fields in corn and many corn cribs that would be filled for the winter. But of course the animals could not even begin to eat all of that corn and so there was much corn to be used in making the whiskey. In those days, the grocery stores would get hard tack candy in buckets and then sell the candy either by the piece or by the pound. After the buckets were empty, they would throw them out in the rubbish for my father to take away. My father would carry the bucket with a burlap bag in the bucket. The whiskey would be put into the candy pail and a burlap sack would cover it. When my father went to a customer's house, open, his garbage can and pick up the money. Then he would take the whiskey out of the candy pale and empty the customer's garbage into the pale. The whiskey would be placed in the inside bottom of the garbage can. After a few years, federal men came to visit the area. My father and ED were scared they would be caught and that was the end of the whiskey business forever.

I was now old enough to go to school. This was something I disliked very much, I walked with my sister and some of the other school children toward the school. Our teacher, Mrs. Adams, a neighbor, drove a car to school and picked up everyone that was walking, which included my sister and myself. Mrs. Adams parked the car across the highway from the school and everyone got out and started across. There was a large culvert next to the car. As the others were chatting and walking across the road, I walked into the culvert. No one missed me. When everyone had entered the school, I ran out of the culvert and headed home. I kept looking back and leisurely walked through the field toward home. I looked back and saw some children come out of the school throwing a ball back and forth. Then they saw me and started to run back into the school. I knew they had seen me and I started to run. Being little and having short legs, I could not run very fast. The teacher sent three eight graders after me. They soon caught up with me and literally drug me back to school. My brother Marion Lavern, was born shortly after. I resented him because I was the center of attention, now someone was taking my place and I was neglected. I felt really left out until one day when I was playing ball with my friend Leland when Marion pulled his little wagon near Leland. And just as Leland started to swing, Marion stood up. Leland's bat caught the end of it under his left eye. The eye spouted blood and then I found out how much Marion really meant to me. Especially when my mother tried to stop the bleeding by using a cloth dipped in a tub of water under the water well and the water turned blood red.

I continued in the East Home School until when I was playing football, I went out for a pass, caught it and ran for a touchdown. I bent down close to the ground when a player from the other side that was chasing me tripped and buried his knee into my skull. I suffered a concussion. I sat on the steps of the school in a half dazed and very painful headache. The teacher came out and told me to go home. I started home but the pain was so great that I was crying very loudly. Two women that lived in a house close to the road that I traveled heard me. They ran out and took me inside their living room and laid me on their couch and called my parents. My mother and dad came in a few minutes and took me to a doctor. The doctor told my parents to rush me to Franklin Hospital, which they did. I remember my dad carried me in to the hospital and then I passed out. I do not remember anything for several hours. When I woke up my mother had told me that I was jumping around holding my head until she held me down until I went to sleep. I felt much better and my head stopped hurting. The nurse came in and I was discharged. My mother was very angry and went to the school board and demanded that they would allow me to go to a different school. Finally after the board measured distances between East Home School and White Hall School came to the conclusion that White Hall School was closer.

My brother, Elmer, and my sister, Thelda, in beginning of their second year of high school quit school. Elmer took over the garbage route and acquired his own customers and was able to buy a used car. My sister Thelda in the mean time was getting restless to find a husband. So they paired up and double dated for a while. Thelda tired with this arrangement and mover to Pittsburgh. There she met Steve and she brought him home to live with. However, Steve was a deserter from the Navy. One day, early in the morning, Shore Police came and surrounded the house with guns drawn. They entered the house and took Steve in custody and took him away. We never heard from him again. Elmer found Marie in Pertola (Petrolia?) and married her. They moved to Florida where Elmer worked in a fruit packaging plant. Their first child was born and they named her Joyce.

We lived this way for many years, but my mother was not happy with this arrangement. She then devised a plan to be able to move into a larger home. My mother went to an auction. There was an elderly lady nearby that died. All of her belongings including her home was up for sale and the auction. My mother bid and bought the house that had 40 acres attached to it. It was what she always wanted, a two story, three bedroom home. Not only did we have a huge garden, but also a huge chicken coop. A colored family bought and moved into our old house on White Hall Road. My mother and the colored lady (Birdie) became friends. Birdie came from the Squirrel Hill area of Pittsburgh. My mother was driving an automobile at this time and she had many chickens. She would kill 12 to 20 chickens and dress them to sell. Since Birdie came from Pittsburgh's colored section, my mother would take those dressed chickens in a wash tub in the back seat of her car and Birdie beside her to Pittsburgh. Birdie would direct her where to go to sell the dressed chickens and even helped her to sell them. Mother soon paid off her mortgage and was very happy once again. Birdie stayed a best friend until death took her away.

I was old enough now to work on the garbage route with my father. I would get up at 6AM every morning and work with my dad. We worked until noon. I then would ride my bicycle to the neighbor's dairy farm and work until dark. Sunday was the only day I could sleep in and rest up because the balance of the week was all work. I saved my money from the dairy farm to buy whatever I wanted and opened a savings account at the local bank. So my dad would not take it from me.

When I turned 16, I got my driver's license. Now my father did not go with me on the garbage route. I did it all myself. When it was time to go back to school, I drove the garbage truck to school and after school I would work the garbage route, just so I would be able to go all day out to St. Mary's, Pennsylvania and haul for Emil's Store. In my free time I would work at the dairy farm and our farm I had made enough money for my parents to pay off on of their two trucks. My father wanted me to quit school and work the trucks. I told my father no matter what, I was going to graduate and get my diploma from High School. I lived this way until I turned 17 and graduated from High School.

Thelda Bechtel Price and Husband Cletus Price

In my last years of school, I had taken religious education as one of (the) elective classes. I studied in the Presbyterian Church for one year and the Methodist Church for one year. I had quit going to my old church (Old Zion). Now my evenings were mostly running around in my car with my friend Paul.

One day I was driving my car on Route 38 between Emlenton and Marienville when I passed a pretty girl wearing a green coat walking towards Emlenton. At 17 I joined the Navy. I was sent to Pittsburgh and had a physical. From there I was sent by train to Chicago, Illinois, then another transfer to a train station where it took me to the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. I was kept a few days and underwent another physical. I was kept in the infirmary. Finally, the doctor came to me and said I had a rupture and if I wanted to stay in the Navy, I would have to have surgery. Otherwise I would have to take a discharge. I said I would take the discharge and I was sent home.

I went back to my parent's home and back to the old way before I joined the Navy. In the meantime, I was dating the girl in the green coat. I fell in love with her. I wanted to live my life with her. I had accepted a job at Conchulla's service station seven nights a week from 10PM to 6 AM.

I would take her home to my parents place for her to visit my parents and get acquainted with them. Then my father told me to never bring that girl into this house. This really hurt me and angered me to no end. I belted back, "if this girl is not welcomed in your house, then neither am I". I walked out of the house never to go back again. I slept in my car many days until my girl told her mother about the situation. Her mother convinced my girl's father to let me stay in their house. However, this situation was not working either. My girl, Laura, and I said we must do something drastic. We decided to run off together and go to Florida. We got to Maryland and was running out of money. I sold the car and we took a bus to Jacksonville, Florida.

Elmer Bechtel and 2nd wife, Doris

I looked for a job, but being a northerner, any job was hard to find. Laura went to work in a restaurant on the evening shift while I hunted for something to bring money in so we could get a decent place to live. Then I went to the restaurant and found out that some sailors were harassing her. I said to hell with this place, I will find something which, the next morning, I found work with a service station that also had a new car warehouse. After my first paycheck, we rented a small apartment. I worked there several weeks and we moved again. It seemed that wherever we went, the large roaches were everywhere. There were times when you would be eating a meal and you had to hold you plate well above the table, otherwise the roaches would crawl into your plate and eat too. You would walk down the street at night and you could hear them crunch under your feet as you walked.

Laura and I made some friends that were getting married in Folkston, Georgia. You only had to be 18 years old in Georgia to be married. We went and were married by a Justice of the Peace on September 10, 1950. I just turned 19 in August and Laura was going to be 19 two days after we were married.

Laura went to work at Kresge's five and dime store. There no one messed with her. I found a new job at All Right Parking Lot. With both of us working we began to save money to pay our way back home. We were married now and no one could ever come between us.

We moved again to a new apartment. This apartment was on the third floor and now we finally got away from the roaches. We were there a couple of months. We killed one roach. While there, there was a hurricane that came through. I was at work this time and everyone was running for shelter. Since I had never seen a hurricane before, it was hard for me to understand what it was all about. We soon had all of the automobiles out of the parking lot. I went home and my wife was already there. We sat together and looked out of the window at all of the people running as if some monster was chasing them.

Frank Bechtel and Laura Lutsko Dating ~ 18 years old

I wrote home to the Quaker State Refinery for a job. I received word back that if I could be there at a certain day that I had a job. Now we had enough money to pay our way home. We went to the bus station and got our tickets as far as Butler, because the bus did not go to Emlenton. But the Pennsylvania Railroad had a passenger train that ran from Butler to Emlenton. We arrived in Emlenton and walked north on Main Street to a home that rented out rooms and rented a room.

We proceeded to call Laura's parents. Laura told them we were in Emlenton in our rented room. They were so surprised and happy to hear that we were home that they said, "Why are you there when you have a home right here with us? Your father is on his way down to bring you two home right now." We asked the woman who rented the home if she could refund our money. I had known her from the old garbage days when I used to do my father's garbage route. She said no trouble and gave our money back. Laura's father came in his truck and took us to his house. We now had a home and I had a job.

Franks and Laura Bechtel's 50th Wedding Anniversary

I found a ride with one of the workers at the refinery. The job was digging a large hole in the ground to pour a cement base and build a holding tank for the refined oil. There were times when there was not enough workers to work in the many buildings that processed the raw oil. One of these such places was the paraffin wax house. On one occasion, I was sent there to load 55 gallon drums of wax into railroad freight cars. The drums came down a conveyor belt to the floor below that was level with the floor of a railroad car. I then would slightly tip the drum so I could roll it into the railroad car. Then it happened. Some of the wax got on the conveyor belt that came down to the filling floor and to my floor (loading floor). The next drum was set down and filled on the conveyor belt was set on the wax. The drum full of wax with the lid pressed on started to slide down the belt. When it hit the floor, it had picked up speed and lost the lid and went sideways pouring wax on the floor and also over me. Then it really happened. It was one of those winter days when it was freezing outside and the wax on me started to solidify. I took a couple of steps. I looked like a statue. The wax hardened and I could not move. One of the workers said he had an extra pair of pants that he could loan me. At least now I am able to walk.

John Bechtel at age 4, 18, 25 and 55

I was born on March 1, 1954 around 6:00 AM on a cold and rainy day. At about 2 years old I remember mom and dad going out and leaving me with his cousin, George Bechtel. Mom wore a black coat with a fur collar. I still recall the chair they put me in and the red pattern of the linoleum floor. George's wife gave me multiple stuffed animals and a kitten to hold. I reached down and picking up the kitten, but I was scared and wouldn't talk to anyone. This was all confirmed by George's wife in 2001. She was quite surprised at the accuracy of my memory at such young age as well as after all those years.

John Bechtel at about 3 years old.

This is the first photo (above) I can remember posing for at Grandpa and Grandma Lutsko's home on Richey Run It was known as Agnew Mills. Grandpa Lutsko said I should stand up straight. I was about 3 or 4. We used to play with the puppies under the porch of his house. I was named after Grandpa (John Lutsko) and my middle name, Walter, was from my dad's middle name. Upon becoming interested in genealogy, I would find that the name "Walter" was handed down from my great-grandfather's brother-in-law Walter Othello King. He was married to Mary Caroline Bechtel and is pictured in this book.

Historical Note: James F. Agnew established the first carding mill, on Ritchey's run, two miles from its mouth. At the time of his death, August 21, 1878, he had been postmaster here more than fifty years, and was probably the oldest postmaster in point of service in the United States. The place was known as Agnew's Mills. The house, long since fallen was the house my grandparents lived in.

Grandma Lutsko was my mother's step-mother. Her biological mother died of tuberculosis when Mom was about 4 years old. Grandma Lutsko loved us as one of her own and, unlike modern times, she remained family to us and for us until the day she died. The holidays were always filled with her Slavish food and baked goods. We were always genuinely welcomed though Mom and Dad seemed to be annoyed by her constant query of "When are you coming to see me" when we had not been to the house in a while. Her chicken soup with homemade noodles was famous. Mom spoke of some rocky stories when she was young. One of the most prevalent stories were how, at 5, grandma took away her toys and gave her a broom. But to this day, mom's organizational skills are superb and in my career, I am known for that ability. Other stories include the time that Mom was put into a fresh air camp. I think that it had something to do with Grandpa's first battle with tuberculosis. Times were tough back then. As a result, to this day, mom hates tapioca pudding, a constant at the camp. They eventually moved to Emlenton, Pa. With grandpa hoping that the country would help his tuberculosis. Pittsburgh was not a great place to live if you were poor in those days. Grandpa worked as a police officer in McKeesport and spent a stint in jail; for what I don't know. Most of his family lived in Pittsburgh and still does. We eventually lost touch with them as the old family died off. My favorite was grandpa's sister, Elizabeth Tovlin. She was a boisterous lady for all the time I remember her. Her and her husband, Uncle Toby, would Camp out at Tionesta campgrounds for 3 months at a time. Riding motorcycles at 60 years old, she exemplifies my own spirit and drive (and my occasional fowl mouth). I have fond memories of cookouts, riding in Uncle Toby's boat on the lake and overall, just the fun times visiting them.

So that brings me to about 5 years old and kindergarten. We lived at 705 East Second Street, in Oil City, Pa. I spent one year at Grant Street School and have notable memories. Not being able to find my name tag the first day was one dilemma I recall. Though Joe, my brother and I fought constantly, he sat crying at the back gate my entire first half day of school. After all these years, when I see him, it still comes to mind and is so endearing to me. He is my brother, but he is a great friend as well.

The other occasion is the "voices" that haunted me. They kept calling my name. I specifically remember the teacher trying to calm me down on one incident. At that age it was real to me. I was caught cheating in Kindergarten. I looked over at another student's test, as I didn't know how many pennies were in a nickel! One time at the Easter party, the teacher made me sit until I ate my Easter cookie, a marshmallow fill in which the texture made me gag. I sat in the chair and refused to eat it until mom came and picked me up. And finally there was the wall. The back of the school was on a hill and there was a one story wall the distance of a one lane alleyway from the school. No one was allowed on the wall, but one day, I snuck up there to see if I could jump it. At 5 I leaped of the wall to the cement, one story below. I remember landing in a squatting position, but more so, I remember the pain. Didn't break anything, but the pain was tremendous. I still have one scrotum elongated as a result of that jump.

First and second grade was in St. Stephen's Catholic School. My first crush was on Vicki Hartzell. We had an auction for lent and the winner of the auction had their books and tray carried by the person on the block. I won Vicki by adding a penny to every bid given. Even though she was not in my classroom, what little contact I did have was well worth the 17 cents I spent. I walked to school almost every day. Times were different than of late, with tragedies like the recent trial of Shawna Howe kidnapping and murder. It was never an issue for a 6 or 7 year old to walk the quarter to half mile to school every day. I enjoyed it, taking different routes every once in a while. Children can't do that in our times any longer. But then I was always adventuresome. I would ride my 20 inch bicycle on the four lanes at 5 years old.

My mother's step-sister, Flora Mae (we called her BeeBee) lived with us for a time. This was one of the times when Grandma's cancer flared up. It eventually killed her, but she fought it for 40 years. There was the smell of the leaking colostomy bag, and the need for grandma to excuse herself to "take care of myself", but it was just something that happened. BeeBee had spinal meningitis and polio when he was 4 or 5. It severely damaged her mind and she was considered retarded. She used to be our babysitter when mom and dad went to bingo. We were wild when she was there, but in reference to her "retardation", she knew two languages fluently and acted as an interpreter when my grandmother's sister in Europe came to visit. She was kept away socially until after my grandmother's death. At that time, when my mother started taking care of her, she was placed in a group home. Never ignored, mom made sure that BeeBee was treated well and visited her often, bringing her home for all special events and holidays. Her life was happy to the day she died as a result. She was proud of her job and especially proud of the time she rode a horse at the riding therapy class. Even minutes before her death of heart failure, she was making light-hearted jokes; a good soul to the end.

About the time I went into the third grade, we moved to 5 West 8th Street, still in Oil City. To this day, there may be a book of poems that contain one of mine. "Ten Indians" if I'm not mistaken. I recall leaving school from 7th Street Elementary in 1963. As I walked up the sidewalk, one of the older children stated that the president has been shot. My response was, “no he wasn’t!” It was a rather warm day for November. I remember nothing prior to and following that memory, but just the statement left a permanent recollection in my memory. I had no social skills whatsoever. Joe and I were unmercifully picked on during that time. I am not sure what the reason was, but I will have to assume that we were brats even by other brat standards.

Grandpa and Grandma Lustko would come to the house every Saturday, have supper and all go to Bingo with Mom and Dad. Occasionally, Joe and I would go. Grandpa and Grandma would go early to save seats, and Grandpa would go down the street to the pool hall. He tried to teach me pool one time, but said I was too much like my old man! But whether we went or not, he would always stop at the candy store in downtown Rouseville and buy each of us a small bag of candy and many times a bag of Wise’s Bar-B-Que potato chips. In addition, he would always give us a couple of quarters as well. He would make paper animals out of used bingo cards for us. On the times that we didn’t go, we were supposed to be in bed by the time they got home. We heard them come in and lay by the register just to hear them. Getting caught occasionally, they allowed us to come downstairs to visit for a while. I always sat on Grandpa’s right and he would give me a taste of his coffee, in which he had melted a scoop of ice cream.

Grandpa made a living by collecting Mountain Laurel and Rhododendron in the woods and selling the bundles to florists in Pittsburgh. Years later when I found out that he made $200.00 per trip; I did not think much of this as times had changed. But it amounted to $400.00 per week or $21,000 per year. This was a fantastic paycheck in the 60’s. I would occasionally go with him and still think of him every time I use his lesson on how to break a branch with one hand in a single swift motion.

Seventh grade to graduation in high school was even worse when it came to the torment from other students. I walked the 3 miles or hitchhiked to school to avoid the torture of riding the bus. This included a try in St Steven’s School in the 8th grade. It was worse than public school. The wonderful alter boys staged fighting matches after class and you were tortured in class if you didn’t participate. They would walk by you in class and spit their phlegm in you ear at point blank range. They bragged about drinking the wine behind the church alter. It’s funny that one of the worst became a political leader in Oil City!

I never got into any sports in High School. I had a job at a local gas station; Porky’s was the name. I got my drivers license as soon as I turned 16 and got a job and was able to charge gas that same year. What sports I did participate in was as a result of gym class. I outran the track star in the 100 yard dash and pinned the 160 pound wrestling star (he went to state the next year) in less than 5 seconds. I was a big teenager. At Oil City High School, they had the dreaded blue and gold tests. You did X number of reps in an exercise you got blue; you did 2X you got gold. I didn’t care one way or the other. So the two friends I had, Jim Shiley and Randy Hargenrader and I failed the swimming test on purpose. I had taken swimming classes at the age of 8. While all the poor lugs were grunting out push-ups and sit-ups, we were at the pool diving off the dive board and having a ball “learning to swim”. We perfected our routine in our senior year. We had taken all the necessary courses in the first two years of high school and had two to three study halls in a row in the morning. So we went to the principal and said we would like to go to shop and learn how to weld, but would like to be in study hall in case we had tests to study for. He praised our ambition and granted the request; we were at neither. When I had the car, it was off we would go and show up for our afternoon classes which included electronics technology at the local Vo-tech school. We always showed up for that. I was caught at skipping a lot of the time. Many mornings my dad drove me to play inter-mural basketball early in the morning, never knowing that it was actually detention I was attending. My grades were always good, and most of the time I just signed my mother’s name on the report card just because I could. There were times when, having dad’s car, Randy and I would play chase through the residential streets of the Hasson Park area of Oil City; he in his VW and me in a Ford Fairlane.

Now we did some good things too. Joe and I were in the Junior Legion of Mary when I was in the 8th grade. We held bingo games at old folk’s homes, helped the White Sisters weed their garden and other charity work. I really liked doing that stuff.

In all my years before graduation, I dated only twice. Once, while at Canadota Lake Park at 14 years old, I hung around with a girl named Vicki Carr. Of course at that time, the singer Vicki Carr was still a well known name, so I mentioned that to her. It was an amazing time. We rode a bicycle built for two, and played pool while Mick Jagger sang "Brown Sugar" on the juke box. In no uncertain terms would my parents let me stay out later than about 9:00. That was so embarrassing. I fell asleep in our pop-up camper thinking of Vicki and what a great time I had.

Two things that I began during High School was hunting and Amateur Radio. I was fairly successful at small game hunting, but not until I was in my late 40's did I get good at big game. I attempted to give it up on the grounds of avoiding killing animals, but would take it up again years later. I found that one deer could forgo the cost of almost a years worth of beef. Or at least that was my reasoning. As Uncle Lavern Bechtel once said, "It's in your blood".

Ham Radio was more an interest because my friend Randy was an operator, as was my Electronic Technology teacher. First licensed as WN3TCZ, I think I used that call twice on the air. And then put it aside for 30 years. But it is mentioned here because it would become and is a big part of my life today. Electronics at the Venango County Vocational Technical School was chosen by my own decision. The Vo-tech was scheduled to open while I was in Junior High School and I would be the second class attending. My parent's logic was that they had to pay taxes to support that school, and therefore I was to pick something; thus my life's decision. It was a good three years when I think about those classes. Electronics training provided the base of my livelihood today.

Between graduation, and the last day of class, Dad and I began battling. He was living under the old philosophy that I was under his control until I was 21. I was 18 at the time. So I went to stay with Grandpa and Grandma Lutsko, now back in Pittsburgh. They lived on Locust Street and it was a quick bus ride to downtown. I loved Pittsburgh. I came home long enough to graduate and was signed up at a community college. The loan was ready and all was in place. I would stay at my Grandparent's and get my 2 year degree. During that time, Grandpa and I would go down to the Oyster House, a historic restaurant in Pittsburgh, and have one of their famous fish sandwiches. That would be ordered with a glass of gourmet buttermilk with lots of salt. He had said that his Dad had brought him there and so the tradition continued. I would eventually bring Jennifer there, but I don't think they grasped the sentiment of the place. On one visit from my parents, hair became a topic. Long was the trend of the times in the 70s. My Dad's comment was he would come down here and cut my hair for me if he had to. Within that same week, I joined the Navy.

When Grandma Lutsko moved back to Pittsburgh, Grandpa stayed at the "farm" in Emlenton and would drive back and forth to Pittsburgh multiple times a week. This weighed heavily on his health and he would eventually have a TB flare-up that landed him in the hospital. I bring this up because, in all my years, it was the only time I can ever remember seeing them kiss. Grandpa was so sick, and it was unknown if he would survive TB again. He pulled through, though suffered a collapsed lung. This left a hole in his side where the tubes were placed to re-inflate his lung. He would require treatments of peroxide being poured into the hole and it would bubble up brown. For unknown reason, Grandpa would put paper towels into the hole. It was to be the beginning of the end for him.

In addition to the hair issue, Randy and Jim had joined the Navy, and that was leverage on my decision as well. Viet-Nam was in full swing and little did I know that education deferments would be suspended soon anyway. My number in the draft was 69 and they were drafting kids well into the 250 range. I was quite angry, and afraid of my father, and would have left from my Grandparent's home in Pittsburgh, but Mom asked me to come home for the final week before I left. So it was back to Oil City. During the end of my days at high school, I dated a girl named Miriam (Mimi) Smith. She was a very sweet girl; much too nice for my intentions.

The bus ride and leaving for the first stop on the road to the Naval Base in Great lakes, Illinois, Pittsburgh, with Jim Shiley and Randy Hargenrader, was a huge adventure for me. I knew my mother was crying as the bus pulled away. I waved and was quickly consumed by the adventure. A hotel stay in Pittsburgh prior to the plane trip was fun. We played practical jokes on each other late into the evening. The first time I was in a plane was amazing for me. I looked out the window all the way from the Pittsburgh Airport to Chicago, Illinois.

As we arrived at boot camp, a man, who would be our head drill instructor, greeted us with the comment, “get these maggots out of my sight”. I lay in my sheet-less bunk, in the clothes I arrived in and, to this day, I remember the powerful thought, when the real world hit me between the eyes. My only comment, as I watched a huge cockroach crawl across the floor was, “what have I gotten myself into?” The first weeks were tough, but we quickly adapted. After a week or two on the “old side” of the boot camp, we went to the new side.

The barracks were brick, unlike the old wooden WWII barracks from the first two weeks. The three of us were smart and had the advantage of sticking together. One rule stated that you had to have a “chit” to travel anywhere outside the barracks, when not in ranks. The drill instructors always let us fill one out and he just signed it. As they handed the pad back to us we always tore off 3 or 4 chits. On the second chit was an exact impression of the drill instructors signature. We copied over it and from there could go anywhere we wanted to, anytime we could get out of the barracks. Usually the bowling alley was a great place to hang out. One of the other requirements that got us out of a lot of laborious drudgery was our test scores. We had written tests to take after each of our “classes”. Our drill instructors allowed us to sit in his office and drink Cokes and remember as many of the test questions as we could. He would then pass it on to the future class. We found that our most powerful ability was our minds. We still had the marching drills and all. I will say that July and August were unbearable hot, even on the shores of Lake Michigan. There were days when all drills were suspended due to the heat.

Bechtel Family Wepage 2011

The second Navy school was dull. We coasted through the basic electronics classes as we were taught well by Lee Ritchey at the Vo-Tech School. By this time it was the winter of 1972. From the heat of summer it progressed to the extreme Chicago cold of the winter. There were days of 40 below zero where we were warned not to be outside for more than 30 minutes at a time. The starter in my car went out and, after completely covering my self in multiple of layers of clothes, spent 2 hours changing it.

The next school was when things began to change. Jim Shiley had been held back in boot camp with some physical problem. So it was Randy and I and a guy from Pennsylvania named Jose Arana. Randy and I shared an apartment in Virginia Beach. London Bridge Apartments was a great experience. We ruled the class as the three of us; Randy, Jose and I stuck together. The landlady liked us and did our laundry. Jose was married and had two kids. As the school drew to an end, Vicki and the kids went back to Pennsylvania, and Jose moved in with us.

The end of this wonderful time in Virginia Beach was the beginning of a long dark period. I had picked up the new hobby of photography with my first purchase of a Yashica 35 mm camera. Home-sickness had been the worst enemy to this point, but our final school on Long Island became the beginning of a downward slide. We rented a house on Ford Street in Ronkonkoma, Long Island, NY. Five of us shared the house. I did a lot of the cooking. Though it was a disgusting place to live in, it was much closer to home, a mere 350 miles. We got home to Western PA almost every weekend. My brother Joe wanted to go out with a new girl, so he fixed me up with with the girl he was going out with, Melanie Woodworth, who would eventually become my first wife. It was a whirl wind romance, with me coming home and going out with her every weekend I could. A deep depression set in when we found that the factory radar school ended and we were going to ships. Randy and Jose went to a new destroyer and I was to go to the U.S.S. Pratt (DLG13) alone.

I lived on the ship and spent most of my paydays on plane tickets home. At that time it was only $90.00 round trip and since I had no bills it was a reasonable expense. I flew back constantly to visit Melanie. She came down to visit me once and it caused an uproar with my family. She never forgave them for referring to her as a whore (or was it slut). Though not as a result of this visit, we were married in Emlenton by a justice of the peace. We told her mother that it was in a church as they were strict Catholics. We happily moved to Charleston, SC where the ship was stationed and rented a small furnished apartment. There was a lot of fighting that occasionally got physical. The captain of the Pratt was single and constantly volunteered for every cruise he could get. The men's wives got together and approached him about it. His comment was, "this is my ship and I will take it anywhere and at anytime I choose". He then immediately volunteered for a cruise.

Life at this time should be a happy time for a young couple. The challenges of fighting together to build a life is tough, but still a memorable experience. Life got even worse. We were told that we were going on a 6 month cruise to the Mediterranean Sea. I took leave and Melanie packed up everything and I took her home to Western PA. I had taken enough leave that I could spend some time with her.

On one occasion, in our many cruises, many of the ship's crew traveled to Charleston from Norfolk to visit wives. A friend and I traveled to Charleston for the weekend and the wives drove us back to Norfolk to just make the 8:00 AM ship's departure. As we pulled up to the pier, the ship was about 100 yards in the harbor. We had missed the ship. The next week, until the ship returned, was spent sweeping the barracks in the morning and spending the afternoons and evenings with the wives at the beach. When the ship finally returned, we went to the Executive Officer's mast (court). I had learned from the first one. The XO kept my friend and I separate. He told me that my friend admitted to being late. I said I didn't care what he said, and handed him the plan of the day, which said that we had to be back by 8:00 AM. I then handed him a copy of the ship's log to show that they pulled away at 7:30 AM, a half hour early. He let me go, but restricted my friend to the ship. From this I had learned a vital lesson, always prepare for battles.

I would send all my paycheck home, keeping $20.00 for incidentals. But the business sense took over. On paydays while out at sea, the ship would have “casino night”. Joe and I used to have marathons where we would break the bank on the roulette wheel. It worked at casino night as well. Many were the times that they would shut down the roulette wheel to keep me from cleaning out the bank. In addition, I would loan money to the loan sharks. It was too risky to loan money to the crew, so I took a much more successful way. In loaning money to the loan sharks they owed me the principle and a cut of the interest even if the client skipped. If they needed to collect the money, they could get me to do it but I kept it all and forgave the loan. One time I recall I had to use force. I had been working out and it was quite easy when you became squad leader of the nuclear security team. It may seem strange that after all the trouble I had gotten into that I would be raised to that level on the same cruise, but loaning money to the bachelor captain’s “bank”, helped a lot. I would go out once on every stop the ship made and have a good meal. I bought all my incidentals and with only $20.00 per pay, came home after six months with $400.00 saved. This was a huge amount to people with such a modest income in the ‘70s.

I traveled to countries in the Mediterranean twice and went all the way around South America, traveling through the Straights of Magellan. I was never happy with the trips as being home caused constant depression. I became well behaved, a good sailor, but would not hesitate to exert any force necessary when threatened. Melanie and I dealt with the near constant cruises and after six long years in the Navy, I was out, and free to see what the outside world was like. But I didn’t realize the very cruises that made us so miserable, was the same thing that prolonged our marriage for a long as it lasted.

Melanie and I moved back to Pennsylvania. I got a job with Equifax as an insurance investigator and we moved into a decent apartment on the same road as my parents lived. I went to work every day and was home every night. Melanie’s sister went into labor on August 6th, 1989. Her husband was away in the military and couldn’t get home. Since I was already trained in Lamaze, I became her coach. After many hours of labor, it was over and Melanie and I went home. Though it had been a tough day, prior, I still went to work the next morning. I was scheduled to go to the end of my region when about 9:00 AM; Melanie called and said it was time. So narrowly missing the event, I hurried home and spent the next 12 hours with Melanie as her coach. Melanie delivered our daughter on August 7th, 1989. I called into work the next morning to explain what had happened and said I wouldn’t be in that day. I slept well into the afternoon.

My daughter, Jennifer Leann was my friend at a very early age. I would run down the sidewalk in front of the apartments and as the pavement ended, picked her up the stroller and all as if she were taking off. She laughed and we had a good time, often ignoring the stern retribution from Melanie. I would often grab her by the ankles and holding her above my head, let her fall forward and swing her like a trapeze artist. Melanie and her mother joined together to express their dislike for this, but that still didn’t stop me. I recall one occasion; I told Mel’s mother that when Jennifer learned to crawl, I would break one arm and one leg on one side of her body so she would only crawl around in circles and stay out of trouble. Not well received, I must admit! I think the neatest thing was once when Jennifer got her foot jammed under a door. She had just begun to walk. She started crying and I told her to tell me what was wrong, that I didn’t know why she was crying. She didn’t talk yet, so she tugged at the door and said, uh-uh. I always required that she try to communicate rather than wale like so many other children her age. She was always a good child.

Equifax eventually went sour and I got a job with Joy Manufacturing in Franklin, PA. It was one of the best jobs in the area at the time and we moved into a nicer apartment at Pinoak Village in Seneca. We fought all the time and it was taking its toll on me. I felt lucky that Mel worked during the days and I worked evenings. Jennifer and I had a great time when mommy wasn’t around. One habit I had was, at bath time, to take a pitcher of water and douse Jennifer to get the shampoo out of her hair. At the end of the dousing, I would say, “all done”. One time, after a couple of dousings, Jennifer looked up and spoke her first words, “all done”. On the day Jennifer was married many years later, as I and her step-father gave her away, I leaned over and whispered “all done” in her ear. I don’t think she realized the sentiment at the time, with all the excitement, but she will someday. Cheese toast for breakfast was her favorite food and she was always good about putting all the pots and pans back into the cupboard after pulling them out. She would dance to her favorite song, Tusk, by Fleetwood Mack.

On one occasion, Melanie and I had been fighting, and I invited my sister to go to Pittsburgh with me to visit Grandma and Grandpa. We spent most to the time driving around downtown. I so enjoyed how amazed she was with the big city at night. And like all good big brothers, gave her her first beer. She was only about 14 years old then.

The relationship between Melanie and I deteriorated with each passing month. She refused to do any housework, leaving it all up to me. Many days, after cleaning up the apartment, I would come home from work later to find that her family had been over and the place was a mess. I cleaned up, did the laundry and dishes, only to find it occurred again the next night. Melanie also accused me of having affairs with the neighbors. This didn't happen as I was too loyal to even think of cheating on Melanie. But since Mel worked in the day, all of the children played together outside and the mothers, me included became friends. They would occasionally stop in for coffee. Only after years later did I realize that there were many opportunities that I hadn't recognized and nothing ever happened.

We had three cars, one of which was donated by my grandpa and grandma Bechtel. It was a constant battle, working regularly on each to keep one running at all times. We eventually decided that I should re-enlist in the Navy. I went back in and got 2 years of shore duty back in Charleston, SC. We moved into a house in College Park in Ladson. It was a large place and the Navy became a regular job as no sea-time was required. But the fighting only increased between Melanie and me.

On one trip home, we went down to see Grandpa Lutsko before we move back to South Carolina. I had a big white Colony Park station wagon at the time. Grandpa had had station wagons for years, necessary for his "greens" business. As we left, I looked up at him sitting on the porch and said, "See that, I have a station wagon just like my grandpa". It was the only time in that entire visit he smiled that great toothless grin. It would be the last words I would ever say to him.

Then on a winter month, November, I think, I got a phone call that my grandfather, mom's dad, had died. He was found in the corner of the kitchen sitting on the floor with his knees up and his head on his arms. This was devastating to me. We traveled home for his funeral. One interesting story, grandpa didn't believe in photographing the corpse at funerals. Grandma's family did. So she gave me her camera and instructed me to take his picture. I tried to take the photo and the camera failed. I walked away from the coffin and the camera worked. Upon returning and trying again, the camera again failed. This recurred 3 times until I gave up the attempt.

A few months after Grandpa Lutsko died; Grandpa Bechtel took ill and died. We again went to Pennsylvania and attended the funeral. This time, Melanie stayed behind to visit with her family while I returned to South Carolina. I spent a week without her. This had been the first time in over two years we had been separated. It was great with no one to fight with. Melanie came home with Jennifer. I met her at the airport with a bouquet of carnations. She took one look at them and said 'you know I like roses, not carnations'. I threw them in the trash at the airport and we went home. I retreated to my room; an office that I have always since kept. She came in and after not speaking since the airport, I uttered only 4 words. "I want a divorce." I left that day and slept in my car until Melanie went back to Pennsylvania. Though I had had some wild times, and was not the citizen I should have been, all the stops were out now. My world would become a wild place and after years of strict home life with both parents and then my wife, all the bonds were lifted. I lived life as a rogue.

A couple of months later, Grandma Bechtel, never being alone for many years until now, took ill with pneumonia. In her hospital bed, she spoke Dad and said, "Just let me go, Frank". The next day she died. I know there is no such thing as dying from a broken heart, but grandma lost the will to live without Grandpa. And the pneumonia became too much when there is no fight left. I was not able to be there for her funeral, but in writing this, I realize just how much I missed out in talking about our family.

I met Alice S at a bar shortly after Melanie went back to Pennsylvania. Her husband has left her with no furniture and nowhere to stay during a transfer to Germany. She moved in with me along with her two kids. The difference was amazing. She had supper ready when I came home, the house was always clean and we enjoyed each other's company. I hadn't realized that she actually did have a place to stay, but did not want to live with her father, also in Ladson. Eventually it was time to rejoin her husband and without any remorse, walked out of the house and never looked back.

There were others, like Charlotte, who moved right in and required a police presence to get them out once I found out she had slashed my tires. There were a few that were just friends like Linda and Lynn. There was pot and alcohol, parties with wild women and anything else I cared to do on a whim.

I met Teresa one night at a bar. She had just separated from her husband and was out to sample the free life. She was drop dead gorgeous. As a future therapist once said, I was like a hobo riding in a limo. It was wild and passionate. Her husband threatened me and I faced him down. I had been known for my temper and my ability in martial arts. She eventually moved in with me and it was like my fantasy had come to life. But she was much wilder than me. I was willing to settle down and stop all the partying, but she was not. The end was disastrous. I found her with another man at her friend's house. She wouldn't let me in and I realized why. I hit her in the face through a solid door. The police said that if it weren't for the door, she would have died instead of just having a broken nose. I never saw her again after that, but it did damage that would never truly heal.

It was just before Christmas when I walked into my parent's house and told them I was no longer in the Navy. I was home about a week and my sister, Laurie, invited me to go with her to her company Christmas party. I was new to the area and across and down the table was a couple, of which, the girl caught my eye. Living in my world, I boldly walked over to the couple and asked her to dance. She said she didn't dance fast but she would on the next slow song. Her name was Chris P. The guy she was with, it turned out, was a friend, though he was jealous of me from that time on. We began dating and I eventually moved out of my parent's house and into hers. This became a year of living together with me going back to Joy Manufacturing as a veteran. In Venango County, at the time, the workers at Joy manufacturing learned to live off unemployment. Should they be working, the pay was great, but the business was plagued with lack of orders from the unstable coal industry for mining equipment. I was laid off one day with no foreseeable date of return. Chris and I decided to move to Charleston, SC where I knew I could make a living.

We moved in with a friend of mine from the Navy and within two weeks, the guy's wife was jealous of Chris and him "talking too much". So they asked us to leave and gave us the name of a friend that had a garage for rent. It was a dump. The floor had holes in it and the shower ran so slow that you had to hurry before the water reached the top and spilled out onto the floor. I was working temporary jobs, and delivered office furniture to local businesses. Every day I carried a manila envelope with resumes, and if I delivered to a place that I wanted to work at I would place an application. On one delivery, at the Medical University of South Carolina, I got a hit. They were hiring and needed someone in Biomedical Engineering. I didn't know what that was, but was told it was electronics. The Director at the hospital told me that I had plenty of electronic experience, but not medical equipment background. He gave me the job because we were both from Western Pennsylvania and I became a Biomedical Engineering Technician.

Amateur Radio Station WT3Z

It was a good experience. I took to the repairs easily and became well know for my organized desk and my ability to fix just about anything quickly. I became the exclusive biomed for the Surgery Department, a tough job, where fast and efficient quality repairs were mandatory. I was asked one day if I wanted to program the equipment maintenance records on a computer. I had never turned on a computer let alone programmed. But I said sure and commenced to read the programming manual over two weekends. About a month later, I had developed and written a program to maintain the hospital's equipment records. I eventually became a programmer for a time and repaired a 2 million dollar program purchased by the hospital at MUSC, to track patient admissions for staffing needs. It never worked out of the box and I eventually got it running and further automated to do many functions without an operator. This upset the insecure operator and I eventually requested and was granted a return to the biomed department.

Grandma Lutsko had had multiple bouts with intestinal cancer. As a result of so many operations, her skin on here stomach was translucent. She would eventually go into the hospital for the last time. Knowing this, I was disheartened that we could not afford to travel home. So I called her in her hospital room. I sobbed the entire time. Years ago, grandma, being from a gypsy family in Pittsburgh, had read my fortune in with cards. During the phone conversation, she asked if I remembered what she said. It was “keep your pants on and you will be great”; meaning stop going after women. Years later, once I settled down, the prediction began to come true. Not great, but in terms of my prior life, it was a whole lot better. I told her I loved her and days later, she died. Her sister said that she was sitting up in the chair, raised her head up high and took a deep breath and slumped forward.

Her funeral was unique. Mom and our side stayed on one side of the room and the gypsy side stayed on the other side of the room. Granma’s sister wailed and threw herself to the floor. They played songs with violins. There was a conflict in how Mom wanted the funeral and how Grandma’s family wanted the funeral. The funeral director stopped the music playing which just angered the gypsy side more. I had known Grandma’s sisters, June and Irene and liked them. I walked across the room and spoke with them and Grandma’s brother Juggy. I told them that we were all Grandma’s family and Juggy responded, you are one of us. That was a powerful statement for me, as I considered it later. They were an important family in the gypsy community.

Home life was beginning to get strained. Chris and I got married and drugs became an issue. She was working at a John’s Island Airport and could not even keep her car in gas. I paid all the household bills and many of hers. One day, I had had enough. I said no more drugs. She stated that she could get drugs from a variety of “friends” and for free. My comment to her was that she should warn them before taking free drugs that she was lousy in bed. Another of life’s lessons; never teach your wife to throw knives. From two rooms away, she pulled out a steak knife out of the drawer and stuck it in my arm. She then casually walked out of the house to get her hair done. While she was gone, I packed all I could carry and left the house and stayed with my brother Joe and his wife until Chris went back to Pennsylvania. For quite a while we had moved out of the garage and moved to a rather upscale apartment complex. When Chris left, I had the place, furnished, all to my self and the wild times started again. I had a good job, nice place and a few good friends.

I went into therapy for a year as a result of what I thought was Chris. But it was actually from the damage Teresa had done. Things got better, but the underlying scars from the experience would always remain.

I frequented a local bar regularly, and met Deanna Margiatta. Chris had just left and after playing pool and table shuffleboard, we eventually started seeing each other. It only lasted a month or two, but years later, while I was at the Baptist Medical Center in Columbia, SC, I received a letter with picture of a little girl. Deanna said she was my daughter. I had given her the money for an abortion, and she did not go through with it.. With years of wondering, the modern technology of Facebook would unite me with Teresa in 2010.

I made the rounds of most of the women that attended my “watering hole”. One such was Sean. She was an interior decorator for celebrities such as Stacy Keach on the Kiawah Island resort. She wore a white fox coat to the bar. One day, there was no place to sit except beside her at the bar. She stated that she had been waiting for me to talk to her, and was disappointed at New Years when I left with Robin. We eventually started a relationship and moved in together. The Medical University was still a good job, but it had no advancement in even the distant future.

I accepted a job at Chesapeake X-ray in Columbia, SC. Sean, her daughter and I moved to an apartment on the west side of the city. Sean and I had a fairly successful relationship in Charleston, but the new job required much more travel. Sean desired to be only a housewife and my every trip and meeting was scrutinized. When she told me not to come home if I went to the meeting; we parted ways. After she left, I eventually lost my job as an X-Ray repair technician due to lack of business. I began searching and found a biomedical engineering position at Baptist Hospital in downtown Columbia, SC.

I used to go to a little biker bar after work regularly as I wasn’t seeing anyone. The unusual thing was that I would go with a tie and dress slacks. The biker’s with colors would want to hassle me, but I became friends with the bartender, West Macky (not misspelled), and one show of the baseball bat from behind the bar, calmed them all down. Many of them became friends after that. By this time, I was quite tired of the game and was brutally honest with who I was. One day Anita came into the bar.

Anita was no beauty, but something about her was intriguing. She has a rough personality and a good sense of humor, even though she had a rather sad life. Her two kids were completely her responsibility as her husbands took little if any responsibility. We were much slower at moving in together and I started college to get my degree in biomedical engineering. It was about this time that I realized that I was not going to live forever, and if I wanted to do anything in my life, it had better be now. I was in my early 30's. I had a relationship with Anita, a great job at Baptist and was going to college, eventually graduating with a 3.917 gpa. Anita's family was somewhat strange, but it was her oldest son that was the real problem.

Robert was trouble, at 14 stealing guns and cars. I had him committed to a psychiatric hospital under the threat that he may use the gun he stole against me or his mother. Anita's mother was mentally ill and in and out of psychiatric units and her sister would eventually follow that same course.

Justin, her youngest, on the other hand was quite the boy. From a different father than Robert, Justin was much smarter and much more stable. I had the pleasure of raising him, though he still says it was not a pleasant memory. I was strict. By now, I had begun to get my life in order and my priorities straight. I remember one night when Justin would not go to bed; I had him stand in the corner, with a chair between him and the wall. I asked him if would rather stay up all night like this or go to bed. Of course, he went to bed. On one other case, Justin was playing out in the street and was hit by a car. In the X-Ray room, he began to cry that it hurt too much to climb onto the table. I told him, he had played where he shouldn't have, now deal with the pain and do what needed to be done. My favorite question for him was "why?" and we called the jello mix at Shoney's "green slime". He turned out to be quite a young man and has my passion for photography.

Anita and I were together for ten years. Once the Baptist position began to plateau, I knew it was time to move on. I had programmed the maintenance records on computer and went paperless. But, it was a dead end again, so I started looking elsewhere. I needed to be a Department Head. I answered an ad with Kinetic Biomedical Service for a position as an account manager in Lock haven, PA. and accepted the job. I knew that Anita and I would not last in a long distance relationship but moved anyway, alone. Robert had been a harassing threat that I just didn't want to deal with. I had given it my best attempt and could not turn him.

We lasted about three months and Anita and I both started seeing other people. It became a constant phone battle of anger, crying and lies. On January 12, I was in a little bar in Jersey Shore, PA, about 12 miles from Lock Haven and 4 miles from the little cottage on Pine Creek I had rented. That night I met my best friend, Kathy.

It was an interview. I was tired of the games and laid what I was looking for on the table. She had just broken up with her husband and was not sure about my approach. We eventually shook loose the chains of our last relationships and started one that would last longer than any I have ever been in. I was an account manager at Lock haven for Kinetic Biomedical. In that area, it was an above average job. She would eventually move in with us.

By us, I mean Champ and me. Champ was a 100 pound Rottweiler and my buddy. He had been with me in Columbia and was brought to Pennsylvania on one of Anita's excursions up north. His photo is on my office wall still.

After about a year, Kathy and I remained happy with our home life. But my career was about to change again. Kinetic Biomedical had a Regional Manager's position open and I was highly recommended. Lock Haven Hospital was a mess when I arrived. The customer was threatening to cancel the contract. Many people thought I was crazy for taking on such a troubled account, with no promise of a job within one year. I turned the account around. It went from making little profit, to an unheard of 50% margin. A competitor tried for the account and, even though we were 20% higher, they resigned with Kinetic. I had turned around the account in 8 months. This would mean a rather traumatic experience would befall Kathy. As a hometown girl, this move would be the most extreme she had ever gone through and would be only one in a line of many to come.

I got the Regional Manager's position over a coworker who became my dear friend. Nelson is the same personality as Aunt Libby and I admire his spirit to this day. Kathy and I moved to Butler, PA as it was closer to my new region. There was no training for the new job. It was trial by fire. I held my own the first year, but on the second year, things began to happen. I had studied and read all I could on management and sales. The results were the eventual motivation of the region to become the number one money maker in the company. Nelson was made Sales manager for the region and together, we had an unstoppable team. Together we sold the first multi-facility account. It was a great ride. We eventually sold Hamot Hospital in Erie and Kathy and I picked up, one year after moving to Butler, and moved to Erie. This allowed me to be close and focus on one of the largest accounts in the company. The margins were extraordinary. I began taking on accounts in the South, which allowed me to travel into the area I considered my second home.

Kathy and me with Harley

I had started a service center out of the corporate office, and the margins of 37% were more than double the typical service center profit. The other regional managers complained that the high margins were due to the center locating in the corporate office and I did not have the typical bills that they had in their centers. I was blessed at that time with one of the biggest disasters in Kinetic; the dreaded LSU account in Louisiana. It lost more money than it made. They had a good crew, but the contract was a train wreck. When it came up for renewal, I said no. This raised my bottom line by over 200,000 per year. I did a market study of the area and found that, though it was one of the biggest medical areas in the state, there was no competition from other biomedical companies. I went to the president of Kinetic with my data and he overthrew the CFO's objections to my plan for a service center and allowed it. He asked the question, "Why should we open a service center in a place where no one else is located?". My response was, "because no one else is there!" He decided to risk it. I left 6 months into the first year of the centers start. We were already into the black and I heard that by the end of the first year it was generating 397,000 in revenue and 45% margins, disproving the regional manager's argument from the past. And since we had lost LSU, I comforted the techs about the service center risk by saying that I would move to the area to ensure success, because I didn't want to move again if it failed. So Kathy and I moved to Shreveport, Louisiana.

I went down ahead of her and found a house to rent. It wasn't in the best of shape, but in a very good location. One day it was in the 40's and the landlord refused to fix the furnace. It took me a day to find another house just across the Texas border. We loaded up our cars and after 14 trips for each car, had moved all the little things. I rented a small truck and moved the larger things. I was sick with kidney stones and the flu during the entire move. The pain was excruciating. Kathy hurt her back and that left me to bring in all the large pieces of furniture alone. I was actually quite proud that, using only a dolly, I loaded and unloaded every large piece of furniture alone under unbelievable pain. We now had moved to Waskom, Texas just 10 days after moving to Shreveport.

The place was great, but I was now disjoined from the corporate office in Erie, PA and the CFO of the company was out of eye and ear shot to make sure he wouldn't undermine the business I was trying to start. Even though the area was turning into a big success, I began looking for another job. I found a position with Crest Services about a year later and, on a visit to the South, I turned in my resignation to the President of Kinetic. My only comment was that the CFO thinks he runs this company. I beat him on every battle, but I know I will never win the war. He accepted my resignation without comment.

This began a time of career trauma. My personal life was calm and I was clean of all the bad habits of the past. I went to work at an account in Dennison, Texas. The previous company left all records, mixed up in a box, stripping the files of all file folders. They removed their desks and left a 5 foot heap of tools, test equipment and broken equipment in the middle of the shop floor. There were 500 pieces of equipment broken when they left. And to top it all off, the facility was due for inspection in 6 weeks. The hospital administration said we could throw ourselves on the mercy of the inspectors based on the previous company's disaster, but I said no, assuring them we would pass. The newly formed team worked unbelievable hours and we pulled it off and passed. We had to fire a slack secretary in the interim, but we got the job done.

I had a rival in the operations manager with Crest Services. Dan was jealous of the fact that I made more money than him. He believed that anyone that was lower in status should make less money. He believed that he didn't have to know anything about the financials. By now, I was getting tired of dealing with the incompetence of small companies and decided to try for a larger company. After about 6 months with Crest I went to work for Neodyme and Kathy and I moved to College Station, Texas.

A $180,000,000 a year company, I thought I was moving to a more stable environment. But here again, as Director of the Vendor Services department, I found the politics even worse. I created the department from scratch and it began to be quite successful. The owner of the company was a brutal dictator that verbally abused his employees. He was supposedly loved by his employees and "would do anything to ensure they had a job." The company started going down hill as the owner kept changing the rules on the customers. In 6 months it went from 180M to 80M and there were all kinds of law suits. He cussed out my department one day and I wrote a letter that it was inappropriate to treat employees that way and I was immediately fired. They went bankrupt a few months later. The owner deserted all the employees, foresaw the end and pulled his investment out and quit. He walked away with millions, leaving many of the employees destitute.

As I sat in our home, now in College Station, Texas, I began to consider the facts on how much money I had made for these people. I came upon the conclusion that I should be able to do this for myself. BiomedTek came into being. I got a temporary assignment with Kinetics in North Carolina as a contract worker and moved all our belongings back to my parent's garage in Pennsylvania. We were officially homeless, but I had a great paying contract job and we lived in a Motel 6 with our dog Harley. During that time, the World Trade Center was brought down by terrorists; another occurrence where we will know exactly where we were at the time, forever. After the contract ended, we found a house in Erie again, and moved there. I began to travel the country as a freelance biomedical technician, manager and/or consultant. I worked about 8 months in that first year and made more money in that time than I had made in any 2 years combined. I spent a few months at a contract in St Croix in the US Virgin Islands. The experience was less than great, but I was able to get certified as a scuba diver. It was a most enjoyable experience and I will always have the fondest memories of the dives I went on.

The second year of being self employed got even better, so to speak. I was gone constantly and this put a lot of pressure on my relationship with Kathy. So I decided to get a “real job”. After much searching I landed a position with Aramark and off we moved to Gastonia, NC where I managed the Biomedical Department in the 400 bed facility; Gaston Memorial Hospital. It was an adversarial account and one that Aramark was considering closing. The first year, the profit was 73,000 on a 2.1M account. On the second year, the program improved as did the profit, rising to 360,000. This year, 2006, it will exceed 500,000. After three years of stress, I requested a new position and was promoted to Regional Finance Manager for the Bon Secours Region of Aramark. It contains the oldest of the accounts in Aramark and was reformed as one region when the dispersion into various regions caused some ill will in the Bon Secours Corporate office. The stress level is much less and though I regularly struggle to find enough to keep me busy. It is a world above Gaston Memorial. The unusual thing here is, after being with Kathy for 13 years, we have lived in the same house for 3 years now. This is the longest run without moving to date. But we are ready to move again as the new neighbors are trash.

I have a lot of hobbies, unlike my childhood. About 1993, I purchased a short wave radio receiver at a flea market and found operators from western Pennsylvania talking back and forth. Pappy Lewis became my mentor (Elmer as it’s called) that got me back into the spirit of Ham Radio. I made up my mind that I would retake the Amateur radio test and get the license that would allow me to talk to them. I did so in about six months. I still have a station today and occasionally get on the air, though the friends from ’93 have died or are no longer operating. It is considered an investment into the days when I can no longer enjoy the mobility I currently have and will have the capability to talk to people all over the world. Pappy died of cancer some years later and I was glad to get to visit him before he died.

Another hobby is photography and directly tied into my computer abilities. It is all digital now, though I did use film for many years. I acquired the interest from my Grandfather, John Lutsko. He always had a camera at special events. My brother is very good with photography and has won many a contest. Since I have had years of computer experience, I have been well known for this ability and have on occasion been referred to as a “computer guru”.

And last, and unfortunately least is scuba diving. It’s a world where the stresses of the real world go away as you float, weightless in a quiet bliss. I don’t dive near as much as I would like to.

Genealogy has been an interesting adventure since I started about 7 years ago. I started by locating distant cousins that have done some work, combined their efforts and extended the efforts. One cousin in particular has joined me in this journey, and as a result, we have reinitiated the Bechtel Family Association and are going to hold the Associations second reunion in 3 years. The original Association ended in the late 1920’s with the efforts of Jesse Bechtel. Now the lines are coming together again. I have found that my ancestor’s lives are very interesting stories and my intent is to keep all of our family alive into the next centuries.

Pets are very important in our family, especially dogs. Grandpa Bechtel, in our younger years had Bozo. He was a huge ugly dog that lumbered around their house and wouldn’t hurt a fly. He was a light brown and white and oh, did I mention he was HUGE! When my sister was very young, she would sit on his back and tug his ears. Once annoyed by this treatment, Bozo would simply get up, dropping her on her butt and move away.

The dog that sticks in memory with Grandpa Lutsko was Rebel. Reb was a German Sheppard that grandpa got as a watch dog. Reb was tied in various places in the yard and barked and strained the chain when strangers approached. I was able to pet him, but because he was tied out all the time, he was starved for attention and would jump up on anyone near him.

Mom and Dad had two that I remember. There was a shaggy, small brown dog that was with us when we were on East Second Street. I remember him because he bit me when I was little. He lived a long time and would eventually go blind. Mom and Dad took him to Lutsko's where he eventually died.

Another dog that Mom and Dad had was a miniature Doberman named Blacky. Mom called him stupid, but he was quite intelligent. Blacky was a stray that just showed up and, as kids we were allowed to keep him. He would love to catch a ball when it was thrown high into the air. Stupid became Mom's nickname for him when he wouldn't eat his dry dog food. Mom and he battled over this, where, Mom would give him no more food until he ate what she had given him. So Blacky, refusing to eat for days, waited just inside his dog house, motionless, and allowed birds to fly down and eat the food in his dish. He would jump out, catch them and eat the birds. That doesn't sound stupid to me!

Laurie had a black and white cat when she was a little girl. Mom and Dad kept it in the basement. There was never a place for animals in their house. The cat was the closest to ever being allowed in the house. They eventually took the cat to Grandpa Bechtel's and left it there. The cat immediately disappeared and was not seen at Grandpa's again. About a month or two later, an emaciated black and white cat showed up at Mom and Dad's and it was assumed that it was the cat. It had traveled 24 miles and returned to its home. In order to drive it off, Mom and Dad did not feed it, and it eventually disappeared forever.

My sister has many animals now. Three dogs, four cats and other smaller rodents live in her house with her. Then she owns a horse that she keeps in a barn near her home. Now, I don't believe in "outside pets". It is, in my mind, cruel to tie out a dog and only show attention when food and water is provided. But, that is a lot of animals in the house. She is a kind-hearted person and is sympathetic to the regular dumping of dogs on the road she lives on.

My experience with dogs matured with the last three I have had. Champ was a Rottweiler that I purchased in South Carolina. He was a total free spirit. At 1 year old, I would tie him out to do his business. It was a chain tied to a cement block. He had found, prior, how easy it was to climb the fence and go on a neighborhood excursion overnight. He would show up at the door the next morning. Eventually he discovered that he could climb the fence and drag the cement block with him. Now he was dragging the block and chain around, over night, showing up fully connected the next morning. He eventually lost this habit with one exception. When I was in Lock Haven, we lived in a cabin on Pine Creek outside of Jersey Shore. He had gotten into a field with some cows and couldn't get out past the electric fence. I was terrified he was gone forever. A local farmer drove up and out of his truck jumped Champ. It was a heartfelt reunion for me. He also learned that if he spun around and tightened the chain that was tied to a tree, and then with a run, would snap it. That habit stopped when the replacement chain used reached 600 pound test. At this house on Pine Creek, the Creek literally ran through the back yard. I would teach Champ to fetch a stick that I would throw out into the creek. He loved the water. I would tie fish I had caught on the bank. Once I introduced him to "fishies", he tried to carry it off. From then on, the word "fishy" would cause him to try to "dig" in the water with his front paws. He also liked the "duckies". That word would cause him to bolt outside and chase the wild geese as they landed while on their migration trips. When Kathy and I were dating, I was sick and didn't answer my phone. Kathy was concerned about coming to the house with Champ guarding the place. But, mean looking, Champ was a big baby and really wouldn't hurt anyone that he trusted. He was a good judge of character, and was able to know the difference between good and bad people. He was aggressive to the bad ones. There was one lesson that I learned from Champ. I would have to be careful not to walk in a circular direction around the person I was talking to. Champ would look at this as a threat and start growling. And sometimes that came in handy!

Champ would last 8 years and had to be put down due to kidney failure. The pain was like losing a family member. He was my buddy through a lot of tough times. We weren't going to get another dog after Champ died, and lasted 4 months before the next dog; Harley was brought home during a trip to an Altoona hospital account.

Harley was a Rottweiler as well, and a much more passive dog than Champ. She would be allowed to be let out the door in the morning, alone, and would be waiting at the door when she was finished. Harley was Kathy's friend during my long trips out of town when I had my own business. She developed cancer in her sinus and suffered through a major biopsy where a one inch piece of her skull was removed. We treated her with a shrimp and steak dinner. It lasted about 2 minutes, but we were all happy at the dinner with our friend. As the cancer progressed, one day, Harley had a seizure where she laid on her side a shook. She looked terrified and I calmed her by slowly petting her saying it was all right. The seizure passed, but left her totally listless. The next morning I took her to the vet. On the way out the door, she relieved herself outside. Even as sick as she was, she obeyed the rule, never to go in the house. I had her put down that day; she was 8 years old.

In the case of both Champ and Harley, food left on the coffee table would be there in the morning. But our current dog, Charley is a different animal altogether. Charley, a female, was named as a compilation of Champ and Harley's name. She is a hybrid German Sheppard, wolf combination. Charley is off-white in color. When we first went to get her, I carried her to the car in one hand. She was the first we ever raised from a puppy, and now I know why we hadn't before. She is more stubborn than any dog I have seen. Learning about her, we found that dealing with a wolf required a different line of thinking. She can never be let outside without a leash because little animals and children are considered food by her. She will bolt and refuse to come back. She loves to catch and eat bugs. But Charley has matured over the last 2 and a half years to become a very good friend. She had a head and face like a Sheppard, but the body of a wolf. She hates strangers and upon approach, her hair raises and she gets that wolf hump on her front shoulders. Her growl is intense and she takes a long time to get used to anyone new. Charley will play rough and tends to get carried away, biting a bit harder than expected. And her play fighting has to be stopped as with the personality of a tenacious wolf, she will keep fighting, even when I consider the game over. She is amazingly smart, figuring out things for herself in her own opportunistic way. Just prior to going into heat, Charley will want to replace Kathy as the Alpha female. She sees Kathy smoking cigarettes and blowing her nose in tissue. So any cigarette butts and tissues become fair game for her as she chews them and leaves them in front of my chair. It took us a long time to realize that she was trying to be like Kathy to get close to what she considers the alpha male. We have since stopped trying to correct her on this action and just pick up the ashtrays out of her reach. She sheds twice a year, and it is unbelievable. Wolves have two coats of hair, the undercoat and the long hair. When the under coat begins to shed, it comes off in handfuls. The carpet throughout the house is covered in hair and it last about three weeks. Once over, she sheds relatively little for a long haired dog; much less than the Rottweiler. So we are looked at as unusual in that, it is uncommon to keep a hybrid wolf in the house.

Each had its own personality, each were and are our children. I would never be without a dog as life is so empty without one.

As told by him

When I was a child, my brother went to Kindergarden and I stayed at the back gate crying. It was the first time I could remember that I experienced loneliness. As I got older and I went to Kindergarden one of my friends died. He went up to a tree and was playing Tarzan and hung himself. It was the first time I felt death and loneliness again. Sure, there are other times I felt happy, but some of these feelings tend to stick with you through life.

I remember a time when I was in school and everytime I turned around someone wanted to fight with me. One time, two boys were bullying other students by playing studio wrestling, like on TV. They jumped on me and my glasses fell off. My face got real red and I got angry because I was afraid my glasses broke. They saw this and backed off of me. And they left me alone for the rest of the year.

I graduated in 1974 with the honor of top 10% of my class.

There was a time my brother and I went hunting. There was a squirrel at one end of the tree. My brother shot at him and scared him out of the tree. I tried to keep him on the ground until my brother reloaded. He shouted to get back and I jumped back. He took aim and shot the squirrel.

Joseph Franklin Bechtel

There was another time we went hunting and I was the hunting dog, shaking the piles of brush for rabbits. One jumped out and my brother shot him.

Every Sunday we went to visit Grandpa and Grandma, both of them on both parents side. It was fun to me to visit them and listening to some of the stories they told. Going up to the dump to see what toys could be salvaged and playing with the dogs and cats and other animals they had for they lived in farming country.

When I was of age to get married, Debbie and I were married, August 1979, and went to Georgia to live. Had a son and named him Paul Michael. He was a nice and cute boy for he looked like me when I was a boy. I only knew him for three years for our marriage ended in a divorce. Haven't seen him since he was three.

I ended up back with my parents and have been with them for 18 years trying to enjoy life and have a good relationship with them as well as other people and other family members.

Sure, I had fun times too. Like going camping with my family, seeing other states east of the Mississippi and dating different girls. (As well, I enjoyed) going to fairs and entering photography contests, eating at restaurants and going to Conneaut Lake and Waldemear Park. I liked going hunting with Dad and John, my brother.

I've been working at my sister's store, "Plaza Mart" for sometime now. I think we get along fine so far. Still at the Venango Training and Development Center, too. I learned that the mentally and physically handicapped have feeling too and are just as human as you and I, with dreams of a better life.

Teresa's Story as told by her

This is a little of what I've been through, I know I've left a lot out. I thought about this for a couple weeks and wrote it in only a day and a half and the more I wrote the more I kept remembering and the more I re-read over it, of course the more I keep remembering. So this is just a bit of a rough draft for ya...

I was born Wednesday, June 4, 1986. My mother was single with a 4 year old little boy already. The first 4-5 years are a blur as I'm sure it's that way for most. I do remember going to kindergarten and meeting my first best friend and winning a coloring contest. Those are a couple of the positives. I also remember waiting in the car with my grandmother at my mother's work picking her up. I remember spending the weekends with my grandparents and going to the movies with my grandfather pretty much every Friday. I know my mother not only struggled to raise and support us but also she struggled with being alone. She was always looking for someone to be there with her and help her. I guess I absorbed that same need growing up.

Elementary school was great for me, I was bright and made straight A's and was even put into a combination 4th and 5th grade class. I had a best friend that lived across the street from my grandparents who I spent quite a bit of time with. She was a year older than I was so when she went to middle school that's when trouble started. I remember we would walk around the neighborhood to smoke, her father made wine from a small grape vine he had in the back yard and we would constantly dip into it. It wasn't until Middle school that I started to stray and think a little more independently. By then my mother was struggling with my brother being in high school and his problems, where he was lashing out from a father that was only there financially.

Without another parent in the home, I lacked discipline. I started drinking a little more on my own feeling as though it numbed the fact I had no one paying attention to me. I also started smoking more frequently and added pot and pills to my routine. Reaching out for the attention that I constantly craved, I would lash out at my mother every time she tried to discipline me.

High school brought on more problems, my friends were all older and most of them were driving so school started to seem less interesting. I started out going to my classes and then only half of my classes. My craving for attention grew and I felt satisfied with meeting new "friends". First there was Alex M. who was quite controlling and stayed around for about 4 years off and on. Every now and then he would smack me around but he gave me attention and always apologized. I was stupid for staying with him and constantly going back to him and was consoled by his friend Gregory quite frequently which in turn caused more problems in the already abusive relationship. During that relationship there were others as well.

There was Geno, who offered a place for me to run away to. He had an apartment shared with a girl that later became another enabler to me. I got bored quickly with Geno and moved on to his friends Jacob and Alex J. I moved from hotel room to hotel room and stayed with strangers for a while with Jacob and Alex. After a couple weeks I moved back in with my mother. After losing touch with the crowd I had run away with I started hanging out with who I thought was my friend Amber. Her middle name was trouble and the only reason she wanted me around was to get my next fling to come around more often.

Matt, I had met him a few years back when he moved in next door to my grandparents. I didn't really know him but what started out as a crush on the guy next door turned into something that would stay with me for the rest of my life. He was everything I thought I wanted, fast cars, loud music, and a generally care free life. When I met him he was engaged to a girl who hated me from the start. When I started hanging out with Amber she really introduced me to Matt and we started hanging out more frequently. Then I realized he was still engaged and I was his on the side fling. I was blinded by what I thought was love, hoping each day he would leave her for me. Then I realized I wasn't the only fling on the side. There were many others. We were going down a path that most don't come back from, with the pills, the drinking, and he started crack. I was young and stupid. Then came the day I found out I was pregnant. I was only 17 and had no clue what I was going to do. My biggest mistake was trying to run and cry to Matt. He accused me of cheating and told me I needed to have an abortion because he wasn't going to take care of a child he didn't know was truly his and he wasn't ready to be a father anyway. Feeling rejected was one of the worst feelings in the world to me. About a month after I told him, Matt up and left to Anderson to live with his mother. He came down to visit once when my daughter was 3 months old and I got the same empty promises that he filled our relationship with. The "I'll be there" and "I'll come to visit" and "I love you". I had heard it all before and become completely jaded to the words he spoke to me.

I met Tyler at my best friends house one day. He had a son exactly one week older than my daughter and she was married to his best friend. Tyler and I started talking and hanging out and of course one thing led to another and I had yet another relationship. I was so unsure of this, but I dove in head first. I guess seeing my mother struggle to raise children on her own kept me constantly wanting a relationship. Someone to lean on for help and support.

Tyler immediately fell in love with being a father to my Evie. While I was living with my mother there was an episode with Evie that at the time was unclear to me but I have since figured out. I had to rush her to the emergency room because she started bleeding from her mouth. Tyler had gone with me to support me and make sure everything was ok. The resident nurse didn't even think twice before looking at us as a young couple and called DSS to say there had to be some form of neglect or abuse going on. I was forced to go to parenting classes for 3 months and could not be with my baby girl without supervision. Towards the end of the classes, Tyler and I had moved into our own apartment right down the street from my grandparents. When I finished the classes I was able to bring Evie home. Another dispute in my life.

My mother didn't like Tyler, he stole her daughter but she was not going to let him have Evie without a fight. She didn't trust him. There were so many threats of calling DSS again saying we were unfit to raise her and that my daughter would be better off living with her. My grandfather saw this as an opportunity to step in and say well she had been living with them for the past few months and she should stay with them. DSS would have taken her away completely if they had been called. Especially if they saw how we were all reacting to each other. We finally got her in our custody.

I found out I was pregnant yet again. I had been working for Tyler's mother at the Charleston Place Hotel so it was hard to keep much a secret, including when he bought me a ring. I remember feeling very faint and very sick one day and she walked me downstairs to wait for someone to pick me up and she asked "are you pregnant or something?", I just started crying. I didn't know what to say because she was not the type of person who you just mention things too. She is a very stern woman. Needless to say the rest of the walk to my ride I was lectured on how hard things were going to be from then on out and how we should have talked about this and precautions should have been taken to prevent this. It had to be the longest 5 minutes of my life. I worked up until I was about 8 months pregnant trying to live up to her standards, constantly hearing how she worked construction up until she went into labor. I have since come to the conclusion that I am NOT superwoman.

Tyler and I had started renting a house across the street from his mother and next door to his grandparents. It was fine with me because I could deal with his family. He had a hard time and still does, dealing with my family. About 2 months before I was due to have Lola we were married by his great aunt in her back yard. There was only his mother, her boyfriend, and his sister to witness. Not my idea of a wedding but I went with it. The next day I told my mother I was married. She was NOT happy at all.

In August I gave birth to Lola, then my mother moved to upstate South Carolina. Things kept going downhill for me. I had raging hormones from just being pregnant and no mother to talk to, I hardly spoke to any of my friends anymore so the only person to lash out at was Tyler. We went through hell. For years our marriage was on the rocks. We were constantly bickering back and forth. Then I lost my job at the hotel and things got even worse. I went to work for Molly Maid for a while with high hopes, but with a husband at home constantly telling me I wasn't going to amount to anything there I quickly reverted back to lashing out. Consequently I lashed out towards one person who had some authority where I was working and lost that job after only being there for a year.

We survived another year off me getting unemployment and Tyler working as an electrician. His job was taking a toll on him and so was our home life. I was never one to be cooped up in a house with nothing to do but I also had no clue how to really look for a job. The bickering grew and I fell into a depression. All I wanted to do was sleep, day in and day out. I didn't want anything to do with anything going on around me. Then I finally was able to get a job at Lowe's, where I am now, which helped out a great deal with the craving for attention. I am an outgoing person, I love to live life. At the age of 24, I am a mother, a wife, and a Lowe's employee. I do hope to have a better job one day, but for now I think showing my girls that I have the responsibility to have a job is more important than sitting at home finding the best job.

Received your inquiry about Catharina Salome Schneck who married Samuel Frye. I am also searching for info on a Samuel Oliver Fry b) 14 Apr 1847 in Alum Rock, PA, son of Paul Frye b) 17 Oct 1812 in PA who was married to Mary (Polly) Best b) 5 Feb 1814 in Westmoreland County, PA. Your Samuel Frye b) 1749, PA who married Catharina Schneck was my husband's (4) great grandfather. My husband's great grandfather was Samuel Oliver Fry. Samuel married Martha E. Jack sometime and somewhere unknown to us. They did die in Missouri and are buried at Liberty Cemetery in Missouri. We have been to the cemetery. They had 6 children, one being Grace May Fry b) 8 Nov 1883 in PA., which is my husband's grandmother. She married Ira Lester Edmonds on August 8, 1905 in Missouri. We have dates and names for these relatives but am wanting more information, ie; how did Samuel Oliver Fry lose his leg? We have a picture of him, year unknown, standing with a cane and only one leg. He did work in the oil fields, was this a tragedy from work or what? How did he and Martha meet and where were they married?<sup>133</sup>

My husband is descended from the Fry side through Samuel Oliver Fry, son of Paul C. Fry and Mary Best. Do you have any information on this Samuel Oliver Fry, born 14 Apr 1847 in Alum Rock, Pennsylvania? My husband barely remembers him from his younger days. We are stumped on who his wife was and on their children. One of their children, a daughter, Grace Fry who was my husband's grandmother, was born 8 Nov 1883 in East. St. Petersburg, PA., and married Ira Lester Edmonds in Aug 1905 in Webster County, Missouri.<sup>134</sup>

Descendants of Johannes Kehl

THE KEHL (KOEHL, KALE) FAMILY

Johannes1 “Hannes” Kehl (pronounced Kale) was the ancestor of: Anna Catherine Kehl, wife of George Kolb; and Sarah Kehl, wife of Joseph Kolb.

Perhaps the village of “Kehl,” east of Strasbourg, Germany, has some family significance, especially since it is not far from the area our Kolb family lived. The German surname “Kehl” translates to “narrow gorge or throat,” or an “unusual throat,” or “from the area of Kehl, across the Rhine from Strassburg.”

Johannes1 may have been the “Johann Kiehl (Küehl)” who, in 1742, obtained a permit to emigrate from the County of Oppenheim in former electoral Palatinate and arrived on the ship Judith in Philadelphia on 3 September 1742. He would have been 22.

Little is known about Johannes1 except that he had at least four children, lived in Douglas Township, Montgomery County, and is buried in the Falckner Swamp Reformed Churchyard in Hanover, PA. In the New Hanover Lutheran Church records, John Küehl and Sybillia had a “child” in 1746 (probably Jacob) and are said to have been parents of children baptized in this church. Johan Adam Kale, a signer of the New Hanover Church Constitution in 1765, may have been related to Johannes1.

The will of “John1 Kehl of Douglas Township, Montgomery County,” (RW#3507) was written 19 November 1789 and proved on the 8 November 1792. Executors were his son, Moses Kehl and son-in-law, Abraham Bob. Witnesses were Mr. Spiess, Christian Bryman and George Dengler. John1's will mentions an estate of 113 acres in Douglas Township to be sold and divided three ways. To the children of his son, Jacob, one share was to remain in interest until his death, with Jacob receiving the interest during his natural life. The second share was to go to Abraham Bob, his son-in-law. The third share to his son Moses. Johannes1 signed his will with his “mark.”

The children of Johannes1 Kehl, born about 1720, died 3 November 1792:

1. Jacob1 Kehl, born about 1746, died before his wife, Barbara Burkert, daughter of George Burkert. Barbara died prior to 14 January 1822.

2. Moses Kehl, baptized at Falckner Swamp 2 November 1754, died 12 October 1823, married on 7 November 1775 at Falckner Swamp, Catharine Spiesz, born 17 August 1757, died 17 February 1825, daughter of Anthony and Margaret Spiesz. Farmed in Douglas Township. Moses served as a Private in the 8th class of Captain Frederick Beiteman's Company of Militia in November 1781 with Jacob Zerley. Moses and his wife are buried at Falckner Swamp Reformed Churchyard. They had:

1. Anthony Kehl, born 18 July 1776, died June 1836, married Barbara Mauer, daughter of Andreas Mauer.
2. Moses Kehl, born 1797, died 1830, married Lea Levan, born 1795, died 1849.
3. Catherine Kehl, married Abraham Bob, possibly son of Conrad and Elizabeth Bobb.

SECOND KEHL GENERATION

Jacob1 Kehl may have been the “child born to John Kuehl and Sybillia in 1746” as mentioned in the New Hanover Lutheran Church records. He married Maria Barbara Burkhart, daughter of George and Maria Frederica Burkhart.

Jacob1 was a member of the 4th class of Captain Benjamin Markley's Company of Militia during October to November 1781. He was a farmer residing on 150 acres in New Hanover-Frankford Township when he appears on the tax list of 1774 with two horses and three cattle. In 1779 New Hanover Tax Assessment, he appears as a blacksmith with 150 acres, 2 horses, and 3 cattle. By the New Hanover 1783 tax list, he still owns 150 acres, has three horses, three cattle and four sheep. In the 1790 PA census, he had three males over 16 years of age, two males under 16 and six females in his household. He lived near Michael Culp and Jacob Culp and served in the Militia with Joseph Kolb. Jacob's death preceded his wife's.

Barbara Kehl's will (RW 3378), written 24 December 1821, filed 25 January 1822, proved 25 February 1822, is on file at the Montgomery County Archives, and mentions all of her children except John, Peter and Henry, who may have been deceased at that time.

The grave sites of Jacob and Barbara have yet to be identified, but since this family attended the New Hanover Lutheran and Falkner Swamp Reformed churches in Hanover, PA, and Barbara's parents are buried at the New Hanover Lutheran Church, perhaps further searching of these graveyards and church records will reveal their final resting place.

On 9 November 1794 he married Elizabeth Renninger, daughter of immigrant Wendal<sup>2</sup> Renninger and Anna Margaretha May.

FOURTH KEHL-ZERLY GENERATION

Jacob<sup>2</sup> Kehl married Maria Magdalena Zerly, daughter of David and Magdalena Zerley (Zoerle) on 14 September 1825 at the New Hanover Lutheran Church. They lived in Upper Hanover Township, where Jacob<sup>2</sup> is called a "laborer" in the 1850 Federal census. In the 1860 census, he is called an "oil miller;" one who processes flax seed into linseed oil. Jacob<sup>2</sup> and Maria are buried at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Red Hill, Montgomery Co., PA.

Many of our ancestors grew flax to make yarn that comes from a fiber layer between the bark and the stem. At harvest time the stalks were pulled out of the ground instead of being cut off like wheat and rye. Then followed a long process of retting, breaking and scutching before it was ready for the spinning wheel. Once spun it was woven on a loom to make cloth for underclothing, shirts, bed linens, bags, etc. The flax seed was taken to the oil mill and became an important source of cash income.

It appears Maria Magdalena was the only surviving child of her parents, David and Magdalena Zerle. Written in the Montgomery County Orphans Court record OC#21329, dated 14 November 1821: "Upon a petition of Tobias Albright administrator of David Zarley deceased. Setting forth that the said intestate left issue one child vis. Mary above the age of twenty-one years. That the personal estate of the said intestate is insufficient for the payment of his debts as by the account therewith produced appears . . ." The petition asks to authorize the sale of two tracts of land owned by David to pay these debts. The tracts of 58 and 45 acres each contain a message in Frederick Township and adjoining lands of Jacob Fisher, Jacob Boyer and others.

David Zerley's parents are unknown as is the name of his wife. The following information is included to help future researchers.

David Zerley's wife may have been Maria Magdalena Jung. Allowing for errors in record transcription, their marriage may have been recorded at the New Goshenhoppen Church as "David Zerby married Maria Magdalena Jung on 1 June 1797."

David may have been the son of John Jacob Zoerle who married Anna Margaret Siefried on 27 September 1757 in the Tohickon Reformed Church in Bedminster Township, Bucks County, and the brother of Jacob and Ludwig Zoerli who received catechism at New Goshenhoppen in 1775, ages 17 (born 1758) and 15 (born 1760) respectively.

The Muster Roll of Captain Frederick Beitenman's Company of Milita 26 November 1781 in 4th Class, Private Lodwick Zerley; 5th class private David Zerly; 8th class, Private Jacob Zerley (also Mosis Kail).

The Montgomery County will 1-511: Abraham Gerhard of Douglass, written 23 February 1795, probated 13 May 1796. To wife Margaret, all realty, 228 acres, during life in lieu of Dower. To son Peter and Step-son David Zerly, 30 pds each. To Elizabeth Zerly, daughter of stepson David, 30 pds. Remainder equally divided among children: Peter Gerhard, Daniel Gerhard, Catharine, wife of Matthias Hynderleyne (Hinterleiter) and stepchildren; John Zerly, David Zerly and Ludowick Zerly. Executor, son Peter Gerhard and stepson David Zerly.

Catharine Gerhard, daughter of Abraham Gerhard and Anna Meier married Matthias Hinterlieter on 19 December 1786 at New Goshenhoppen.

The children of Jacob<sup>2</sup> Kehl, born 8 July 1801, died 30 August 1872, and Maria Magdalena Zerle, born 18 March 1800, died 19 October 1869:

1. Sarah "Sally Ann" Kehl, born 25 March 1826, baptized 4 June 1826 at St. Paul's Lutheran in Red Hill, PA with John Miller and Dina Kehl as sponsors, died 13 April 1902, married at the New Goshenhoppen Church on 19 March 1854, Joseph Kolb. (See Kolb Family.)

THE BURCKARDT (BURKHARDT-BURKERT) FAMILY

Barbara Burckardt, wife of Jacob<sup>1</sup> Kehl, was the daughter of George<sup>2</sup> Burckardt, a miller of New Hanover and possibly Mary Francisco, who is mentioned in George's will. (Philadelphia County Will, book page S:401, proved 22 July 1783. Executors: David, George and Tobias Burkert.) Her grandparents, who married in February 1711 at the Preuschkorf Lutheran Church in Alsace, Germany, were Johan George<sup>1</sup> Burckardt, a herdsman at Preuschkorf, and Catharine Beurlin, daughter of "the late Andreas Beurlin, a former citizen at Ingweiler."

At the age of 56, George<sup>1</sup> Burchardt immigrated with his family to Pennsylvania aboard the ship Loyal Judith, of London, Robert Turpin, Master, from Rotterdam, last from Cowes with 114 adult male passengers listed, arriving in Philadelphia on 25 September 1732. (Also aboard this voyage was a Johann Friedrick Burghart, born 1698, a smith at Goersdorf, son of Johan Christoph Burchardt and Sophia Magdalena Dorothea Muller of Preuschkorf. Friedrick also settled in New Hanover and attended the New Hanover Lutheran Church.)

George<sup>2</sup> is in the 1769 Frankfort-New Hanover tax list. The Burkert's attended the New Hanover Lutheran Church where George<sup>2</sup> was involved with the building of the church. His name is inscribed to the right of the front entrance way as "Georg Burckart." He was buried on 24 August 1782 in the first row behind the church.

According to the New Hanover sexton records, George<sup>1</sup> Burckhard died 19 April 1745, age 69 years (born 1676), and his wife, Catharine Burckhard, died 13 September 1748 age 59 years (born 1689). The records also mention "Mother-in-law of George Burghardt died 31 January 1748, age 69" (born 1679)."

George<sup>2</sup> Burckardt may have had more than one wife. As noted below, the New Hanover church records are not consistent with the name of the mother of his children.

Children of George<sup>2</sup> Burckardt, born 8 January 1718, died August 1782 and possibly Mary Francisca:

1. Elizabeth Catherine Burckardt, born 1740, married George Slonecker who died by 1782.
2. David Burckardt, born March 1741, died 1799, buried New Hanover Lutheran, in 1774 at the New Hanover Lutheran Church married Elizabth Reichert. Children: 1) George Burkert, born 18 September 1774, 2) Elizabeth Burkert, born 10 December 1775.
3. Anna Maria Burckardt, baptized 8 September 1745 at New Hanover Lutheran, parents, "George Burchart and Maria Margarethe Fredericks." Died 3 January 1748 and buried at New Hanover Lutheran.

The most compelling evidence of the Sterner family in Clarion County is from the 1850 census of that area. There were 3 families in the census that year. Martin and Barbary have long been associated with John and Mary Sterner as the parents of John (white are of the chart). But based on the age of John and the birth location as compared to the age and the birth location of Martin's son David, this is now questionable. Even more eliminating is the fact that there would be two John's of different ages in the Martin Sterner household, if the elder were his son. Henry Sterner, in the lower highlighted area of the chart, was the son of Martin. Based on cross-referencing from various sources, it is found that this census data is correct on individual data of each person.

SARAH MOYER<sup>150</sup> (JOHN1) was born March 19, 1821 in Pike Twp. Berks Co. Pa, and died October 20, 1872 in Beaver Twp. Clarion Co. Pa. She married HENRY STERNER.

This building still looks much like it did when it was built, despite a few changes over time. It was built in 1926 by John Sterner for his photography studio he operated since 1904. Sterner and his son worked in this building until 1958.

Book People of Moscow, Inc. has been locally owned and operated since 1973. It is Moscow's most well known book store, and is a community of book readers brought together through a common hobby.

John Jacob Sterner<sup>159</sup>

Moscow, Idaho

John Jacob Sterner is a native of St. Petersburg, Pennsylvania. He comes from Pennsylvania Dutch ancestry, and his father (Reuben Sterner) was a carpenter. While still a small child, the family moved to Chattaroy, Washington, near Spokane, where John attended school until he was 17. (This cannot be correct based on Reuben's obituary.) From there he found work as a carpenter in saw mills and in the lumber industry. It was his early ambition to be a musician. In 1894 he enlisted in the 1st Cavalry, was assigned to the band, and he played the clarinet. On the expiration of his enlistment he made a contact with the Phelps Studio in Spokane under an agreement by which young Sterner was to be taught the photographic business. Then he learned that he could not be a musician and a carpenter at the same time.

Later we find him the owner of his own studio in Moscow, Idaho, where he is still located, but in a newer brick building erected in 1926. Meanwhile, the urge to find self-expression in music could not be suppressed. Nor was it, for he studied the violin for a number of years after playing in the Army band. He has meanwhile joined the Masonic Order, and is a Knight Templar. Mr. Sterner is married and has one son. Right now he is interested in golf and making pictures of children.

Her obituary appeared in the Venango Citizens Press, 13 Mar 1912, p. 5: "Mrs. Anna M. S. Bechtel (sic). After an illness of three weeks with pneumonia, Mrs. Anna Maria Sterner Bechtel died at her home near Emlenton last Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Bechtel was born in Berks county on Sept. 4, 1835, therefore being in her 77th year. She was the daughter of the late John and Mary Sterner. She came to Clarion county with her parents when a child. She was married Aug. 30, 1860, to Isaac Bechtel, who died seven years ago. With the exception of sixteen years, during which time Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel resided on Bully Hill, almost her entire life was spent in Clarion county. She was the mother of eight children, of whom the following survive: John, Daniel, George and Mrs. Mary King, of Emlenton; Mrs. Elizabeth Hovis of Harrisville; Mrs. Esther Beal of Hoodville, and Miss Kate, at home. Reuben preceded her to the grave many years ago. She had twenty-two grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. The late Allen Bechtel Young, of this city, was a nephew of the deceased. She also leaves two brothers and four sisters, as follows: Reuben and Daniel Sterner, of Chattory, Wash.; Mrs. Mong, of Knox; Mrs. Dimeling, of Crawford's Corners; Mrs. Edinger, of St. Petersburg, and Mrs. Hovis, of Turkey City. Mrs. Bechtel was a faithful member of the Reformed church since she was 17 years of age. The funeral took place on Saturday at 10:30 o'clock, the service being conducted by her pastor, Rev. C. B. Rebert, at the St. Petersburg Reformed church. Interment followed in the cemetery of the same church. The floral tributes were many, showing the high esteem in which she was held. Mrs. A. B. Young and daughter, Mrs. Mabel O'Connor, attended the funeral."

The Stauffer Name

All family names mean something and so the origin of the Stauffer name is most interesting. It has been traced back as far as 938 A.D. The Stauffer surname is from a very old German common noun "stauf," which is the German word for "cup." It is derived from the Teutonic word "staupa," meaning, "to pour." Another meaning of "stauf" is steep hill or cliff.

As applied to the Stauffer history, a "stauf" or "stauff" is a tall cup or beaker, a drinking cup, a goblet - a chalice. By adding the masculine affix "er," it signifies a "cupper." It was an official title whose use dates from the middle ages, and whose English equivalent is "cupbearer" or "butler."

The "stauff-er" title was given to an official in a nobleman's household, and so, when surnames came into vogue, the one who was a "cupbearer" or "stauff-er" took the surname "Stauffer" and so a family surname was born; however, this consisted of many individuals who had no blood relationship.

From the Bible we can learn about the cupbearer in Nehemiah 1:11. The author of the book was in fact a "cupbearer" to the king - he was actually a "stauff-er" in ancient times. If "Nehemiah the Cupbearer" would have been German, he would have been known as "Nehemiah Stauffer" - interesting! When Joseph was cast into prison, he was there with the king's chief cupbearer or butler (Genesis 40:1-13). (See cupbearers in I Kings 10:5 and II Chron 9:4.)

Other titles in early times were formed in a similar fashion, such as, one who would "weave" cloth or rugs became known as a "weave-er" and thus took the surname "Weaver." One who ran a grist-mill became known as a "mill-er," and thus took the surname "Miller." The "mill-er" handled the mill, and the "stauff-er" handled the stauff or cup - hence, the cup-bearer or cupper or Stauffer. There are many surnames formed in a similar manner.

There have been numerous spellings of the "stauffer" surname: Stauffer, Staufer, Stouffer, Stoufer, Stopher, Stoupher, Stouber, Stowfer, Stover, etc. The historic pronunciation is "St-ow-fur" (ow as in ouch), though some pronounce it "St-awe-fur" while others say "St-oh-fur" or "St-oh-ver." The primary spelling has been "Stauffer," pronounced by earlier generations "St-ow-fur," but the modern pronunciation is usually "St-awe-fur."

The "Stauffer" was like a butler and was also a collector of tolls, taxes, and any other revenue his master wanted, a part of which he would keep for himself. Because this position gave him influence and some authority, and enabled him to acquire a measure of wealth and a good life-style, it was an office to be desired. Since noblemen were numerous and each nobleman of Old Swabia had his own cup-bearer, there would be many Stauffers in Southern Germany and Switzerland regarding the word as the title of an office only. The name Stauffer was applied to the office of cupbearer only throughout Old Swabia, and so it is most probable that all the Stauffers in America find their ancestral roots in Old Swabia.

Swabia (German "Schwaben," historically "Alemanni") does not appear on modern maps. It was historically a region in southwestern Germany including what is now the southern portion of Baden-Wurttemberg and the eastern portion of Switzerland. It also claimed a portion of the northeastern corner of France (Alsace) and snip of the western end of Austria. Of course the actual boundaries of Swabia are debatable because over many centuries the borders moved around as wars took place, empires rose and fell, and the Roman Empire had its influence throughout the region. Though no specific map could be drawn that would be the one and only description, the map provided in this report will suffice for our purposes.

Swabia's name is derived from that of the Suibi, Germanic tribes people who, with the Alemanni, occupied the upper Rhine River Valley and the Upper Danube River Region. It was for a long time called Alemanni. The Great Black Forrest is included in this area and the territory spread east to the Lech river and south to include Lake Constance in Switzerland and further south to the border of Italy.

Swabia was one of the five great Duchies (territory of a Duke or Duchess - a Dukedom) of earlier medieval Germany - the other four being Franconia, Saxony, Bavaria, and Lotharingia (Lorraine). Though there were various ancient languages involved, Swabia became a German speaking people. We are talking about a couple of thousand years of history. Some claim that the Stauffers were Swiss and others say they were German. But either way, the Stauffers were a German speaking people from the region of old Swabia.

After a long succession of Dukes, Swabia was given by Henry IV to count Frederick of Hohenstaufen (1079), and it remained under Hohenstaufen control until the extinction of the line in 1268. Subsequently, the Duchy fell apart into such states as Wurttemberg, Baden, and Hohenzollern. No credence can be given to the unverified statement that the Stauffer name is derived from the noble name of Hohenstaufen, which in translation means "top of the steep hill."

Generally speaking, the Stauffers left their homes because they were persecuted on account of their religion, and because that section of Europe in which they lived was repeatedly laid waste by war. Those that survived the sword found life scarcely worth living. The Holy Roman Empire played its role in this region, exercising its might in the torture and killing of many in the name of religion. Many wars and troublesome times passed through the area to afflict these peoples.

Religious persecution and torment was a primary thorn in the flesh of the Stauffers. Every twisted doctrine and corruption in the name of religion was forced upon these hard-working people. This is why a number of them eventually escaped to America, and they came regardless of the hardships and hazards. Most came in the days of sailing ships, which could take months to cross the Atlantic.

In Germany and Switzerland at this time, only the Roman Catholic, the Lutheran and the Reformed Churches were tolerated by law. The adherents of the "sects," as they were called, were everywhere persecuted. In Zurich in 1635 the magistrates undertook to compel all Mennonites to enter the Reformed Church.

Each Stauffer who served in a particular nobleman's estate after the 1200's passed his name on to his children, and thus became the founder of a Stauffer family. And so it must follow that there are many Stauffer family lines that have no relationship. That is why there are so many persons bearing the name "Stauffer" even now in Switzerland and especially in the Canton of Berne. The surname "Stauffer" cannot be traced back to a common ancestor because it was a title of occupation as was "Miller," etc. However, many Stauffers of today can trace their heritage back to their own Stauffer ancestor.

Eastward of Stuttgart and Esslingen the Rems and Fills form two of the most fertile and delightful valleys of all Swabia. Along their side extends a continuation of the mountain chain of the Rauhen Alpen (Rough Alps) in an alternate interchange of hills and ravines. Above all other, however, appears the steep and rugged Hohenstaufen in conical form, with its level plateau, only to the northeast the beautiful Rechberge step fraternally into his presence, otherwise the view over those vast regions, their extensive fields, rich forests and meadows, is almost without limit or interruption. At a great distance rises, charming, stupendous and rocky peak Staufeneck, over whose top is distinctly seen the principal of all these mountains, and a black zone on the other side designates the Black Forest (Schwarzwald). An experienced eye beholds the plateau of Hohenstaufen, clear unto Ellwangen. Northeast from the foot of Hohenstaufen is the village of Buren, which belongs to a tribe of the same name, whose origin was unknown until the middle of the eleventh century, when Frederic of Buren removed from the confined valley of Buren to the plain of Hohenstaufen, built the castle and founded the town of Hohenstaufen, and from him descended the Hohenstaufen dynasty. A glance from this pinnacle seems to invite to the coveting eye the acquisition and extension of the nobility. The House of hohenstaufen has since exalted itself over all tribes and principalities, until after a period of splendor and glory it was suddenly siezed by a dreadful calamity and hurled into the darkest night of oblivion, leaving hardly any traces behind, so that only the true attachment of the historian can endeavor to bring about a gleam of resurrection. At the time of the prosperity of the House of Hohenstaufen their ancestry was traced back to the Emperor of France, as far back as the reign of Charlemagne. A close inquiry, however, throws some doubt on the legend.

Romanesque church, St Peter and Paul, built by the Hohenstaufen dynasty between 1132 and 1190

Frederic of Buren, founder of the House of Hohenstaufen, was, however, beyond any doubt of Franco-Alsatian ancestry. He had one sister, Adelheit, and four brothers, of which, Otto, Bishop of Strasburg, and Count Ludwig, who are prominently mentioned in history. He himself, however, excelled them all in wisdom, courage and enterprise. He was equalled by none of the noblest dukes of Suabia, and he was under all needful and critical circumstances Emperor Henry IV's, of Germant, truest and steadfastest defnder and protector. The same who only too often experienced the weakness and conceit of the older princes, expected to find stronger fidelity with the newly exalted subjects. He knew well the value under his peculiar circumstances, the value of a friend like Frederic of Hohenstaufen. Therefore, in the year 1079 he called him to Regensburg and said "Brave and vigilant man, whom I always found the truest and bravest among all, you are well aware how in the Roman Empire crime and misdeed prevailed, how through the devil's influence revolt and conspiracy are held sacred, while God's command is despised and the laws of the land trampled under foot. As you have battled in the past and also in the future against all these evil sods, and as a proof of how highly I appreciate your former services, and how sincerely I trust your future, I will give you my only daughter Agnes to wife, and the Duchy of Suabia as a dowry."

Frederic died in 1105, leaving two sons, Frederic and Conrad, whom their uncle, Henry V., kindly adopted.

Agnes, widow of Frederic, was married to Leopold IV., Margrave of Austria in 1115.

Frederic of Hohenstaufen was then 25 and Conrad 22 years old.

Henry V. died of cancer May 25, 1125. Childless. His only heirs being Empress Matilda and Frederic and Conrad of Hohenstaufen.

The Imperial Crown was contested between Frederic and Lothaire, Duke of Saxony. Lothaire was elected by fraud, and there was considerable trouble between him and the brothers of Hohenstaufen all the days of his reign. He died December 3, 1137. Childless.

CONRAD III

Frederic having died, the Crown was now again contested between Conrad of Hohenstaufen and Henry the Proud, Duke of Saxony and heir to Lothaire. Conrad was elected March 7, 1137, and crowned on March 15. He was born at Ampulia in 1093. His mother was Agnes, daughter of Henry IV. He married Gertrude, Duchess of Sulzbach, in Bavaria. His title was disputed by Henry the Proud, of Saxony. A civil war ensued. Welf (Guelfo VI), brother of Henry the Proud, commanded one of the armies in the battle of Wemsberg in 1140. Conrad gained a victory and the war was ended. In 1147 he conducted a large army of crusaders into Palestine. He besieged Damascus but failed to take it, and returned in 1149. He died without issue in 1152, and was succeeded by his nephew.

FREDERICK I

Frederick I, surnamed Barbarossa, son of Frederic, Duke of Suabia, and brother of Conrad III. His mother was Judith, daughter of Henry the Black. He was elected Emperor on the death of his uncle, Conrad III., in March 1152. In 1155 he passed into Italy with an army and was crowned by Pope Adrian IV. at Rome. In 1156 he married Beatrice, heiress of Burgundy, and reduced the King of Duke of Poland to become his vassal. In 1158 he led a large army into Italy and subjected the revolted city of Milan, which was punished with rigor. Two rival Popes, Victor IV. and Alexander III., having been elected in 1159, Frederic recognized the former and was excommunicated by the latter. His reign was disturbed by disputes with the Pope and wars with the cities of Lombardy. His army was defeated by the Lombards, near Legnano, 1176. He then made peace with the Pope Alexander and a truce with his other enemies in Italy. In 1183 the celebrated peace of Constance was concluded between Frederic and the Lombards. In 1189 he joined the third crusade with an army of 150,000 men, and after having marched by land as far as Asia Minor, defeated the Turks near Iconium. He was drowned in the river Calycodmis in 1190. He was ambitious but liberal, and was considered one of the greatest generals and statesmen of his age. He was succeeded by his son.

Emperor Barbarossa von Hohenstaufen

The following is in part a historical address delivered by Rev. Henry Stauffer at the first Stauffer reunion of their branch of the Stauffer family which was held near Middlebranch, Stark Co. Ohio., Sept. 3, 1898.

All family names mean some thing. In many cases their roots are deeply imbedded in the rich soil of the past, out of which they have grown. The name Stauffer happens to be a very old one and has an exceedingly interesting history. It is an Official title whose use dates from the middle ages, and whose English equivalent is "cup bearer" or "butler." It is derived from the Teutonic word "staupa," to pour. The same root in the noun form is "stauf," which is German word for cup. The name is formed by doubling the f, so as to make it easier to pronounce, and adding "er," which is the regular German masculine suffix of nouns which designate the doing of any thing. For example, Mueller is formed by adding "er" to Muehl, mill, and doubling the l. The miller is the man who handles the mill. So the Stauffer was originally the man who handled the stauf, or wine cup; hence, the cup bearer. This same root occurs in various languages, e. g., in "Hamlet," Shakespeare makes the gravedigger command his helper to fetch him a "staup of liquor." This is the English form of the same old Suabian word from which is derived the name Stauffer. From Genesis we learn that the chief cup bearer or butler of the king of Egypt was in prison with Joseph. From Neh. 1:11 we see that the author of that book was a professional cup bearer to the Persian king, Artaxerxes, in Babylon. Xenophen describes the graceful manner in which the cupbearers of Median monarchs performed the duties of their office. The cup was first washed in the king's presence. Then a little wine was poured out and drunk in order to give satisfactory proof that it had not been poisoned. Afterwards the was filled to the brim and politely handed to the king. Whether the office descended in unbroken succession from ancient to medieval times, I am unable to say. But it certainly was in existence at a very remote age in Europe. For there is a record of a "Stauffer Von Thunan" who took part in a tournament in Magdeburg, Germany, as early as A. D. 938. Stauffer was the name of the officer who handed the cup to the king's, Dukes and nobles of old Suabia. The position was therefore one of great responsibility and of considerable dignity and honor. In addition to waiting on his superior, there was generally added the function of levying toll from all passing travelers and merchants, a part of which he kept for himself. The office corresponds nearly to our modern collector ship of customs and must have been as eagerly sought after. The name Stauffer was applied to the office of cup bearer only throughout old Suabia, which does not appear in modern maps of Europe; but which comprises what is now the grand-duchy of Baden and a part of Wurtemberg, Germany, and the canton, of Bern, Switzerland. This territory, which possesses special interest to every Stauffer, has as its western border the river Rhine, and includes the modern cities, Mannheim, Heidelberg and Bern. It is probable that all the Stauffer's in America or their ancestors are from old Suabia. At present the name is very common in Switzerland. Captain W. D. Stauffer, ex-mayor of Lancaster, Pa., writes me that the name is more common there than in any other country in Europe. David McNeely Stauffer, editor of the "Engineering News," of New York City, to whom I am under many obligations, writes: "When I was in Bern, Switzerland, several years ago, I found Stauffer's almost as plentiful as Smith's in an American City. Each Stauffer who served in a particular court, after the thirteenth century, when names began to descend from father to son, gave his name to his children, and thus became the founder of a Stauffer family. It follows that there must be a great many persons bearing the name whose ancestors were in the least related. A genealogical record of the descendants of Henry Stauffer and other Stauffer pioneers : together with historical and biographical sketches

According to tradition the Stauffers owe their origin to a generation of knights called Stauffacher, at Hohenstaufen.* It is presumed that all of the Stauffer pioneers that emigrated to America at different times have the same common origin, and are more or less remotely connected, and in all probability the pioneers of this work have also their origin in the ancient House of Hohenstaufen in Suabia. A description of the House of Hohenstaufen is given in a translation from the German history by Fred Raumer, from which we glean the following :

In the middle of the eleventh century Frederic of Buren removed from the confined valley of Buren to the plain of Hohenstaufen, built the castle and founded the town of Hohenstaufen, and from him descended the Hohenstaufen dynasty. The House of Hohenstaufen exalted itself over all tribes and principalities until after a period of splendor and glory it was suddenly seized by a dreadful calamity and hurled into the darkest night of oblivion, leaving hardly any traces behind. At the time of the prosperity of the House of Hohenstaufen their ancestry was traced back to the ancient Emperor of France, as far back as the reign of Charlemagne. A close inquiry, however, throws some doubt on the legend.

Frederic of Buren, founder of the House of Hohenstaufen, was, however, beyond any doubt of Franco- Alsatian ancestry. He was equalled by none of the noblest dukes of Suabia, and was Emperor Henry IV's, of Germany, most steadfast defender and protector. He knew well under his peculiar circumstances the value of a friend like Frederic of Hohenstaufen. Therefore in the year 1079 he called him to Regensburg and said : ' Brave and vigilant man, whom I always found the truest and bravest among all, you are well aware how in the Roman Empire crime and misdeed prevailed, how through the devil's influence revolt and conspiracy are held sacred, while God's command is despised and the laws of the land tramped under foot. As you have battled in the past against all these evil sods, and as a proof how highly I appreciate your former services, and how sincerely I trust your future, I will give you my only daughter Agnes to wife and the Duchy of Suabia as a dowry.' Frederic died in 1105 leaving two sons, Frederic and Conard, who their uncle, Henry V, adopted.

After the death of Henry V, in 1125, the Imperial Crown was contested between Frederic and Lothaire, Duke of Saxony. Eothaire was elected by fraud. He died in 1137, childless. Frederic having died, the Crown was now again contested between Conrad of Hohenstaufen, and Henry the Proud, Duke of Saxony and heir to Eothaire. Conrad was elected March 7, 1137, and crowned March 15. He was born at Ampulia in 1093. His mother was Conrad gained a victory and the war was ended. In 1147 he conducted a large army of Crusaders into Palestine. He besieged Damascus but failed to take it, and returned in 1149. He died without issue in 1152, and was succeeded by his nephew, Frederick I, surnamed Barbarossa, son of Frederic, Duke of Suabia and brother to Conrad III. His mother was Judith, daughter of Henry the Black. He was elected Emperor on the death of his uncle, Conrad III., in March 1152. In 1155 he passed into Italy with an army and was crowned by Pope Adrian IV. at Rome. In 1156 he was married to Beatrice of Burgundy and reduced the King or Duke of Poland to become his vassal. In 1158 he led a large army into Italy and subjected the revolted city of Milan, which was punished with rigor. Two rival Popes, Victor IV. and Alexander III., having been elected in 1159, Frederic recognized the former and was excommunicated by the latter. His reign was disturbed by disputes with the Pope and wars with the cities of Lombardy. His army was defeated by the Lombards near Legnano in 1176. He then made peace with Pope Alexander and a truce with his other enemies in Italy. In 1183 the celebrated Peace of Constance was concluded between Frederic and the Lombards. In 1189 he joined the third crusade with an army of 150,000 men, and after having marched by land as far as Asia Minor defeated the Turks near Iconium. He was drowned in the river Calycodmis in 1190. He was ambitious but liberal, and was considered one of the greatest generals and statesmen of his age. He was succeeded by his son, Henry VI.

Henry VI. was born in 1165. He married Constance, daughter of Roger, King of the two Sicillies, in 1185, who inherited the Throne of her father. With a view of subdividing that country he invaded it, but being unsuccessful he was obliged to return to Germany. With the ransom money which he received from his prisoner, Richard Coeur de Lion, he fitted out another expedition. After taking Naples and bringing Sicily into subjection he caused himself to be crowned at Palermo. His conduct towards the Sicillians was marked with great cruelty and tyranny, and his death, which took place in 1197, was supposed to have been caused by poison. He was succeeded by his brother Philip, Duke of Suabia, and Otho IV., between whom the Crown was disputed.

Philip, Duke of Suabia and the Emperor of Germany, son of Frederic Barbarossa, was born in 1170 or 1176. He married Irene of Constantinople. He was elected Emperor in 1198, but his title was disputed by Otho IV., which caused a civil war to ensue. The Pope favored Otho and excommunicated Philip, but was afterward reconciled to him. Philip was assassinated in 1208 by Otto Wettlebach at the wedding of his niece. After Philip's assassination his wife Irene fled to Hohenstaufen and died shortly afterward in childbirth. The child also died. The two daughters of Philip were saved by the Bishop of Speyer.

Frederic II., son of Henry VI. and Constance, was born at Jesi in 1194. He had superior talents, and was master of the Greek, Italian, French and Arabic languages. He was married at Palermo in 1209 to Constance, young and childless widow of Emrich, King of Hungary, daughter of Alfonso II., and sister to Peter II., of Aragon, Spain. He was crowned Emperor of Germany July 25, 1215, at Aix-la-Chapelle, then only 21. After the defeat of his rival, Otho, at Bovines, he was supported by the Ghibeline party in an attempt to unite Germany and Italy into one empire. The project was resisted by the Pope and the Guelphs in a long contest. In 1220 he removed his court to Naples, which belonged to him by inheritance, and in which he founded a university. In accordance with a vow extorted from him in his youth by the Pope he undertook a crusade against the Infidels in 1227, but turned back before he reached Palestine, for which he was excommunicated by Gregory IX. He renewed the enterprise in 1228, took Jerusalem and made peace with the Pope in 1230. He suppressed a rebellion raised by his son Henry, gained in 1237 a great victory over the Guelphs at Corleone, and waged war against Gregory IX. In 1245 Pope Innocent renewed the papal anathema and absolved his subjects from their allegiance. In the midst of these troubles Frederic died, in 1250. He was succeeded by his son, Conrad IV. Frederic was eminent for courage and other royal qualities, and was considered the greatest general and statesman of his age.

Conrad IV., son of Frederic II., Emperor of Germany and King of Italy, was born at Ampulia in 1228. He was crowned King of the Romans in 1237. At the death of his father, in 1250, he took the title of Emperor, which was also claimed by William of Holland. The latter was favored by the Guelphs and by Pope Innocent IV., who excommunicated Conrad, the chief of the Ghibelines. Conrad led an army into Italy in 1251 and took Naples and other places. He died in 1254, leaving one son, Conrad V.

Conrad, son and heir of Conrad IV., was born in the year 1252. The Kingdom of Italy was usurped by his uncle Mamfred and was offered by the Pope to Charles of Aragon, who defeated Mamfred in 1265 and made himself master of Naples and Sicily. Conrad attempted to enforce his rights, gained several battles and was finally defeated at Tegliacozzo in 1268, taken prisoner and beheaded in cold blooded murder November 29, 1268, by order of Charles of Aryon, at the age of 15.

Thus ended the Hohenstaufen dynasty. The male sex of the late Imperial house being annihilated, all who claimed any prior family connection took to flight — one portion going to Baden, another to Bavaria, and a third to Switzerland, so that the beautiful Hohenstaufen was entirely deserted by the Hohenstaufen family and has never since been reclaimed by them.

Having given a brief sketch of the Hohenstaufen family to the end of the Imperial house of that name in 1268, it will be seen that several hundred years intervene between that period and the time of the pioneers of this work. In that period are included many generations of the family of which we have no account, and are therefore unable to give a complete line of descent. The missing links, and whether to the part of the family that settled in Baden, Bavaria or Switzerland, the pioneers of this work belong, we will leave for some future historian of the family to determine.<sup>164</sup>

From 1372, Hohenstaufen<sup>165</sup> was in the hands of the counts of Württemberg. After the expulsion of Duke Ulrich in 1519, Georg Stauffer of Bloßenstaufen successfully claimed the castle, as a descendant of the old Hohenstaufen dynasty. Only a small force defended the castle, and in 1525 it was taken and destroyed in the Peasants War. Stone from the castle was later used in the construction of the Göppinger Schloss.

Religious persecution was rife, many of the family who had become Protestants again fled their country and came to America, and no fewer than eighteen by the name of Stauffer came to Pennsylvania, mostly from the Palatinate of the Rhine. This branch of the family begins in Pennsylvania with Hans, son of Daniel Stauffer, a descendant of the ancient house of Hohenstauffen, in Suabia, who was born at Alzheim, near the Rhine, in Switzerland, about 1630, and there died.

HARRY J. STAUFFER, M. D.—In 1896, after a year at Adrian Hospital, Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania, Dr. Stauffer located in Jeannette, Westmoreland county, where he has amply demonstrated his skill as an honorable, skillful practitioner. A graduate of Jefferson Medical College, he brought to his profession the learning acquired in one of the oldest and most noted American medical colleges, and the decade of practice in Jeannette has given the experience that the physician needs to reduce theory to practice. He is a descendant of that Daniel Stauffer, a descendant of that branch of the family once constituting the Hohenstauffen royal dynasty of Germany, who after the overthrow and murder of Conrad V., November 29, 1268, crossed over into Switzerland and settled near the Rhine. The Hohenstauffen line was founded by Frederic of Buesen, one of the bravest knights of his age, about the middle of the eleventh century. He was of Franco-Alsatian ancestry, German historians tracing his lineage to the Emperors of France back to the time of Charlemagne (770). The ancient castle of Hohenstauffen stood on a projecting peak of the Roush Alps, between the Kingdom of Wurtemberg and Switzerland, overlooking a large part of the German Empire. The Hohenstauffen dynasty ruled in Germany from the eleventh to the thirteenth century

From the branch alluded to came Daniel Stauffer, born near the Rhine, at Altsheim or Weissenau, in 1630, and there died. His son, John Stauffer, was born about 1655, and married Kinget Herstand. He belonged to the then comparatively few Mennonities, a religious sect vigorously persecuted in Switzerland by the adherents of Zwingle. On November 8, 1709, John Stauffer and his family left their native land, embarking at Weissenau, and after a perilous voyage reached London, England, January 26, 1710. From England they took ship for this country, landing at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, in the spring of 1710. They settled at Valley Forge, the family consisting of John Stauffer; Kinget, his wife; three sons, Jacob, Daniel and Henry, and a daughter Elizabeth. His diary, written partly in German and partly in French, is still preserved.

(IV) Jacob Stauffer, eldest son of Henry and Maria (Buckwalter) Stauffer, was born May 2, 1754, died March 20, 1839, and is buried in the Mennonite Cemetery at Boyerton. He was a farmer in Colebrookdale township, buying the home farm from the other heirs. He was a private in the Revolutionary War, serving in the 6th Battalion under Captain Adam Roth (Pennsylvania Archives, Series 6, Vol. 3, Page 75). In 1785 he married Susanna Huff.

(V) John Stauffer, son of Jacob and Susanna (Huff) Stauffer, was born July 4, 1792, and died November 28, 1854. He was a judge in Berks county courts, and a leading citizen of Boyerton, where he built a fine mansion. Judge Stauffer married Elizabeth Keely, and they were the parents of twelve children, among them Franklin K. Stauffer, of whom further.

(VI) Franklin K. Stauffer, son of John and Elizabeth (Keely) Stauffer, was born January 29, 1829, and died in July, 1880. He was a coal and lumber merchant of Schwenksville, Pennsylvania, succeeding Reuben Y. Strassburger in business upon the latter's death. He married (first) Harriet Ludwig, born in 1833, to whom was born Wilfred L. Stauffer, subject of this sketch; she died in December, 1857. He married (second) Sarah T. Miller, who died in 1880. To this union were born three children: Emma, Alice, and Kate.

(VII) Wilfred Ludwig Stauffer, son of Franklin K. and Harriet (Ludwig) Stauffer, was born in New Berlin, Union county, Pennsylvania, July 28, 1857. He was educated in the public schools of Boyerton, in Berks county, Pennsylvania; Boys' Academy, Boyerton; Ursinus College, Collegeville, finishing the junior year work. He then began the study of law in the office of his uncle, Abner K. Stauffer, of Reading, Pennsylvania. He did not continue in law, but after two years as special agent for the Reading Railroad Company in different places, he came, in 1887, to the firm of James Lees & Sons Company (q.v.), of Bridgeport, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, as office manager, and after holding different positions became vice-president when the firm was incorporated in 1895. That position he still holds, his home being in Norristown, Pennsylvania. Mr. Stauffer is a Republican in politics, and for four years he served the borough as school director. He is a member of Norristown

Lodge, No. 714, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks; of Montg. Co. and Berks Co. Historical societies; the Norristown Club; the Plymouth Country Club; the Ersine Tennis Club; Union League, of Philadelphia; and

St. John's Episcopal Church, of Norristown, which he serves as vestryman. Mr. Stauffer married, in Schwenkville, Pennsylvania, September 7, 1881 (memorable also as the hottest day there in half a century), Magdalena Strassburger, daughter of Reuben Y. and Elizabeth (Schwenk) Strassburger, her father a lumber merchant of Schwenkville. Mr. and Mrs. Stauffer are the parents of six children: Wilfred Ludwig, born July 29, 1883, died January 5, 1885; Mary Elizabeth, born June 11, 1885, married John Hyatt Naylor, of New York City; Charles R., born April 7, 1887, married Florence Rosella Franey; Paul Strassburger, born February 10, 1889, married Alice Brown Butz, deceased; J. Kenneth, born April 9, 1891, married Sarah Meyers; Wilfred Ludwig (2), born October 29, 1894.<sup>167</sup>

The Fröetsen farm in Eggwil was bought by the Stauffer family in 1485. The first Stauffer of record in the area was an Ulrich Stauffer who was living in Röthenbach in 1440.<sup>169</sup>

On May 3, 1671, the foundations were laid for the first mass migration/exile of Anabaptists from the Emmenthal Valley when the magistrate of Signau received orders from Bern to seize the Anabaptists of Eggwil and bring them to prison in Bern, where they would then be exiled. The citizens of Eggwil refused to allow the Anabaptists among them to be taken, so twelve of the wealthiest sympathetic residents of Eggwil were imprisoned instead in Bern as hostages until the Anabaptists agreed to be delivered to the Bern prison or be exiled. The Anabaptists agreed to be exiled rather than see their friends and sympathizers imprisoned for their sake. Swiss authorities enforced the departure of several hundred Anabaptists from Bern to Alsace, France and Rheinland-Pfalz in Germany. (Hart family ancestors who were born in Bern and died in Ibersheim or Gerolsheim, Rheinland-Pfalz, Germany, include Christian Stauffer b. 1579, Adelheid Oppliger b. 1588, Jung Hans Hiestand b. 1605, Peter Beutler b. 1632, and Jacob Hiestand b. 1649). Christian Stauffer and his family were among those who agreed to be exiled, and hoped for a better life in Germany. Unfortunately, he died shortly after emigration in 1672 in Ibersheim, Rheinland-Pfalz. After all, he was over ninety years old, and the hardships of exile were difficult.<sup>172</sup>

Christian, a fugitive Anabaptist preacher, may have been part of a great "Taufers hunt" along with Uli Zaugg and Uli Neuhaus in 1644. They were all captured and placed in jail in Thun, where the authorities there were warned to keep these obstinate preachers out of the Emmenthal Valley. Christian Stauffer lived at Luchsmatt farm in his early married life and then probably at Glashutte, both in Eggwil and located west of the Eggwil village proper on the road to Rothenbach. He was exiled with his second wife from Glashutte farm in Eggwil in the fall of 1671. He was living in Dirmstein, Germany, in December of 1671 and by January 1, 1672 in Ibersheim, Germany, where he probably died.

<sup>172</sup> Hart Family Ancestors in History: Christian Stauffer (1579-1672) "Threatened Men Live Long" by Jennifer Krulic Hart

His children were christened at Röthenbach, but were probably all born at Luchsmatt farm in Eggwil which lies near the border of Eggwil and Röthenbach parishes. The Emmenthal Valley was a hotbed of Anabaptist activity and their numbers were growing, which greatly alarmed the authorities in Bern. By 1671, Eggwil had a large group of Anabaptists, numbering about 40 adults, which when you add in their children probably totaled over 100 people. On May 3, 1671, the magistrate of Signau received orders from Bern to seize the Anabaptists of Eggwil and bring them to the prison in Bern, where they would then be led out of Switzerland. The village community of Eggwil refused to permit this, probably because so many of them had relatives who were Anabaptists and also because many themselves had leanings toward the Mennonite faith. Shortly thereafter twelve of the wealthiest residents of Eggwil were sent to the city of Bern as hostages until the Anabaptists agreed to be delivered to the Bern prison or to leave the land. They agreed to the latter. On October 16, 1671, the Reformed pastor of Eggwil was able to report that the Anabaptists had left of their own accord. They were not allowed to take much and probably had some of their possessions and lands confiscated as an emigration tax, as well as having their citizenship taken away. They would become refugees without a county. According to Valentine Hutwohl, a Mennonite Minister in the Pfalz, on December 14, 1671, 450 Anabaptists from Bern had recently arrived in the Pfalz. "These are scattered among the fellow believers throughout the region over a twelve-mile territory. Among these you will find those who need canes, being 70, 80, and 90 years old. On the whole they need clothing sorely; they didn't take more along than what they had on their backs. With little bedding, we don't know how to keep them warm. Some amongst us have seven, eight or nine living with them. When you speak of their property, they sigh, wishing that they had their houses and farm land here as before. There are men who left their wives and children, and women, older as well as younger, who have left husbands and children; others who brought along some, leaving the rest with the husbands, also expectant mothers; also children who left father, mother, brothers and sisters behind". Included in the Hutwohl letter was a list of the Swiss refugees. Many were members of Christian Stauffer's family. All lived together, having 21 children. They had left large possessions in Switzerland. They had a large debt with a merchant. They brought along 100 Reichsthalers and were given 250 to pay the debt. They were living at Dirmstein.<sup>173</sup>

KINGET HIESLAND 1685 in Near Alsheim, Hess-Darmstadt, Germany. She was born January 03, 1656/57 in Richerswil, Switzerland, and died 1710 in Skippack, Montgomery Cty., PA.

Children of HANS STAUFFER and KINGET HIESLAND are:

9. i. DANIEL<sup>9</sup> STAUFFER, b. 1697, Alzheim, on the Rhine, Near Zurich, Switzerland; d. 1763, Berks County, PA.
10. ii. ELIZABETH STAUFFER.
11. iii. JACOB STAUFFER, b. 1696, Alzheim, Germany; d. March 01, 1780, Bally, Washington Twp., Berks Cty., PA.

Hans Stauffer had 3 sons: Jacob and Daniel (I am descended from Daniel) who you mentioned, and Henry born 1700. He also had a daughter Elizabeth who was born in 1688. His father was originally thought to be named Daniel, but relatively recent research by Richard Davis, who has written several books about Swiss Mennonites, says his father was Hans b 18 Apr 1613. Earlier researchers said his father was named Daniel because of what he wrote in his account books about "mein feter Daniel Stauffer". This was taken to mean "mein Vater" (My Father) rather than "mein Vetter" (my cousin).<sup>174</sup>

Also, Hans (Jr) seems to have been born about 1644 and not the commonly quoted 1655.

(I) Hans Stauffer was born in Alzheim, Switzerland, between 1650-1655. He married, in 1685, a widow, Kinget Heistand, both being Mennonites in religious faith. When persecution for "conscience sake" became too grievous to be borne, they left Switzerland. A diary kept by Hans Stauffer thus reads: "In the year 1709 I, Hans Stauffer, left my own native land, the Schweitz, on the 5th day of November with my wife and children: Jacob, aged thirteen; Daniel, twelve; Henry, nine; Elizabeth, with her husband, Paulus; Fried; and one child named Mary – eight persons in all. After a stormy voyage, on January 26, 1710, we arrived in London." this diary is now in possession of the subject of this sketch, Ludwig STAUFFER. In the spring of the same year, 1710, they crossed the Atlantic, and after a perilous passage, landed in Phila., PA and settled at Frantz Creek (now French Creek), near Valley Forge. It's claimed that Hans Stauffer, the founder, is buried in the Mennonite grave-yard near Valley Forge.

They were Mennonites, and, because of the persecution of that faith, fled (Switzerland, 1668) to Alsheim in the neighborhood of Strassburg, Germany, where he engaged in viniculture, renting an old estate and castle. (p. 46; lease with the Lord Fieldmarshal General, Van Kaunter, for the citadel of the castle and the castle goods 1697 for three years 1700.) He inherited from his father 350 guldens and from his sister, Anneli, 23 guldens. (from Carol Scott Info) Hans was a prosperous farmer until the War of the Spanish Succession brought ruin and desolation to that part of Europe. Through the influence of his step son-in-law, Gerhart Clemens, Hans Stauffer migrated to America. He and his family and his daughter's family, left their home on November 5, 1709, and after a three days' journey embarked at Weissenau on the Rhine. After ten weeks' intermittent travel they reached London on January 26, 1710. From London, after a stormy and perilous voyage of sixty-seven days on the ship, "Maria Hope", they reached Philadelphia in the spring of 1710. They settled in Chester County, Pennsylvania, near Valley Forge. Hans and Kinget Hiestand Stauffer are buried in a Mennonite graveyard near that place. No tombstone, or record of their deaths has been discovered. ANABAPTISTS (from Guide to Genealogical records by Sues; Everton Pub.) The peaceful group of Anabaptists appeared with Ulrich Zwingli's own circle in most German-speaking areas of Switzerland in the decade of the 1520s. They referred to themselves at first as "brethren." They were also known as "Taufgesinnte" (baptismal minded), "Taufers" (baptists), "Wiedertaufer" and Mennonites. The Anabaptists wanted to restore Christianity to its earlier, more primitive, purer form. They felt that the early Christian was a heartfelt believer, a minority in a pagan state, rejected and persecuted. If this was the case with the early Christian Church it must also be the case for Christians at all times. For the Anabaptist the implication was that the state, even though its rulers might be Christian, must by necessity be un-Christian. They opposed any union of church and state. The Anabaptist felt he must be distinguished from the rest of the population by a strict morality, including abstinence from alcohol, and also further by a visible token of his inward regeneration. Since Lutherans, Zwinglians, and Catholics accepted infant baptism, the Anabaptists appeared as rebaptizers, and therefore that name was applied to them. The Anabaptist were immediately persecuted, first by the Catholic Church, and then by the Protestants. Some Anabaptists were executed, some returned to the Protestant Church, others tried to exist in obscure places, but many left their homes for other countries. The three areas where they appeared very early and existed for a long time are the old states of Bern, Zurich, and Basel. Some Protestant parish registers recorded children of Anabaptist parents who were christened in their church. The Anabaptists in the canton of Bern have existed there through the centuries until the present time despite extreme difficulties in the past. The majority of Mennonites in America of Swiss background can trace their beginnings to Bernese territory. Most of the Bernese Mennonites who stayed in Switzerland fled to the Jura Mountains during the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries. This was the area of the Bishopric of Basel which was partly under the German empire and partly under Swiss Jurisdiction. Others settled in the southern part of the Jura which was the Principality of Neuchatel, a possession of Prussia. After the French Revolution and the Napoleonic era, the Bishopric of Basel was given to Canton Bern, and the Neuchatel became a canton in the Swiss Confederacy. Typical Bernese Anabaptist names included the following: Althaus, Amstutz, Augsburg, Brubacher, Bertschi, Bichsel, Baumgartner, Bösiger, Bieri, Burkhalter, Bucher, Brechbuhl, Badertscher, Duller, Eicher, Aeschlimann, Fluckiger, Aebersold, Frey, Geumann, Gerber, Gut, Grader, Geiger, Gungerich, Gunten, Gehrig, Haldemann, Habegger, Hochstettler, Hilti, Hirschi, Joder, Imhof, Krahenbuhl, Kannel, Kaufmann, Ledermann, Lehmann, Luginbuhl, Leichti, Moser, Mosimann, Neuenschwander, Nussbaum, Neuhauser, Oberli, Reusser, Rich, Rohrer, Reist, Rothlisberger, Reichenbach, Rupp, Roth, Ramseier, Schenk, Schrag, Schnegg, Steiner, Stutzmann, Stucki, Sommer, Tschanz, Suter, Stauffer, Schmucker, Dreier, Thut, Wurgler, Walti, Wenger, Wuthrich, and Zurcher. Special family records of Anabaptists kept by Protestant ministers during the latter 18th and 19th century in several parishes, especially in Trub and Langnau, are kept in the civil registrar's office. Already in 1526 there were Anabaptists in the canton of Aargau. They existed with great difficulty in this area until the early part of the 18th century. Some surnames include: Datwyler, Burger, Muller, Bachmann, Stahlin, Kunzli, Meier, Suter, Schuhmacher and Widmer. The beginnings of the Anabaptist movement in 1525 in the old republic of Zurich have been carefully recorded. A circle of well-educated persons broke with Zwingli's reform program, feeling it was not complete and failed to follow scriptural patterns. Extreme persecution started quickly and these people were either executed or fled. Wherever they went they started congregations. While the congregation in the city of Zurich soon became extinct, concentrations of Anabaptists were started in the southeastern part of the canton of Zurich in Gruningen, around Horgen, Wadenswil, and Knonau. Family names of Anabaptists in the canton of Zurich area were: Muller, Landis, Hess, Brubacher, Weber, Bachmann, Gut, Schneider, Hegli, Huber, Strickler, Graf, Frick, Schnebeli, Peter, Eberli, Kagi, Pfister, Hofmann, Tanner, Bar, Frey, Nageli, Studer, Wyss, Meyer, Ringg, Egli, Oberholzer, Bosshard, and many others.<sup>175</sup>

JOSEPH W. SHELLY, for the past five years District Attorney of the county of Bucks, was born in Milford township, Bucks county, March 26, 1864, on a farm that had been the property of his ancestors for a century and a quarter. The family of Shelly, now very numerous in Upper Bucks, is descended from Abraham Shelly, who emigrated from the Palatinate, Switzerland, or northern France, about 1730. On January 29, 1739, Thomas and Richard Penn, proprietaries of Pennsylvania, conveyed to him fifty acres of land in Milford township, adjoining other land on which he was already settled, showing that he was already located in Milford at that date. In 1740 he purchased of Morris Morris 260 acres additional, a portion of which was occupied by his descendants, the lineal ancestors of the subject of this sketch, until 1873. In February, 1761, he and his wife Elizabeth entered into an agreement to convey to their son Michael Shelly 135 acres of this tract, but Abraham died before the conveyance was completed. They also conveyed a portion of their land to their son Jacob in 1760. Abraham and Elizabeth Shelly were the parents of six sons,—Abraham, Jacob, Joseph, Christian, John and Michael, from both the first and last of whom the subject of this sketch is descended through the inter-marriage of a grandson of the former with a granddaughter of the latter.

Abraham Shelly, Jr., purchased land adjoining his father in 1753, which he later conveyed to his son Joseph. The date of the death of Abraham Shelly and Eve his wife has not been obtained, nor a full list of their children, though it is known that their two sons were Joseph and Christian.

Joseph Shelly, son of Abraham, Jr., as above related, received from his father a portion of the homestead. He was a farmer, and followed that vocation in Milford township until his death in November, 1818. He married Jannie Yoder, and they were the parents of the following children: Jacob, Abraham, Joseph, John, Mary, wife of Michael Landis; Eve, wife of Peter Moyer; Anna, wife of Jacob Moyer; Barbara, wife of Peter Schneider; and Fannie, wife of John Fretz.

Jacob Shelly, son of Joseph and Anna (Yoder) Shelly, married Barbara, only child of Michael and Elizabeth (Muselman) Shelly, and granddaughter of Micheal Shelly, youngest son of Abraham the emigrant. The land purchased by Michael, Sr., of his father, in 1761, was devised by Michael to his son John, who, dying without issue in 1770, devised it to his brother Michael, the father of Barbara, and he, dying in 1790, devised it to his only daughter, who later married Jacob Shelly, her second cousin. Elizabeth, the mother of Barbara Shelly, died in 1793, while her daughter Barbara was yet a minor. Jacob Shelly died in September, 1847, and his wife Barbara in February, 1852. They were the parents of ten children, viz.: Michael; Fannie, wife of William H. Oberholtzer; Joseph S.; Elizabeth, who became the wife of Rev. Samuel Moyer; David; Susanna, who married Samuel K. Harley; John and Mary, who died young; Jacob; and Barbara, who married Levi S. Shelly.

Joseph S. Shelly, second son of Jacob and Barbara, was born in Milford township, Bucks county, December 20, 1809, and died there in 1872. By proceedings in the orphans' court in 1848, the property which had descended to his mother was adjudged to him, and he continued to own it until his death. He married Elizabeth Bauer, daughter of Andrew and Elizabeth (Bechtel) Bauer, who was born in Douglas township, Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, October 30, 1809, and they were the parents of four children.—Andrew B.; Susanna, wife of David Stauffer; Mary, wife of John Bleam Bechtel; and Elizabeth, who died in childhood.

Rev. Andrew B. Shelly, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Milford township, September 23, 1814. He received his early education at the public and parochial schools of that vicinage, and at the age of eighteen years began teaching school in the winter months, devoting the summer to study in connection with assisting his father on the farm. In 1854 and 1857 he was a student at Freeland Seminary (now Ursinus College) at Collegeville, Montgomery county. In 1864 he entered the ministry and became the pastor of East Swamp, West Swamp, and Flatland, Mennonite congregations, to which he has since ministered. He has from a youth been one of the active leaders and teachers in the doctrine of the Mennonite church, bringing to bear upon this work, as upon all that he has undertaken, an energy, earnestness and fidelity to principle that has characterized his whole life. He has filled many prominent positions in the church, being for many years president of the general triennial conference, and a prominent member of the foreign missions and publication boards of the church. He was for fifteen years editor of the "Mennonitche Friedensbote," a church paper published at Milford Square, and for many years associate editor of the "Christliche Bundesbote," a paper published in the interest of the Mennonite church at Berne, Indiana. He has also been for many years one of the editors of "The Mennonite," an English church paper published in Philadelphia.

He married, October 16, 1858, Fannie Weinberger, born March 11, 1834, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Shelly) Weinberger, and also a descendant of Abraham Shelly, Sr., her mother being a great-granddaughter of Jacob Shelly, son of the pioneer, Abraham. This union was blessed with the following children: Mary Elizabeth, wife of Isaiah T. Clymer, of Quakertown; Adeline, wife of Uriah S. Stauffer, editor of "Quakertown Free Press"; Joseph W.; Menno and Oswin.

The Shelly family have nearly all been farmers and from their arrival in America, have nearly all been adherents of the Mennonite church, and true to the tenets of that faith, have taken little part in active politics or affairs of State, though taking an active interest in local affairs, in their respective neighborhoods. They have almost invariably given their political support to the old Whig and later to the Republican party.

Joseph W. Shelly was born on the old Michael Shelly homestead (purchased by his great-great-great-grandfather in 1740) March 25, 1864. He received his early education at the public schools of his native township, and the Quakertown High School, and finished his elementary education at Ursinus College. On leaving college he taught school at Quakertown, in the meantime entering himself as a student at law in the office of the late Charles F. Meyers, Esq., at Doylestown. He was admitted to the Bucks county bar December 1, 1890, and formed a partnership with his preceptor, which continued for five years, since which time he has practiced alone. He was admitted to practice in the supreme court of Pennsylvania in 1893. Mr. Shelly is a Republican in politics, and has from the time of attaining his majority been actively identified with the organization of his party, serving as secretary of the county committee for several years, and as its chairman for six years. He is also a member of the Union Republican Club of Philadelphia. He was elected to the office of district attorney of Bucks county in 1900, and was re-elected in 1903, being the only living member of the bar to serve two terms in that office, the only other instance of a re-election being that of the late Nathan C. James, re-elected in 1857. As prosecuting attorney of the county, Mr. Shelly has made a good record, and he enjoys the confidence and esteem of the court and his fellow members of the bar. In religion he conforms to the faith of his ancestors for many generations, and is a member of the Mennonite Church.

Anna B. Bechtel Birth 20 January 1822 Death 4 September 1881

She married to Philip H. Funk.

Philip H. Funk was born in Washington township, near Schultzville, and in his earlier life he taught school in Lancaster county, but later engaged in farming. He was a Mennonite, and is buried at the Hereford meeting-house at Bally. His wife was Anna Bechtel and they had two children, Mary (m. Abraham Clemmer) and James B. Funk. After the death of Philip H. Funk his widow married Jacob Johnson, by whom she had three children: Ephraim; Abraham, who died at Reading, where he was a well-known dentist; and Milton, of New Berlinville, Pennsylvania.

James B. Funk (born 1845) In 1868 Mr. Funk married Susan Clemmer, daughter of David and Mary (Bechtel) Clemmer, and six children have been born to them, as follows: Oswin assists his father; Ambrose is in Pendleton, Oregon, where he is at present serving as deputy sheriff; Horace is a respected public school teacher in Hereford township; Warren is a student at Cornell University; Anna is a Mennonite missionary in Janjgir, Central Provinces, India; and Cora, unmarried, is at home. Mr. Funk and his family are members of the New Mennonite Church at Bally, in which he is a faithful and active worker and is at present serving as deacon.

Annie C. Funk

born April 12, 1874 in Bally, Pennsylvania and died April 15, 1912

In December 1906, Annie became the first female Mennonite missionary and was sent to Janjgir India where she lived and worked for five years. In July 1907 she opened a one-room school for girls, where she initially taught 17 girls. She got closer to the people by learning Hindi.

A telegram forced her in the end to return to Bally: "Come home at once. Mother very ill. Have purchased on two ships".

She left Janjgir by train to Bombay, boarded the Persian and disembarked at Marseille. The train and boat brought her to England and finally to Liverpool, where the Haverford was to carry her home to America. Because of the coal-strike the ship was laid off, so Thos. Cook & Sons offered her to change to the Titanic for "a few more gold pieces", as she wrote. She bought her second class ticket number 237671 for £13.

She enjoyed the first days by celebrating her 38th birthday. In the night of the sinking, she was asleep in her cabin, was woken by the stewards, dressed and went on deck. Annie, according to a confirmed report, unselfishly relinquished her place in a lifeboat to a mother with children. She was about to enter a lifeboat, when a woman came from behind, pushing her aside by calling: "My children, My children". The report has it that Annie Funk was on a life boat and gave up her seat for a mother with children. Those who knew her said, "That would be just like Annie." She, along with 1,500 others, perished in the great sea tragedy.

Horace Funk, her brother, a teacher of the eleventh grade of the high school here, went to New York in search of his sister. Her body, if recovered, was never identified.

WOMAN MISSIONARY MAY BE AMONG LOST

North American Friday 19 April 1912

POTTSTOWN, Pa., April 18---The name of Miss Annie Funk, a returned missionary from India and a daughter of James Funk, a well-to-do grist mill owner at Palm, this county, is not among the list of second-class passengers on the ill-fated Titanic who were saved by the Carpathia.

According to the parents of the well-known missionary worker, Miss Funk engaged passage on the Titanic, but her name is not on the Carpathia's list of saved.

Miss Funk is 38 years old and was on her way home from India, where she spent five years as a m missionary at Jangir, Central Province, one of the stations of the Mennonite Church. She arrived in London two days before the sailing date of the Titanic. She intended to take the Haverford, but her parents think that she engaged quarters on the Titanic.

FEAR BOYERTOWN GIRL, MISSIONARY, WAS LOST

North American Monday 22 April 1912

READING, Pa., April 21---Mr. and Mrs. James B. Funk, parents of Miss Annie C. Funk, a missionary to Janjgir, Central Province, India, have given up hope of seeing their daughter alive. The mother is seriously ill and the entire family is grief-stricken. They live at Boyertown, and as yet no official news has been received from the White Star Line. The parents have not seen their daughter for five years. Miss Funk, who was 38 years old, is a graduate of the West Chester Normal School. She was assistant secretary of the Y. W. C. A. at Paterson, N. J., and was the first missionary sent to India by the Mennonite Church, of Bally. Miss Funk had originally intended to take the steamer Haverford for home, but later decided to return on the Titanic to make better time.

FORMER SECRETARY OF PATERSON Y. W. C. A. LOST

Newark Evening News Monday 22 April 1912

PATERSON, April 22---Returning from India, where she was engaged in missionary work, Miss Annie Funk, for several years secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association, was one of those lost on the Titanic. This was her first furlough in five years.

Miss Funk was a missionary of the Mennonite faith. She was the daughter of James Funk, of Boyertown, Pa., and her family was prominent among the Pennsylvania German inhabitants of that section. She was a graduate of the Northfield Training School for Christian Work and from there went to Chattanooga, Tenn., where she did missionary work among the negroes. From there she came to Paterson.

At the service in the Market Street Methodist Church yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, alluded to the death of Miss Funk. At the Sunday-school session in the afternoon Superintendent H. S. Park also spoke of her tragic death and alluded to the good work she had done while a teacher in the school.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be a special memorial service at the Y. W. C. A. in her honor.

MISS FUNK ONE OF THE DEAD

Paterson Morning Call

Monday 22 April 1912 Former House Secretary of the Local Y. W. C. A. Was on Titanic

-----

COMING FROM INDIA

Was Missionary There and Intended Spending Part of Furlough in Paterson

A large number of Patersonians will regret to hear that Miss Annie Funk, who, for a number of years, was house secretary of the Young Women's Christian association, of this city, was one of the victims of the Titanic's disaster.

Miss Funk was returning from India, where she was engaged in missionary work. It was her first furlough in five years and numerous Patersonians received letters from her in which she expressed joy over the expectation of seeing them again.

Miss Funk was a missionary of the Mennonite faith. She was the daughter of James Funk, of Boyertown, Pa., and her family was prominent among the Pennsylvania German inhabitants of that section. She was a graduate of the Northfield training school for Christian work and from there went to Chattanooga, Tenn., where she did missionary work among the negroes. There she met Patersonians who informed her of the position of house secretary was open [sic] at the Paterson Y. W. C. A. and urged upon her to come here and take up the work for which she was so admirably educated. She came here when the Y. W. C. A. was still in its Bridge street headquarters and remained for three years after the new home on Ellison and Church streets was opened. She was an excellent official and under her supervision the building was faultlessly kept and managed. She also taught a class at the Market street Sunday school. Later she decided to take up missionary work entirely and was assigned to Janjgir, Central province, India. She sailed on Nov. 16, 1906, and on her departure a number of her friends presented her with a small collapsible organ which she has since used in her missionary work.

She has been successful as a missionary. She was full of zeal and love for her life's work and possessed a kindly heart and lovable disposition, which made her popular with all who knew her. When her name appeared in the New York papers among the missing victims of the Titanic, friends in Paterson, became anxious, for the age, thirty-eight, and the correct spelling of the name caused them to fear for the worst. They telegraphed to her some in Pennsylvania and the reply received was that she was one of the unfortunate ones. Her friends here feel the loss greatly and stated that they feel [sic] she was one of those who modestly stood back and helped to put others into places of safety before thinking of herself.

At the service in the Market Street Methodist Episcopal church, yesterday morning, the pastor, Rev. W. C. Snodgrass, alluded to the death of Ms. Funk in a touching manner. At the Sunday school session in the afternoon Superintendent H. S. Park, who knew the deceased, also spoke of her tragic death and alluded to the good work she had done while a teacher in the school.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be a special memorial service at the Y. W. C. A. in her honor and this will undoubtedly be largely attended.

Cemetery Lists

Record is organized by 18 "Rows" of varying length and eight appended, "Toward Meeting House." The originals are in German, but as the preface explains, "the inscriptions are copied as closely as possible as they appear on the tombstones, and for the benefit of the future generations, the German was translated to the English as closely as possible."

As to errors "made unaware," there is variation in the spelling of some names affecting the count of 59 families given in the preface. This typescript was discovered in the estate of the granddaughter of Henry S. Mack (1854-1946), Anna Elizabeth Reiff Young (1910-2005). Henry Mack lived with his granddaughter and daughter, Anna Mack Reiff (1880-1970) from 1936 to 1944. "Henry S. Mack was born near Bally, Pa., June 20, 1854; died at the home of his son (Philip), Cornwells Heights, Pa., Oct. 23, 1946; aged 92 y. 4 m. 3 d. Over seventy-two years ago he united with the Bally, Pa., Mennonite Church, where he retained membership the rest of his life, serving as chorister for sixty years."

The record of the inscriptions on the following pages are listed in the order in which the graves appear, and the rows numbered, running along the highway, beginning at the southwest corner. The inscriptions are copied as closely as possible as they appear on the tombstones, and for the benefit of the future generations, the German was translated to the English as closely as possible.

Hereford Mennonite Cemetery

The object when this was started was to have this in print in book form, however, because of the expenses involved no one was interested at the time to finance it. Therefore, it was done by duplicating for a start, and if later anyone is interested to carry on the work, this can be used as a start, and improved. No doubt, there are errors that have been made unaware, and possibly someone may later take up this work.

The work of transcribing this and reading the proofs of the inscriptions was done in the summers of the years 1932, and 1933, by the following:

Henry Mack, Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Joseph Beidler, Bally, Pa.

Bertha Lizzie, and Amy Gehman, Bally, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. David Gehman, Bally, Pa.

Master copies, with 75 duplicate sets, and the following statistics, were compiled during the Winter of 1934, through the courtesy of Gehman Knitting Mill, Bally, Pa., with Ralph Berky, Clayton, Pa., cooperating:--

The first Mennonite Colonists settled in Eastern Berks from 1725 to 1730. The earliest probable death date, legible, in the Hereford Cemetery is "1758 A.D.," on a brown stone marker.
